The demonstrations are not only for benefit of relief clients but for the housewife in the county, according to the committee.

The canning program is directed by Miss Inez Hobart, nutritionist of the Farm School and now attached to the social service division of the state ERA, and is designed to make possibe the best use of garden produce raised by relief clients.

"Although vegetables fresh from the garden will be used liberally throughout the summer, the majority will be canned for fall and winter use to supply the diet with more generous amounts of valuable minerals and vitamins than can be obtained on a restricted relief budget," said Miss Hobart.

Estimates of the value of a garden-canning program come to approximately five dollars a month for each person participating, according to the results of last year's experiment.

"Every housewife in the county, whether she has a garden or not, can save many dollars by attending her local canning demonstration," says the local committee.

Senstad and George Werstlein submitted figures to the board of equalization on Monday and Tuesday that revealed that the assessed valuation of real estate in the city this year, when compared to the 1932 assessment shows a drop of about $130,000, which is due to the operation of the new Minnesota homestead law.

'Our Community Builders' and Series of Hawthorne Poems Will Start Next Week

Two new features which we believe will be much enjoyed by Forum readers will be added, beginning with next week's issue. One will be a series of twenty-seven poems by Lawrence Hawthorne, most beloved of America's contemporary poets. The other will be a series of biographies of pioneer men and women of this community..

Hawthorne's work glows with human and heart interest and are fragrant with sentiment. Here is a poet who, like Eugene Field and James Whitcomb Riley translates the little things of daiily life into songs of inspiration and hope. Down the friendly paths of memory, and back to childhood joys, he guides us, leading always to a finer appreciation of the things that are beautiful and true.

The biographies of our pioneers will be written by our city editor, Miss Bernice Berge, and will tell the story of the people who settled this community, who cleared the wilderness and built our city. Those who have played an important part in making it one of the best communities in the northwest. This feature will be run under the head "Our Community Builders" and will appear on the editorial page each week. The Hawthorne poems will also be found on this page.

The Forum has on several occasions voiced the need of and urged the organization of a Pennington County Historical Society, and we again urge the people of the community to get busy on this most desirable civic enterprise. However we know there is a wealth of historical material which is getting lost every week and this series of biographies are being launched to save as much of this material as possible.

A copy of the Forum containing these biographies will be filed each week in a fireproof place and they will be turned over to a historical society when such an organization is organized.

These biographies and the series of Hawthorne poems will begin simulteneously in next week's issue of the Forum.

Hail and Wind Causes Havoc To Crops Over a Wide Area

Barns are Wrecked by Tornado Like Wind Near Village Of Plummer

Neon Signs and Greenhouses In the City are Badly Wrecked

A severe hail storm caused extensive damage to crops, gardens and other property here Sunday afternoon. The storm which struck this city at about 4:40 P. M., lasted about half an hour during which time hail, some of which were the size of hens eggs, fell. Gardens and orchards in the city were badly damaged and the electric signs in the city were all damaged to a great extent.

Severe damage to crops in the neighboring farming sections also resulted. Some nearest the city reporting almost complete loss of the crop, while others farther removed report damage of from ten per cent to seventy-five per cent of the crop.

Garage roofs in all parts of the city were badly damaged and hundreds of cars had the tops riddled with holes. The skylights of the Thief River Falls Green Houses were completely smashed, the hail taking a toll of 1420 lights. The garden was destroyed also there. Another garden operated by the same firm, near the sanatorium, south of the city suffered no damage. The Riverside Greenhouses report 27 broken lights and only slight damage to the gardens.

The storm which struck from the northwest covered a swath from about six miles west of town, about the same distance north and several miles east. Partial damage was reported as far south as six miles from the city. No wind accompanied the hail here.

Severe wind damage is reported from Plummer where two barns were demolished. On the "Ed Johnson" farm just north of Plummer the barn was torn down and several trees were uprooted and on the Peter Morrissette farm, west of Plummer the barn is reported to have been destroyed. No hail is repprted from that vicinity.

Hail showers fell in other widely seperated area according to reports. Stephen and Argyle report heavy hail and wind damage and hail showers without wind are reported from town of Hickory, in the east end of the county.

Three seperate showers fell in the city, the second hitting about six o'clock or shortly after. This lasted only a few minutes and the hail was not as large as the first shower. A half hour later a third and heavier shower fell at which time the ground became completely covered with the hail which this time was about the size of hazelnuts. A heavy downpour of rain accompanying the hail taxed the storm sewers to capacity.

LARGE CROWDS ATTEND ANNUAL ASSEMBLY SUN.

Dr. Boe, President of St. Olaf Delivers Two Stirring Addresses

The annual meeting of the Northwest Lutheran Assembly at Squaw Point Sunday was reported by Rev. R. M. Fjelstad, president of the assembly, as the best meeting ever held.

Dr. L. W. Boe, president of the St. Olaf college at Northfield, spoke both in the morning and afternoon sessions. In his morning address, Dr. Boe drew a comparison between the people of Israel in the Promised Land and the settlements of America, pointing out that just as God warned people then that turning aside and worshiping strange Gods works ruination, so are similar warnings necessary if America is to enjoy happiness and prosperity.

Among other things, Dr. Boe spoke of the future of the church in his afternoon address. He said that no system of government or any change of the present system is established on a basic quality, and reverence for God is the sure guarantee to correct the evils of the present day. The only effective remedy is the will to do right on the part of the people.

Musical selections were presented by the Holt community band, the North Star college quartette of Warren, and the men's chorus of the Trinity Lutheran church.

The following were re-elected to succeed themselves as officers of the organization: Rev. R. M. Fjelstad, President; M. N. Peterson of Greenbush, Vice-President; John Wold, Secretary; and N. A. Nelson, Treasurer

Miss Theresa Soderberg left Friday for Duluth where she will spend a week visiting with friends.

Miss Florence Mellem of Rosewood spent Thursday shopping here.

Those riding in the Matheson car received bruises.

Assessors Complete Work. Valuation has Dropped $130,000

Assessors A. M. Senstad and George Werstlein submitted figures to the board of equalization on Monday and Tuesday that revealed that the assessed valuation of real estate in the city this year, when compared to the 1932 assessment shows a drop of about $130,000, which is due to the operation of the new Minnesota homestead law.

The new law provides that homesteads occupied by the owner shall be appraised at 25% of the full value up to a maximum of $4,000 while real estate is assessed on the basis of 40% of the full value.

The full value of the real estate for the current year is $3,196,179, with an assessed value of $1,100,921. In 1932 the full value was $3,081,495 with the assessed valuation of $1,230,459. The assessed value of personal property was listed as $273,935 as compared to $236,809 in 1933. The total for the assessment of money's and credits for 1934 was $414,000 as compared to $227,000 in 1933.

It has been indicated that an increase of one mill in the tax rate will be required to raise the same amount of money as was raised last year.

'Our Community Builders' and Series of Hawthorne Poems Will Start Next Week

Two new features which we believe will be much enjoyed by Forum readers will be added, beginning with next week's issue. One will be a series of twenty-seven poems by Lawrence Hawthorne, most beloved of America's contemporary poets. The other will be a series of biographies of pioneer men and women of this community..

Hawthorne's work glows with human and heart interest and are fragrant with sentiment. Here is a poet who, like Eugene Field and James Whitcomb Riley translates the little things of daily life into songs of inspiration and hope. Down the friendly paths of memory, and back to childhood joys, he guides us, leading always to a finer appreciation of the things that are beautiful and true.

The biographies of our pioneers will be written by our city editor, Miss Bernice Berge, and will tell the story of the people who settled this community, who cleared the wilderness and built our city. Those who have played an important part in making it one of the best communities in the northwest. This feature will be run under the head "Our Community Builders" and will appear on the editorial page each week. The Hawthorne poems will also be found on this page.

The Forum has on several occasions voiced the need of and urged the organization of a Pennington County Historical Society, and we again urge the people of the community to get busy on this most desirable civic enterprise. However we know there is a wealth of historical material which is getting lost every week and this series of biographies are being launched to save as much of this material as possible.

A copy of the Forum containing these biographies will be filed each week in a fireproof place and they will be turned over to a historical society when such an organization is organized.

These biographies and the series of Hawthorne poems will begin simulteneously in next week's issue of the Forum.

Governor Olson Asks Criminal Prosecution In Banco Stock Sales

Criminal prosecution of "certain individuals" connected with the Northwest Bancorporation was urged Saturday by Gov. Olson.

His recommendation followed his examination of transcripts and exhibits in the investigation of the Banco stock sales activities by the state commerce commission.

In a letter to Paul Skahen, state commissioner of securities, and member of the commerce commission investigating the sales, the governor said: "There is sufficient evidence available to justify criminal proceedings."

He urged that Mr. Skahen turn over the evidence and transcripts to various county attorneys and the United States district attorney for criminal action.

It is understood that Ed. J. Goff, Hennepin county attorney, already has asked for legal help from Mr. Skahen and Harry H. Peterson, attorney general.

Hail and Wind Causes Havoc To Crops Over a Wide Area

Barns are Wrecked by Tornado Like Wind Near Village Of Plummer

Neon Signs and Greenhouses In the City are Badly Wrecked

A severe hail storm caused extensive damage to crops, gardens and other property here Sunday afternoon. The storm which struck this city at about 4:40 P. M., lasted about half an hour during which time hail, some of which were the size of hens eggs, fell. Gardens and orchards in the city were badly damaged and the electric signs in the city were all damaged to a great extent.

Severe damage to crops in the neighboring farming sections also resulted. Some nearest the city reporting almost complete loss of the crop, while others farther removed report damage of from ten per cent to seventy-five per cent of the crop.

Garage roofs in all parts of the city were badly damaged and hundreds of cars had the tops riddled with holes. The skylights of the Thief River Falls Green Houses were completely smashed, the hail taking a toll of 1420 lights. The garden was destroyed also there. Another garden operated by the same firm, near the sanatorium, south of the city suffered no damage. The Riverside Greenhouses report 27 broken lights and only slight damage to the gardens.

The storm which struck from the northwest covered a swath from about six miles west of town, about the same distance north and several miles east. Partial damage was reported as far south as six miles from the city. No wind accompanied the hail here.

Severe wind damage is reported from Plummer where two barns were demolished. On the "Ed Johnson" farm just north of Plummer the barn was torn down and several trees were uprooted and on the Peter Morrissette farm, west of Plummer the barn is reported to have been destroyed. No hail is reported from that vicinity.

Hail showers fell in other widely seperated area according to reports. Stephen and Argyle report heavy hail and wind damage and hail showers without wind are reported from town of Hickory, in the east end of the county.

Three seperate showers fell in the city, the second hitting about six o'clock or shortly after. This lasted only a few minutes and the hail was not as large as the first shower. A half hour later a third and heavier shower fell at which time the ground became completely covered with the hail which this time was about the size of hazelnuts. A heavy downpour of rain accompanying the hail taxed the storm sewers to capacity.

LARGE CROWDS ATTEND ANNUAL ASSEMBLY SUN.

Dr. Boe, President of St. Olaf Delivers Two Stirring Addresses

The annual meeting of the Northwest Lutheran Assembly at Squaw Point Sunday was reported by Rev. R. M. Fjelstad, president of the assembly, as the best meeting ever held.

Dr. L. W. Boe, president of the St. Olaf college at Northfield, spoke both in the morning and afternoon sessions. In his morning address, Dr. Boe drew a comparison between the people of Israel in the Promised Land and the settlements of America, pointing out that just as God warned people then that turning aside and worshiping strange Gods works ruination, so are similar warnings necessary if America is to enjoy happiness and prosperity.

Among other things, Dr. Boe spoke of the future of the church in his afternoon address. He said that no system of government or any change of the present system is established on a basic quality, and reverence for God is the sure guarantee to correct the evils of the present day. The only effective remedy is the will to do right on the part of the people.

Musical selections were presented by the Holt community band, the North Star college quartette of Warren, and the men's chorus of the Trinity Lutheran church.

The following were re-elected to succeed themselves as officers of the organization: Rev. R. M. Fjelstad, President; M. N. Peterson of Greenbush, Vice-President; John Wold, Secretary; and N. A. Nelson, Treasurer

Miss Theresa Soderberg left Friday for Duluth where she will spend a week visiting with friends.

Miss Florence Mellem of Rosewood spent Thursday shopping here.

GOVERNOR LANGER GETS PRISON TERM

Penalty is Imposed the Day After He Wins Nomination for Another Term.

Fargo, N. D.—Governor William Langer was sentenced to 18 months in prison and fined $10,000 by Federal Judge Andrew Miller in United States District Court. Langer was convicted of conspiracy to defraud the United States government.

Nominated as republican candidate for governor the day before, Langer faced federal court as a convicted defendent in a criminal case. Langer was convicted with four other defendants two weeks ago of soliciting funds from federal relief workers for maintenance of "The Leader," an administration newspaper. Langer was renominated for governor in a primary election that gave him the call by landslide preportions. Still receiving congratulations from all parts of the state, Langer walked into federal court in Fargo to hear himself ordered to a federa prison for 18 months. The conviction and sentence creates a situation absolutely unprecedented in northwest history. Still governor of the state and renominated for that office, Langer faces confinement in a penal institution unless a higher court intervenes and reverses the conviction.

Sentences of 13 months and fines of $3,000 each were imposed on Oscar Chaput, business manager of the Leader; Frank Vogel, state highway commissioner and R. A. Kinzer, Sr., former executive secretary of the federal emergency relief committee for North Dakota. Harold McDonald, also a co-defendant, was given four months in the Bismarck jail, Judge Miller remarked in passing sentence, that the lighter penalty was imposed because of the defendant's youth and the fact that he was merely a hired agent.

Then they gagged and bound the three victims.

A. A. A. To Last Two More Years

D.—A further development and expansion of the general plan of controlled production of farm crops and livestock, with continued and possibly increasing processing taxes to pay the expense, is the program to which the administration is going to pin its faith and stake its reputation for farm relief leadership in 1935 and 1936, Rexford G. Tugwell, undersecretary of agriculture, told South Dakota farmers here.

FACTORS IN HOG MARKETING FAVOR A RISE IN PRICES

Underlying factors in influencing prices of hogs and the probable trend of the hog market are gradually becoming more favorable, says the weekly market bulletin issued by the Central Co-Operative Association at South St. Paul. Hog prices have scored a big gain during the past week and the top at $4.80 last Thursday was $1.60 above the June 1 top. The market is well above the corresponding level a year ago.

Among the factors favorably influencing prices are:

1. Reduction in supply of pork due to government slaughter of pigs and piggy sows last year.

2. A reduction of 8% in spring farrowing and 3% reduction last fall.

3. Distribution of hundreds of thousands of hogs, bought by the government,, to relief agencies (this pork went to people who would have consumed no pork thus keeping it out of storage.)

4. Reduction of pork poundage due to liquidation of light weight and unfattened hogs because of drouth and high prices for feeds (this indicates prospective smaller supplies this summer.)

5. Average weight of hogs marketed is running about 5% less than a year ago. This is equivalent to a similar reduction in a number of hogs.

6. Exports of pork from the U. S. for the first half of the marketing year (October 1 to April 1) were 35 per cent larger than last year (to offset part of this lard exports for the same period were 14 per cent smaller.

7. Wholesale prices of pork are higher—pork lows being quoted 60 per cent above a year ago.

8. Smaller storage stocks of pork.

The latter factor is a big one in which all hog producers should be vitally interested. Storage holdings in the U. S. on June 1 were 642 million pounds this year compared to 656 million pounds on May 1, and 670 million pounds a year ago. The June 1 five-year average was 768 million pounds. Except for 1926 the June 1 storage of pork was smaller than for many years.

Lard stocks are quite different. On June 1 this year, total lard in storage amounted to 182 million pounds on May 1 the total 179 million pounds and a year ago 111 million pounds. The five-year average for June 1 was 128 million pounds.

If the statistical position of lard were as favorable as that of pork the hog outlook would be regarded as highly favorable.

STATE TOURIST PLANS TO ATTRACT VISITORS, DRAFTED

The Come-toMinesota club announced its program today to center nation-wide attention to the land of 10,000 lakes through an intensive advertising campaign to attract tourists, business men, permanent residents and industry on an all-year basis.

The program has won acclaim as the greatest in the state's history and is widely sponsored and indorsed by advertising, merchandising and publicity experts, hotel and resort owners and operators, civic groups, newspaper men, manufacturers, wholesalers, professional men, theater owners, public utility executives, the clergy, state and city officials, bankers, oil men and other representative business executives.

More than $100,000,000 annually was estimated as formerly derived through tourist trade alone. Competition from other states together with the withdrawal by the state legislature of the $50,000 annual advertising fund formerly granted the 10,000 Lake association, with the understanding that an equal amount be raised through business channels, has had its effect.

Come-to-Minnesota club program will replace this loss, it was said. Business interests are supporting this movement. The tourist's dollar is valued more than ever before as a definite community asset.

32 CITIES ARE ORGANIZED IN PUBLIC SAFETY PROGRAM

With nearly 100 per cent organiza- of 32 cities in the state, in the Public Safety Educational Program of the State Emergency Relief Administration, C. H. Zealand, director of the Safety Division, is optimistic of activities that will be directed by local safety committees throughout the state in an effort to realize the "No-accident" objective on the current holiday, the 4th of July.

In response to the city and county plan of drawing public officials, members of automobile clubs, members of civic clubs, and representatives of business organizations having an interest in public safety, into city and county committees, to put a stop to the increasing traffic fatalities in the state, not only have the cities rallied to the support of the project but the counties are nearly two-thirls organized.

MILLWAUKEE MAYOR SENDS STINGING REBUKE TO WAY, PUBLIC UTILITY MAGNATE

Mayor Daniel W. Hoan has replied in stinging terms to a letter sent to him and to officials of Milwaukee's suburbs and to the Wisconsin public service commission by S. B. Way, president of the Electric Co., in which Way announced that he holds the municipalities liable for injuries to employees and damage to property incurred in the present strike.

Mayor Hoan, in his letter to Way, expressed doubt that the taxpayers of Milwaukee can be held liable for property damage, and scored Way for his entire attitude.

Following is Mayor Hoan's reply in full:

Real Cause of Disturbance

"Up to this moment, I have had no occasion to talk to anyone connected with the labor controversy at your plant. Your communication, just received, necessitates that I now speak forth plainly.

"You notified me that your company will hold the city of Milwaukee liable pursuant to law, for any and all injury to its property and its employes caused by mobs and riot.

"While I am not so certain of your ability to hold our city's taxpayers responsible under the circumstances, I write this in the hope of fixing and exposing the real cause of the distubance so as to prevent further depredations.

Denounces Company Arrogance

I now notify you and through you, the most powerful trust the world has ever known, which you represent, that you alone are solely responsible for the riots that have so far blotched the good name of this city. During my entire tenure as mayor, it has been a source of pride and joy that we were virtually without violence in time of strike. Now our fair city is besmirched with a record of violent disorder.

"Your attitude toward your employes, our people, our city, our federal government, is more arrogant than that of any ruler in the world. Not since the days of George III of England has any ruler successfully defied our nation. But you have impudently refused to comply with the reasonable request of the representatives of the United States government until Uncle Sam himself has been compelled to rebuke the insolence by removing your Blue Eagles. You are now witnessing the harvest of pent up public indignation you yourself have aroused.

Operators Refuse Arbitration

"It was your company that sponsored the company union called the E. M. B. A. Now in the face of a federal government request to negotiate settlement of the strike, an alleged contract with this company union is paraded as an obstacle you cannot break. Is it possible that you really think the people of Milwaukee are so dumb as to belive you cannot now induce this organization to comply with an honest and sincere request of the president's representative in the face of the crisis you have brought on?

"Mr. Way, in the name of our city, and all that is fair and decent, in the interest of preserving peace and order, I urge you to temporarily set aside your pride and arrogance and cooperate with the federal government in bringing this strike to a speedy end. I further notify you that the caging of your street cars with fence wire is in fact acting as an open invitation to violence and their operation is provocative of unlawful assemblage and should cease forthwith."

"Signed, Daniel W. Hoan, Mayor."

EAR INFECTIONS FLOURISH IN SWIMMING TIME

Care of the ears should be an important part of everybody's precautions for a pleasant summer, in the opinion of the Public Health Education Committe of the Minnesota State Medical Association.

Several serious ear infections flourish especially during the swimming months, acording to the bulletin.

One is boils in the outer ear canal generally caused by irritation and injury. It may happen as a result of digging into the ear with an ear spoon, hairpin, loop, matchead or some such instrument; or it may result from irritation caused by water—ocean, lake or swimming pool water. The appearance of any such irritation is the sign for the swimmer to keep his head out of the water until it is healed.

Another is blocking the external ear with wax. The water swells the wax until the eardrum is entirely cut off. The only safe treatment in this case is proper douching of the ear. Trying to remove the wax by instruments in the hands of an amateur is all to likely to cause ferunculus or even rupture of the eardrum.

Rupture of the eardrum with subsequent serious middle ear infection may happen as a result of diving or jumping from great heights into the water, too, but middle ear infection and rupture much more frequently comes through the Eustachian tube from an infected nasal sinus or infected tonsils or adenoids, or from an acute cold.

Everybody should be careful not to "snuffle" water up through the nose into the postnasal passages and in to the ears where it can and does start unpleasant infections. And people who are already suffering from colds or any infection should never get their heads under water. Water is almost sure to make the trouble worse.

EFFORTS ARE MADE TO MAKE THIS AN ACCIDENTLESS 4TH

"Death Takes No Holiday!"

This is the thought of the Safety Division of the State Emergency Relief Administration, under the direction of C. H. Zealand, is making the keynote of the state-wide effort for the prevention of traffic accidents on the Fourth of July.

"Cut the accident to zero, as far as the state of Minnesota is concerned," is the urge of the Safety Division of the SERA to motor vehicle drivers and pedestrians of the state.

Disobeying traffic regulations is the greatest cause of accidents, the Safety Division points out.

Among the unsafe driving practices which are listed by the Safety Division of the SERA are improper passing, operation of cars on the wrong side of the road, lack of caution on curves, hills and other places where vision is obscured; disregard of traffic signals; entering upon or crossing arterial highways without stopping as commanded by highway STOP signs; driving cars with faulty mechanism, and all reckless driving practices.

COACHES ENTERED IN GUILD COMPETITION TO BE JUDGED AH CENTURY OF PROGRESS

Model Napoleonic coaches submitted by American youths in the 1934 Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild competition will be judged in the General Motors Building at A Century of Progress Exposition, Chicago, beginning late next month, it is announced in the June issue of "The Guildsman," official magazine of the educational foundation.

"The 'Windy City' will be the Mecca of literally millions of persons in the next few months," the publication says. "Since the judging of the miniature Napoleonic coaches always has been of widespread interest. it finally was decided that in fairness to the public it should be held at the world's fair, where many more would be able to witness it than would be posible otherwise."

"This decision does not affect the closing date. All models, to be considered for honors, must be shipped by their builders not later than midnight of Saturday, July 21, and we should like to caution entrants once again to determine the closing hour of their local express agencies."

Preliminary judging of models submitted by Canadian boys will be held simultaneously at the Royal York hotel in Toronto, according to the magazine.

"Arrangements have been concluded with the management of the hotel to throw open one of the rooms on the mezzanine floor so the public may have an opportunity of inspecting the handicraft of boys from all parts of the Dominon during the last 10 days of July, the period which the judges will be at works," it states.

Fifty-one thousand dollars in university scholarships are being offered by the Guild this year to the youths submitting the best coach models. There are six $5,000, six $1,000 and six $500 awards. Sixteen of them will go to the winners in the United States, and the remaider to those in Canada.

GOVERNOR LANGER GETS PRISON TERM

Penalty is Imposed the Day After He Wins Nomination for Another Term.

Fargo, N. D.—Governor William Langer was sentenced to 18 months in prison and fined $10,000 by Federal Judge Andrew Miller in United States District Court. Langer was convicted of conspiracy to defraud the United States government.

Nominated as republican candidate for governor the day before, Langer faced federal court as a convicted defendent in a criminal case. Langer was convicted with four other defendants two weeks ago of soliciting funds from federal relief workers for maintenance of "The Leader," an administration newspaper. Langer was renominated for governor in a primary election that gave him the call by landslide proportions. Still receiving congratulations from all parts of the state, Langer walked into federal court in Fargo to hear himself ordered to a federa prison for 18 months. The conviction and sentence creates a situation absolutely unprecedented in northwest history. Still governor of the state and renominated for that office, Langer faces confinement in a penal institution unless a higher court intervenes and reverses the conviction.

Sentences of 13 months and fines of $3,000 each were imposed on Oscar Chaput, business manager of the Leader; Frank Vogel, state highway commissioner and R. A. Kinzer, Sr., former executive secretary of the federal emergency relief committee for North Dakota. Harold McDonald, also a co-defendant, was given four months in the Bismarck jail, Judge Miller remarked in passing sentence, that the lighter penalty was imposed because of the defendant's youth and the fact that he was merely a hired agent.

Bandits Loot Kellogg, Minnesota

Kellogg, Minn.—Two armed bandits leisurely looted business places here after binding and gagging the town marshal, Tom Gilchrist, 65, and two women. Gilchrist was making his rounds when a car stopped beside him. Two men leaped from the car and seized Gilchrist's gun. They forced him to accompany them to a restaurant, where Miss Grace La Salle and her grandmotrer, Mrs. Anna Geider, were aroused and compelled to open the restaurant. Then they gagged and bound the three victims.

A. A. A. To Last Two More Years

Brookings, S. D.—A further development and expansion of the general plan of controlled production of farm crops and livestock, with continued and possibly increasing processing taxes to pay the expense, is the program to which the administration is going to pin its faith and stake its reputation for farm relief leadership in 1935 and 1936, Rexford G. Tugwell, undersecretary of agriculture, told South Dakota farmers here.

Roosevelt Signs Farm Moratorium

Washington—More than a billion and a quarter of farm mortgage debt in the four spring wheat states, including $530,025,000 in the state of Minnesota, became subject to a five-year motarorium when President Franklin D. Roosevelt approved the Frazier-Lemke act, which provides machinery for scaling down all farm debts, personal and real, and lowering the interest to 1 per cent.

Army Orders 81 Bombers, 280 Engines

Martin company of Baltimore for 81 bombing planes and a $1,705,733 contract was given the Wright Aeronautical Corporation of Paterson, N. J., for 280 airplane engines.

FACTORS IN HOG MARKETING FAVOR A RISE IN PRICES

Underlying factors in influencing prices of hogs and the probable trend of the hog market are gradually becoming more favorable, says the weekly market bulletin issued by the Central Co-Operative Association at South St. Paul. Hog prices have scored a big gain during the past week and the top at $4.80 last Thursday was $1.60 above the June 1 top. The market is well above the corresponding level a year ago.

Among the factors favorably influencing prices are:

1. Reduction in supply of pork due to government slaughter of pigs and piggy sows last year.
2. A reduction of 8% in spring farrowing and 3% reduction last fall.
3. Distribution of hundreds of thousands of hogs, bought by the government,, to relief agencies (this pork went to people who would have consumed no pork thus keeping it out of storage.)
4. Reduction of pork poundage due to liquidation of light weight and unfattened hogs because of drouth and high prices for feeds (this indicates prospective smaller supplies this summer.)
5. Average weight of hogs marketed is running about 5% less than a year ago. This is equivalent to a similar reduction in a number of hogs.
6. Exports of pork from the U. S. for the first half of the marketing year (October 1 to April 1) were 35 per cent larger than last year (to offset part of this lard exports for the same period were 14 per cent smaller.
7. Wholesale prices of pork are higher—pork lows being quoted 60 per cent above a year ago.
8. Smaller storage stocks of pork.

The latter factor is a big one in which all hog producers should be vitally interested. Storage holdings in the U. S. on June 1 were 642 million pounds this year compared to 656 million pounds on May 1, and 670 million pounds a year ago. The June 1 five-year average was 768 million pounds. Except for 1926 the June 1 storage of pork was smaller than for many years.

Lard stocks are quite different. On June 1 this year, total lard in storage amounted to 182 million pounds on May 1 the total 179 million pounds and a year ago 111 million pounds. The five-year average for June 1 was 128 million pounds.

If the statistical position of lard were as favorable as that of pork the hog outlook would be regarded as highly favorable.

STATE TOURIST PLANS TO ATTRACT VISITORS DRAFTED

The Come-toMinesota club announced its program today to center nation-wide attention to the land of 10,000 lakes through an intensive advertising campaign to attract tourists, business men, permanent residents and industry on an all-year basis.

The program has won acclaim as the greatest in the state's history and is widely sponsored and indorsed by advertising, merchandising and publicity experts, hotel and resort owners and operators, civic groups, newspaper men, manufacturers, wholesalers, professional men, theater owners, public utility executives, the clergy, state and city officials, bankers, oil men and other representative business executives.

More than $100,000,000 annually was estimated as formerly derived through tourist trade alone. Competition from other states together with the withdrawal by the state legislature of the $50,000 annual advertising fund formerly granted the 10,000 Lake association, with the understanding that an equal amount be raised through business channels, has had its effect.

Come-to-Minnesota club program will replace this loss, it was said. Business interests are supporting this movement. The tourist's dollar is valued more than ever before as a definite community asset.

32 CITIES ARE ORGANIZED IN PUBLIC SAFETY PROGRAM

With nearly 100 per cent organization of 32 cities in the state, in the Public Safety Educational Program of the State Emergency Relief Administration, C. H. Zealand, director of the Safety Division, is optimistic of activities that will be directed by local safety committees throughout the state in an effort to realize the "No-accident" objective on the current holiday, the 4th of July.

In response to the city and county plan of drawing public officials, members of automobile clubs, members of civic clubs, and representatives of business organizations having an interest in public safety, into city and county committees, to put a stop to the increasing traffic fatalities in the state, not only have the cities rallied to the support of the project but the counties are nearly two-thirls organized.

RAIL PROFITS INCREASE THREE TIMES REPORT SHOWS

WASHINGTON (FP)— Railroad profits in the first four months of 1934 increased more than 168% over the similar period of 1933, the Bureau of Railway Economics reported June 6.

MILLWAUKEE MAYOR SENDS STINGING REBUKE TO WAY, PUBLIC UTILITY MAGNATE

Mayor Daniel W. Hoan has replied in stinging terms to a letter sent to him and to officials of Milwaukee's suburbs and to the Wisconsin public service commission by S. B. Way, president of the Electric Co., in which Way announced that he holds the municipalities liable for injuries to employees and damage to property incurred in the present strike.

Mayor Hoan, in his letter to Way, expressed doubt that the taxpayers of Milwaukee can be held liable for property damage, and scored Way for his entire attitude.

Following is Mayor Hoan's reply in full:

Real Cause of Disturbance

"Up to this moment, I have had no occasion to talk to anyone connected with the labor controversy at your plant. Your communication, just received, necessitates that I now speak forth plainly.

"You notified me that your company will hold the city of Milwaukee liable pursuant to law, for any and all injury to its property and its employes caused by mobs and riot.

"While I am not so certain of your ability to hold our city's taxpayers responsible under the circumstances, I write this in the hope of fixing and exposing the real cause of the distubance so as to prevent further depredations.

Denounces Company Arrogance

I now notify you and through you, the most powerful trust the world has ever known, which you represent, that you alone are solely responsible for the riots that have so far blotched the good name of this city. During my entire tenure as mayor, it has been a source of pride and joy that we were virtually without violence in time of strike. Now our fair city is besmirched with a record of violent disorder.

"Your attitude toward your employes, our people, our city, our federal government, is more arrogant than that of any ruler in the world. Not, since the days of George III of England has any ruler successfully defied our nation. But you have impudently refused to comply with the reasonable request of the representatives of the United States government until Uncle Sam himself has been compelled to rebuke the insolence by removing your Blue Eagles. You are now witnessing the harvest of pent up public indignation you yourself have aroused.

Operators Refuse Arbitration

"It was your company that sponsored the company union called the E. M. B. A. Now in the face of a federal government request to negotiate settlement of the strike, an alleged contract with this company union is paraded as an obstacle you cannot break. Is it possible that you really think the people of Milwaukee are so dumb as to belive you cannot now induce this organization to comply with an honest and sincere request of the president's representative in the face of the crisis you have brought on?

"Mr. Way, in the name of our city, and all that is fair and decent, in the interest of preserving peace and order, I urge you to temporarily set aside your pride and arrogance and cooperate with the federal government in bringing this strike to a speedy end. I further notify you that the caging of your street cars with fence wire is in fact acting as an open invitation to violence and their operation is provocative of unlawful assemblage and should cease forthwith."

"Signed, Daniel W. Hoan, Mayor."

EAR INFECTIONS FLOURISH IN SWIMMING TIME

Care of the ears should be an important part of everybody's precautions for a pleasant summer, in the opinion of the Public Health Education Committe of the Minnesota State Medical Association.

Several serious ear infections flourish especially during the swimming months, acording to the bulletin.

One is boils in the outer ear canal generally caused by irritation and injury. It may happen as a result of digging into the ear with an ear spoon, hairpin, loop, matchead or some such instrument; or it may result from irritation caused by water —ocean, lake or swimming pool water. The appearance of any such irritation is the sign for the swimmer to keep his head out of the water until it is healed.

Another is blocking the external ear with wax. The water swells the wax until the eardrum is entirely cut off. The only safe treatment in this case is proper douching of the ear. Trying to remove the wax by instruments in the hands of an amateur is all to likely to cause ferunculus or even rupture of the eardrum.

Rupture of the eardrum with subsequent serious middle ear infection may happen as a result of diving or jumping from great heights into the water, too, but middle ear infection and rupture much more frequently comes through the Eustachian tube from an infected nasal sinus or infected tonsils or adenoids, or from an acute cold.

Everybody should be careful not to "snuffle" water up through the nose into the postnasal passages and in to the ears where it can and does start unpleasant infections. And people who are already suffering from colds or any infection should never get their heads under water. Water is almost sure to make the trouble worse.

EFFORTS ARE MADE TO MAKE THIS AN ACCIDENTLESS 4TH

"Death Takes No Holiday!"

This is the thought of the Safety Division of the State Emergency Relief Administration, under the direction of C. H. Zealand, is making the keynote of the state-wide effort for the prevention of traffic accidents on the Fourth of July.

"Cut the accident to zero, as far as the state of Minnesota is concerned," is the urge of the Safety Division of the SERA to motor vehicle drivers and pedestrians of the state.

Disobeying traffic regulations is the greatest cause of accidents, the Safety Division points out.

Among the unsafe driving practices which are listed by the Safety Division of the SERA are improper passing, operation of cars on the wrong side of the road, lack of caution on curves, hills and other places where vision is obscured; disregard of traffic signals; entering upon or crossing arterial highways without stopping as commanded by highway STOP signs; driving cars with faulty mechanism, and all reckless driving practices.

COACHES ENTERED IN GUILD COMPETITION TO BE JUDGED AH CENTURY OF PROGRESS

Model Napoleonic coaches submitted by American youths in the 1934 Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild competition will be judged in the General Motors Building at A Century of Progress Exposition, Chicago, beginning late next month, it is announced in the June issue of "The Guildsman," official magazine of the educational foundation.

"The 'Windy City' will be the Mecca of literally millions of persons in the next few months," the publication says. "Since the judging of the miniature Napoleonic coaches always has been of widespread interest, it finally was decided that in fairness to the public it should be held at the world's fair, where many more would be able to witness it than would be posible otherwise."

"This decision does not affect the closing date. All models, to be considered for honors, must be shipped by their builders not later than midnight of Saturday, July 21, and we should like to caution entrants once again to determine the closing hour of their local express agencies."

Preliminary judging of models submitted by Canadian boys will be held simultaneously at the Royal York hotel in Toronto, according to the magazine.

"Arrangements have been concluded with the management of the hotel to throw open one of the rooms on the mezzanine floor so the public may have an opportunity of inspecting the handicraft of boys from all parts of the Dominon during the last 10 days of July, the period which the judges will be at works," it states.

Fifty-one thousand dollars in university scholarships are being offered by the Guild this year to the youths submitting the best coach models. There are six $5,000, six $1,000 and six $500 awards. Sixteen of them will go to the winners in the United States, and the remaider to those in Canada.

Semi-Annual Political Review Shows Some Progress is Being Made but Williams Sees Fascist Tendencies

"A political review by a progressive of the first half of the year 1934 indicates that progress has been made in plugging up the holes of the sinking ship, 'Capitalism,' but it is not clear that a long range program has been entered upon that will insure a new ship, 'Permanent and Genuine Prosperity'," declares Howard Y. Williams of St. Paul, national director of the League for Independent Polotical Action, in his semi annual review released from the national offices of the League at 209 Baltimore Building, St. Paul.

"In these six months the government has poured out in emergency expediture alone over three billion dollars at the rate of $470,000,000 a month. Only this priming of the pump has kept the ship afloat. She must otherwise have sunk. The C. W. A., the Home Owners Loan Act, the restoration of 10% of the Federal pay cut, the liberalized regulations governing veteran's pensions, the retirement act for the railroad employees and relief for farmers and the unemployed have been the methods used.

"Also, on the favorable side of the political ledger for the first half of 1934 are stock exchange regulation, the opening up of air-mail contracts, the National Housing Act, the special commission for Federal regulation of the telephone, telegraph and radio, the Arms Embargo Act, the Senate investigation of munition makers, the plan for reciprocal tariff agreements, the splendid development of the Tennesee Valley Authority, and the Supreme Court decision upholding the Minnesota moratorium law.

"Other advances worthy of notice are the launching of the Progressive Party in Wisconsin, the adoption by the Minnesota Farmer-Labor party of a platform offering an adequate solution of the present depression, the act of the University of Minnesota regents making military drill optional and not compulsory, the first apointment of a woman to a Federal judgeship in the person of Florence Allen of Ohio, and the nomination of another able women, Josephine Roche, as Democratic candidate for governor of Colorado.

"On the dark side of the ledger was the passage of the Vinson Bill which will result in naval rivalry, the disintegration of our educational system, the emasculation of the Tugwell Bill regulating the advertising and sale of medicines and food, the lack of any well-coordinated and adequate system for administering relief and the flaunting by big business of the section 7a of N. R. A. covering collective bargaining resulting in repression of workers and chiseling by employers.

"In International affairs one is encouraged by the act offering independence to the Philippines; the exit of American imperialism in Cuba, Haiti and San Domingo, the crumbling of Nazi prestige in Germany, and the capturing of the London County Council with a majority of 14 seats by the British Labor party. One regrets that in these six months Fascism has captured Austria, Latvia and Bulgaria. Mussolini and Hitler met to strengthen fascist plans. War still goes on between Bolivia and Paraguay.

"These six months indicate that the tendencies toward Fascism in this country and throughout the world are very strong. The next half of 1934 ought to indicate whether President Roosevelt has a long-time program that is adequate to meet the present crisis or whether America is drifting toward chaos and fascism. These next six months ought also to tell whether other democratic countries like Great Britain and France can rise to the emergency in the presence of an outworn economic system and offer the people a throughgoing solution, or whether these strongly democratic nations will follow the rest of Europe into the next stage of capitalism, state capitalism, fascism. Forces are at work in all these democratic countries that if properly suported by the voters will prevent fascism and make possible a cooperative democracy."

Semi-Annual Political Review Shows Some Progress is Being Made but Williams Sees Fascist Tendencies

"A political review by a progressive of the first half of the year 1934 indicates that progress has been made in plugging up the holes of the sinking ship, 'Capitalism,' but it is not clear that a long range program has been entered upon that will insure a new ship, 'Permanent and Genuine Prosperity'," declares Howard Y. Williams of St. Paul, national director of the League for Independent Polotical Action, in his semi annual review released from the national offices of the League at 209 Baltimore Building, St. Paul.

"In these six months the government has poured out in emergency expediture alone over three billion dollars at the rate of $470,000,000 a month. Only this priming of the pump has kept the ship afloat. She must otherwise have sunk. The C. W. A., the Home Owners Loan Act, the restoration of 10% of the Federal pay cut, the liberalized regulations governing veteran's pensions, the retirement act for the railroad employees and relief for farmers and the unemployed have been the methods used.

"Also, on the favorable side of the political ledger for the first half of 1934 are stock exchange regulation, the opening up of air-mail contracts, the National Housing Act, the special commission for Federal regulation of the telephone, telegraph and radio, the Arms Embargo Act, the Senate investigation of munition makers, the plan for reciprocal tariff agreements, the splendid development of the Tennesee Valley Authority, and the Supreme Court decision upholding the Minnesota moratorium law.

"Other advances worthy of notice are the launching of the Progressive Party in Wisconsin, the adoption by the Minnesota Farmer-Labor party of a platform offering an adequate solution of the present depression, the act of the University of Minnesota regents making military drill optional and not compulsory, the first apointment of a woman to a Federal judgeship in the person of Florence Allen of Ohio, and the nomination of another able women, Josephine Roche, as Democratic candidate for governor of Colorado.

"On the dark side of the ledger was the passage of the Vinson Bill which will result in naval rivalry, the disintegration of our educational system, the emasculation of the Tugwell Bill regulating the advertising and sale of medicines and food, the lack of any well-coordinated and adequate system for administering relief and the flaunting by big business of the section 7a of N. R. A. covering collective bargaining resulting in repression of workers and chiseling by employers.

"In international affairs one is encouraged by the act offering independence to the Philippines, the exit of American imperialism in Cuba, Haiti and San Domingo, the crumbling of Nazi prestige in Germany, and the capturing of the London County Council with a majority of 14 seats by the British Labor party. One regrets that in these six months Fascism has captured Austria, Latvia and Bulgaria. Mussolini and Hitler met to strengthen fascist plans. War still goes on between Bolivia and Paraguay.

"These six months indicate that the tendencies toward Fascism in this country and throughout the world are very strong. The next half of 1934 ought to indicate whether President Roosevelt has a long-time program that is adequate to meet the present crisis or whether America is drifting toward chaos and fascism. These next six months ought also to tell whether other democratic countries like Great Britain and France can rise to the emergency in the presence of an outworn economic system and offer the people a throughgoing solution, or whether these strongly democratic nations will follow the rest of Europe into the next stage of capitalism, state capitalism, fascism. Forces are at work in all these democratic countries that if properly suported by the voters will prevent fascism and make possible a cooperative democracy."

ROOSEVELT SIGNS THE FRAZIER-LEMKE BILL

After a week of conflicting reports out of Washington, we are finally assured that Roosevelt has signed the Frazier-Lemke Farm Moratorium bill. It seems that the banks and insurance companies put a lot of pressure on the president to get him to veto this bill. It is also very evident that his personal inclination was to kill it. This is quite in line with the president's actions all thru the year and a half of his administration. He has apparently at all times shown a great respect for the wishes of the banking crowd. His opposition to inflation and his policy of issuing bonds for every conceivable purpose proves that.

This time it seems that he has taken the advice of Secretary Morgenthau of the treasury and signed this bill. No doubt it is a good political move and will be of some assistance to democratic candidates in the forthcoming campaign. A purpose which probably was in his mind when he yielded to the demand from the farming sections of the country and signed the measure. However the farmers of the country will not forget that the Frazier bill for refinancing of farm debts was definitely side-tracked thru the president's use of his influence with members of congress.

Just how much good the measure will do the farmers can not as yet be estimated. It would appear that for those who avail themselves of its provisions it will be as good as inflation. It would seem that whether the debts are scaled down or the dollar is scaled up would amount to the same thing so far as the top-heavy debt structure is concerned. Possibly this bill will serve the purpose better than inflation and will save the country some of the evils which would be bound to follow inflation.

It should be a source of a great deal of satisfaction to the North Dakota progressives and the Minnesota farmer-labor members of congress that they were able to crowd this measure thru. Senator Shipstead did Yoeman service on the floor of the senate in behalf of this bill and turned back the attacks made upon it by the representatives of eastern capital with a fine mastery of the art of debate. Altho it was reluctantly signed by a democratic president the farmers should bear in mind that any benefits which may acrue to them from this law is as a result of the Non-Partisan League-Farmer-Labor forces in the national congress.

We have not yet been able to procure a copy of this law but just as soon as one is available we shall publish a review of the measure and its provisions.

FUNDS THAT ARE SACRED AND FUNDS THAT ARE NOT

We heard a man state the other day, that he thought the federal government rather inconsistent when it would railroad Governor Langer of North Dakota for alleged misappropriation of $140 of federal funds and yet failed to even ask for an indictment of the Morgans and the Mellons who by their own admission stole millions due the government in income taxes. The gentleman was promptly informed by a "New Dealer" standing by, that "this is different, this money was intended for the relief of the jobless, the destitute and the hungry."

This raises the question in our mind, if it is more heinous to steal "two bits" out of the collection plate than to pilfer a five-spot, twenty-five cents of which was intended for the collection, from a person's pocket.

We met Langer back in 1917, when he was attorney general of North Dakota and he impressed us as a hard headed man; proud, and a lover of power and political prestige. But it would be hard to convince us that he would stoop to grafting a petty $140. As governor of the state of North Dakota, he could certainly make it worth more than that if he was inclined to be crooked. Evidently the voters of North Dakota feel the same way about it, if their vote last Tuesday is any criterion.

However there is nothing inconsistent about the actions of the administration in this instance. It is the history of the old parties and their elected officials that they elevate to high places those who steal millions while they clap the man who steals a loaf of bread in the "jug." Many farmers found it was "bad medicine" to try to circumvent the barley bread diet by laying in a stock of white flour during the war, but we are still waiting to hear of an indictment for the graft which resulted in selling the government two million branding irons with which to brand a hundred thousand horses.

The voters of Minnesota and of North Dakota have been fooled by the old parties' smoke screens a good many times in the past, but we are inclined to believe that it was about the last time in 1932, when these states went so overwhelmingly into the Roosevelt column. The AAA and NRA fizzles coupled with the Langer Deal will probably make it necessary to use a microscope to find Roosevelt votes in North Dakota in 1936, and if the democrats want to see a man with the plain old Scandinavian name "Olson" succeed Roosevelt in the White House in 1937, they only need to carry their investigation and indictment horseplay into Minnesota. It would be one excellent way of getting their fingers into a buzzsaw.

BY ALL MEANS LET US HAVE THAT FUSION.

Somehow we can't get excited over this talk about fusion. The old parties' ballyhoos are deploring tearfully the fact that their candidates refuse to fuse, now after the election is over, and some of the farmer-labor papers are apparently doing a little worrying over the possibility that they may fuse after all. We note that the same farmer-labor papers that fear fusion of the old parties, are the same ones that worried over "that 'radical' platform."

We didn't fear the platform; we gloried in it. We would still like it if we went down to defeat with it.

We don't fear a fusion of the old parties either. We would like to see it. We enjoy a good fight and we can see plainly that we will not have any such pleasure if the old scallawags fail to get together on one candidate. And boy! How we would enjoy getting them in the same corner so we could clout them both with the same club.

SO-CALLED 'PAINLESS TAX'
(Park Region Echo)

Some publicotions denies that a sales tax will make the little fellow pay as much tax as he does now, arguing that in states having the tax, the levy on groceries and household goods is insignificant.

No doubt it is on a single item, but with a cent or two added to the cost of everything a family buys, at the end of the year it will amount to a large sum. Twenty-five cents a day added to the cost of what a family buys, makes $100 in a year. The thing that puts the sales tax over, is that a person can pay $100 a year taxes without feeling it as much as if he pays only two-bits a day instead of a big round $100 all at once.

The fact remains, however, that the poor man with a large family, carries a far heavier load under a sales tax in proportion to his income than the well-to-do person with a small family. The tax on expensive furniture is the favorite argument of the sales tax booster. But rich people do not refurnish the whole house every year. and they do not spend anywhere near as big a proportion of their income for food and clothing as the poor man with a big family does.

It isn't only the daughters of the rich man who wear silk stockings.

PUMP OUT THE WATER
(The Austin American)

While the President is busy injecting a hypodermic into the industrial system, the railroads gomerrily on, rate schedules practically unchanged since the depression hit and profits of several roads at least, swelling as business spurts.

The roads have done a lot of weeping about the competition offered by trucks. When rates are mentioned they throw up their hands and blame the interstate commerce commission. But—they refuse to wring the water from their bloated stocks.

And this refusal results in the continued high rates. If these same exorbitant rates were not working a hardship on human beings the issue would not be so concerning.

However, there are cases on record which prove the rates are keeping food from the needy. A farmer in Idaho last fall had 300 acres of potatoes. After deducting the cost of digging and of shipping to eastern markets he found he would owe money on the crop.

So the potatoes rotted in the ground. And families went hungry. The farmer received nothing for his crop—the hungry humans had no potatoes—and the empty freights of the railroads rolled on.

Similar instances of such an economy may be cited at random.

It would be well for President Roosevelt to use that Big Stick of his to deflate the stuffed valuations of the railroads. Only by pumping out the water can any reasonable reduction in rates be made, so long as the roads continue to be privately operated.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S FAILURES
(Union Advocate)

Now that congress has adjourned until the first week in January, 1935 it is possible to review some of President Roosevest's failure to redeem pledges made to the laboring class.

The President's absolute failure to use the big whip on his party to put teeth into the WagnerLabor Disputes bill is the oustanding example of his lack of interest in the "forgotten mann" he immortalized during his campaign for election. The National Industrial Recovery Act, supposed to be his greatest contribution to the program of recovery, merely legalized slave wages by industrial codes which gave Labor nothing, fortified capital, set aside the Sherman anti-trust law, gloried rugged individualism and added a few more repairs to the broken-down capitalistic system. Mr. Roosevelt surrendered most of his claim on the affections of organized Labor by giving his blessing to company unionism in the settlement of the automobile strike, and refusing to make a determined fight for the original Wagner bill which would have outlawed these fraudulent company-sponsored unions.

No one can say that congress was not at the beck and call of the President. Itis a democratic controlled body, quick to surrender its legislative authority to the chief executive. But it failed to put a curb ont the powers of the federal courts to invalidate the Norris anti-injunction law. Congress would have acted had the President demanded the same quick and speedy action he ordered when the breweries were demanding the right to make and sell 3.2% beer.

And when President Roosevelt suspended the prevailing wage law a week or two ago, he demonstrated once more his lack of sympathy for the very ones who championed the new deal. This one act sets aside a regulation which compelled contractors on federal projects to pay the prevailing wage on all construction work. The prevailing wage in most cities is the union wage scale..

Labor has been patient to a fault. It has given the President 100% loyalty. It has surrendered its rights on scores of occasions. It has withheld strike action countless times when under the law it was justified in striking. It has been tolerant, sympathetic and willing to yeild to the wishes of the President, all to the end that permanent recovery milht be achieved.

It may be the popular thing to lay all the blame on congress for whatever failures have been recorded, but political honesty demands that the blame be laid on the doorstep of Mr. Roosevelt. Whenever he wanted anything—he got it. The record does not show a single incident wherein he failed to get all that he asked for.

There were a lot of things he failed to demand, and most of them were of vital importance to Labor.

Colorado's new deal for condemned murderers is a little lethal gas house at Canon City, similar to Nevada's at Carson City. Last Friday Colorado gave its new execution chamber its first test.

A 30-year-old ranch hand named William Cody Kelley was led praying into the chamber, bound to a chair and blindfolded. Under his chair was a bucket of sulphuric acid, above this a trough of potassium cyanide "eggs." The guards withdrew and sealed the chamber door. Witnesses peered into a window as guards pulled a lever letting the eggs drop into the bucket. Gray fumes enveloped the man, whose hear almost instantly dropped forward. Later doctors held an autopsy.

"They pronounced the lethel chambel a success," read the Dispatch. Was it?

It may have given the young murderer a quick and painless death. But from society's view point it will prove no more successful as a crime deterrent than have the garrote, the guillotine, the gallows, the electric chair or any of the other instruments of death by which men vainly have tried to scare bad men into becoming good.

ALCHOL DEALERS BITTERLY ASSAIL 'LAWLESS TRAFFIC'
By Gilbert O. Nations

Editor of the Fellowship Forum

Bootleg liquor traffic now handles two-thirds of the alcoholic beverages sold to the American people. Repeal of the Prehibition Amendment is a bonanza to the lawless traffic. That step has given bootlegging the greatest impetus in its history.

Such is the situation as portrayed June 19 by the wholesale liquor dealers of the United States. Representatives of the Alcoholic Beverages Wholesale Industry were then in a national conference at the Mayflower Hotel in the the National Capitol City. They had come to Washington primarily to discuss amendment to the wholesalers and rectifiers codes.

It was stated that 10,000 firms and corporations engaged in the wholesale beer liquor industries were represented. The meeting protested the Government's policy of reselling seized bottled liquors. Complaint was expressed that the Federal authorities were selling at auction by the bottle at Boston large quantities of stuff taken in raids on illict joints.

A New York liquor broker, who declared that he has $250,000 invested in the business, alleged that 18,000.000 gallons of bootleg stuff is now available, and that he was constantly being urged to help market it. He also stated that statistics show a drop in liquor consumption from more than a gallon to one quart per capita from 1917 to the present year when repeal threw open the floodgates.

One delegate showed how present Administration plans simplify the problem of the bootlegger. He displayed a photostatic copy of a sales list of corks, ribbons, labels, wrappers and packages, whereby any authorized brands of wine, whiskey, rum or brandy could be imitated.

What a mess has the wet gang and the Administration elected by them made of the booze trade! How wantonly false were their promises as to bootlegging! How shameless were their falsehoods as to promoting "real temperance-" How absurd their estimates of liquor revenue.

A few weeks ago it was stated on high official authority that more than half of the traffic was handled by bootleggers. Now the wholesalers lament that two-thirds of the business has passed into such hands. Of course sales so handled pay no revenue. Tax receipts from the remaining third are pitiably insignificant.

The Liberal Digest

The following is the conclusion of the Darrow report criticizing the NRA.

BITUMINOUS COAL

Monopolistic practices are marked in this industry because the code was made and its operation directed by agencies connected with the larger coal companies to their advantage and to the disadvantage of the small enterprises.

Testimony was presented to show that the same price had been fixed for coal that contained a large percentage of sulphur and for coal that contained but a small percentage of this same substance; whereas the practical value of the coal was diminished in proportion to the presence of sulphur.

We urge that no time be lost in dismissing for malfeasance in office the entire subdivisional code authority now in control of the northern West Virginia and western Pennsylvania regions, and replacing of them with persons that have a higher conception of social obligations than an impulse to seize every opportunity for personal agrandizement.

We further recommend that the code be amended so that due allowance shall be made in determining prices for difference in quality of coal and for the cost of processing it. Also, that the code be amended as to prevent price changes without at least three days notice and that if a member protests a price change to the divisional authority it shall be held in abeyance pending the determination of the appeal.

In conclusion it is evident that when monopoly utilizes its power to increase prices, it is the consumer alone who must pay for the increases.

While under the codes the cost of living increases, wages have not risen accordingly. The prices charged for some articles the poor should have, as much as the rich, have been in some instances prohibitory.

According to the bulletins of the department of labor, taking the average cost of all foods in 1913 as 100, their cost in April 1933, was 90 and in April 1934, it was 107. Forty-one cities showed in this year an advance in food prices of from 10 to 27 per cent.

Rent, fuel light, house furnishings and other items showed at the end of the year, after the codes had begun to operate, a marked upward tendency.

The fact is generally overlooked or obscured, but the small business enterprise has often a social importance out of proportion to its size, since it is often the consumer's sole barier against complete, grasping, and irresponsible monopoly.

"CHISELER" NOT ALWAYS PUBLIC ENEMY

What is called a "chiseler" likewise may not always be the public enemy he has been represented. Instances arise where he is seen to be strugling to prevent the total absorption of an industry or interest into a monopolistic organization or chain against which the public has no other protection.

What the powerful producer calls fair, his weaker rival fiercely denounces as most unfair; and there is no way to reconcile the difference. All competition is savage, wolfish, and relentless, and can be nothing else. One may as well dream of making war lady-like as of making competition fair.

Big business begins by making it impossible for the small man to survive, and, after he is eliminated, it turns upon the weakest of the common aggessors.

We are reminded of some remarks made by Senator Vance of North Carolina, many years ago, who said that:

"At one time the question was up in the state legislature as to what sort of fish should stock their streams. One enthusiastic member suggested the carp, for the reason that they drove out all other fish, and ended up be eating each other."

The following is the conclusion of a summary of NRA's reply to the charges of the Darrow committee, and was prepared by Donald Richberg, general counsel to NRA.

The review board criticizes a reduced price of coal for railroads without the slightest knowledge of the basis upon which this reduced price was reached at a joint meeting between representatives of the railroads, the coal producers and the government.

The board is evidently also ignorant of the fact that the federal coordinator of railroads has urged every possible effort to protect the railroads against price increases necessary for the payment of decent wages, but difficult for the railroads to bear in a time when all railroads are suffering from a heavily reduced traffic resulting in the insolvency of a large number of railroad systems.

Under regulated hours and wages in the coal industry and "savage wolfish" competition, the result would be the survival only of higly mechanized, low-cost-production mines, throwing out of employment thousands of miners.

If the review board had pursued diligently the facts freely available for its consideration, it would have been forced to find that in every major industry protections had extended to small enterprises, and monopolistic practices had been curbed to a degree hitherto unknown.

The board made no adequate investigation of facts, but deliberately encouraged the presentation of incompetent, misleading, onesided testimony by those who joined the board in its preconceived hostility.

The board concluded its labors appropriately with a defense of the "chiseler," satisfied by the pretense that the sweatshop operator, the exploiter of child labor, the cut-throat competitor, was often a man "struggling to prevent the total absorption of an industry or interest into a monopontistic organization or chain against which the public has no other protection.

Disregarding the high purposes of the President and the intensive, faithful efforts of the national recovery administration to carry forward his program, abusing shamefully the confidence reposed in its membership, the board has made itself on agency to furnish ammunition for the malicious sniping of political partisans, for the covert scheming of monopolists and for the mean attacks of chislers who seek private profit out of continuing that "savage, wolfish" competition which the review board would perpetuate in its contempt or pessimistic despair of the processes of civilization.

Silence the shrapnel's shrill and ghaulish cries;

Out of the forum of our hush, we dead
Cry out above the cannon and the drum:
Never from any slaying, any dread
Will spring to flower the millennium!

Begin rebuilding Eden once more: start
Healing all broken, parted peoples whole;
There is no other nation but the heart;
There is no other country but the soul.

ROOSEVELT SIGNS THE FRAZIER-LEMKE BILL

After a week of conflicting reports out of Washington, we are finally assured that Roosevelt has signed the Frazier-Lemke Farm Moratorium bill. It seems that the banks and insurance companies put a lot of pressure on the president to get him to veto this bill. It is also very evident that his personal inclination was to kill it. This is quite in line with the president's actions all thru the year and a half of his administration. He has apparently at all times shown a great respect for the wishes of the banking crowd. His opposition to inflation and his policy of issuing bonds for every conceivable purpose proves that.

This time it seems that he has taken the advice of Secretary Morgenthau of the treasury and signed this bill. No doubt it is a good political move and will be of some assistance to democratic candidates in the forthcoming campaign. A purpose which probably was in his mind when he yielded to the demand from the farming sections of the country and signed the measure. However the farmers of the country will not forget that the Frazier bill for refinancing of farm debts was definitely side-tracked thru the president's use of his influence with members of congress.

Just how much good the measure will do the farmers can not as yet be estimated. It would appear that for those who avail themselves of its provisions it will be as good as inflation. It would seem that whether the debts are scaled down or the dollar is scaled up would amount to the same thing so far as the top-heavy debt structure is concerned. Possibly this bill will serve the purpose better than inflation and will save the country some of the evils which would be bound to follow inflation.

It should be a source of a great deal of satisfaction to the North Dakota progressives and the Minnesota farmer-labor members of congress that they were able to crowd this measure thru. Senator Shipstead did Yoeman service on the floor of the senate in behalf of this bill and turned back the attacks made upon it by the representatives of eastern capital with a fine mastery of the art of debate. Altho it was reluctantly signed by a democratic president the farmers should bear in mind that any benefits which may acrue to them from this law is as a result of the Non-Partisan League-Farmer-Labor forces in the national congress.

We have not yet been able to procure a copy of this law but just as soon as one is available we shall publish a review of the measure and its provisions.

FUNDS THAT ARE SACRED AND FUNDS THAT ARE NOT

We heard a man state the other day, that he thought the federal government rather inconsistent when it would railroad Governor Langer of North Dakota for alleged misappropriation of $140 of federal funds and yet failed to even ask for an indictment of the Morgans and the Mellons who by their own admission stole millions due the government in income taxes. The gentleman was promptly informed by a "New Dealer" standing by, that "this is different, this money was intended for the relief of the jobless, the destitute and the hungry."

This raises the question in our mind, if it is more heinous to steal "two bits" out of the collection plate than to pilfer a five-spot, twenty-five cents of which was intended for the collection, from a person's pocket.

We met Langer back in 1917, when he was attorney general of North Dakota and he impressed us as a hard headed man; proud, and a lover of power and political prestige. But it would be hard to convince us that he would stoop to grafting a petty $140. As governor of the state of North Dakota, he could certainly make it worth more than that if he was inclined to be crooked. Evidently the voters of North Dakota feel the same way about it, if their vote last Tuesday is any criterion.

However there is nothing inconsistent about the actions of the administration in this instance. It is the history of the old parties and their elected officials that they elevate to high places those who steal millions while they clap the man who steals a loaf of bread in the "jug." Many farmers found it was "bad medicine" to try to circumvent the barley bread diet by laying in a stock of white flour during the war, but we are still waiting to hear of an indictment for the graft which resulted in selling the government two million branding irons with which to brand a hundred thousand horses.

The voters of Minnesota and of North Dakota have been fooled by the old parties' smoke screens a good many times in the past, but we are inclined to believe that it was about the last time in 1932, when these states went so overwhelmingly into the Roosevelt column. The AAA and NRA fizzles coupled with the Langer Deal will probably make it necessary to use a microscope to find Roosevelt votes in North Dakota in 1936, and if the democrats want to see a man with the plain old Scandinavian name "Olson" succeed Roosevelt in the White House in 1937, they only need to carry their investigation and indictment horseplay into Minnesota. It would be one excellent way of getting their fingers into a buzzsaw.

BY ALL MEANS LET US HAVE THAT FUSION.

Somehow we can't get excited over this talk about fusion. The old parties' ballyhoos are deploring tearfully the fact that their candidates refuse to fuse, now after the election is over, and some of the farmer-labor papers are apparently doing a little worrying over the possibility that they may fuse after all. We note that the same farmer-labor papers that fear fusion of the old parties, are the same ones that worried over "that 'radical' platform."

We didn't fear the platform; we gloried in it. We would still like it if we went down to defeat with it.

We don't fear a fusion of the old parties either. We would like to see it. We enjoy a good fight and we can see plainly that we will not have any such pleasure if the old scallawags fail to get together on one candidate. And boy! How we would enjoy getting them in the same corner so we could clout them both with the same club.

SO-CALLED 'PAINLESS TAX'

(Park Region Echo)

Some publicotions denies that a sales tax will make the little fellow pay as much tax as he does now, arguing that in states having the tax, the levy on groceries and household goods is insignificant.

No doubt it is on a single item, but with a cent or two added to the cost of everything a family buys, at the end of the year it will amount to a large sum. Twenty-five cents a day added to the cost of what a family buys, makes $100 in a year. The thing that puts the sales tax over, is that a person can pay $100 a year taxes without feeling it as much as if he pays only two-bits a day instead of a big round $100 all at once.

The fact remains, however, that the poor man with a large family, carries a far heavier load under a sales tax in proportion to his income than the well-to-do person with a small family. The tax on expensive furniture is the favorite argument of the sales tax booster. But rich people do not refurnish the whole house every year. and they do not spend anywhere near as big a proportion of their income for food and clothing as the poor man with a big family does.

It isn't only the daughters of the rich man who wear silk stockings.

PUMP OUT THE WATER

(The Austin American)

While the President is busy injecting a hypodermic into the industrial system, the railroads gomerrily on, rate schedules practically unchanged since the depression hit and profits of several roads at least, swelling as business spurts.

The roads have done a lot of weeping about the competition offered by trucks. When rates are mentioned they throw up their hands and blame the interstate commerce commission. But—they refuse to wring the water from their bloated stocks.

And this refusal results in the continued high rates. If these same exorbitant rates were not working a hardship on human beings the issue would not be so concerning.

However, there are cases on record which prove the rates are keeping food from the needy. A farmer in Idaho last fall had 300 acres of potatoes. After deducting the cost of digging and of shipping to eastern markets he found he would owe money on the crop.

So the potatoes rotted in the ground. And families went hungry. The farmer received nothing for his crop—the hungry humans had no potatoes—and the empty freights of the railroads rolled on.

Similar instances of such an economy may be cited at random.

It would be well for President Roosevelt to use that Big Stick of his to deflate the stuffed valuations of the railroads. Only by pumping out the water can any reasonable reduction in rates be made, so long as the roads continue to be privately operated.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S FAILURES

(Union Advocate)

Now that congress has adjourned until the first week in January, 1935 it is possible to review some of President Roosevest's failure to redeem pledges made to the laboring class.

The President's absolute failure to use the big whip on his party to put teeth into the WagnerLabor Disputes bill is the oustanding example of his lack of interest in the "forgotten mann" he immortalized during his campaign for election. The National Industrial Recovery Act, supposed to be his greatest contribution to the program of recovery, merely legalized slave wages by industrial codes which gave Labor nothing, fortified capital, set aside the Sherman anti-trust law, gloried rugged individualism and added a few more repairs to the broken-down capitalistic system. Mr. Roosevelt surrendered most of his claim on the affections of organized Labor by giving his blessing to company unionism in the settlement of the automobile strike, and refusing to make a determined fight for the original Wagner bill which would have outlawed these fraudulent company-sponsored unions.

No one can say that congress was not at the beck and call of the President. Itis a democratic-controlled body, quick to surrender its legislative authority to the chief executive. But it failed to put a curb ont the powers of the federal courts to invalidate the Norris anti-injunction law. Congress would have acted had the President demanded the same quick and speedy action he ordered when the breweries were demanding the right to make and sell 3.2% beer.

And when President Roosevelt suspended the prevailing wage law a week or two ago, he demonstrated once more his lack of sympathy for the very ones who championed the new deal. This one act sets aside a regulation which compelled contractors on federal projects to pay the prevailing wage on all construction work. The prevailing wage in most cities is the union wage scale..

In conclusion it is evident that when monopoly utilizes its power to increase prices, it is the consumer alone who must pay for the increases.

While under the codes the cost of living increases, wages have not risen accordingly. The prices charged for some articles the poor should have, as much as the rich, have been in some instances prohibitory.

According to the bulletins of the department of labor, taking the average cost of all foods in 1913 as 100, their cost in April 1933, was 90 and in April 1934, it was 107. Forty-one cities showed in this year an advance in food prices of from 10 to 27 per cent.

Rent, fuel light, house furnishings and other items showed at the end of the year, after the codes had begun to operate, a marked upward tendency.

The fact is generally overlooked or obscured, but the small business enterprise has often a social importance out of proportion to its size, since it is often the consumer's sole barier against complete, grasping, and irresponsible monopoly.

"CHISELER" NOT ALWAYS PUBLIC ENEMY

What is called a "chiseler" likewise may not always be the public enemy he has been represented. Instances arise where he is seen to be strugling to prevent the total absorption of an industry or interest into a monopolistic organization or chain against which the public has no other protection.

What the powerful producer calls fair, his weaker rival fiercely denounces as most unfair; and there is no way to reconcile the difference. All competition is savage, wolfish, and relentless, and can be nothing else. One may as well dream of making war lady-like as of making competition fair.

Big business begins by making it impossible for the small man to survive, and, after he is eliminated, it turns upon the weakest of the common aggessors.

We are reminded of some remarks made by Senator Vance of North Carolina, many years ago, who said that:

"At one time the question was up in the state legislature as to what sort of fish should stock their streams. One enthusiastic member suggested the carp, for the reason that they drove out all other fish, and ended up be eating each other."

The following is the conclusion of a summary of NRA's reply to the charges of the Darrow committee, and was prepared by Donald Richberg, general counsel to NRA.

The review board criticizes a reduced price of coal for railroads without the slightest knowledge of the basis upon which this reduced price was reached at a joint meeting between representatives of the railroads, the coal producers and the government.

The board is evidently also ignorant of the fact that the federal coordinator of railroads has urged every possible effort to protect the railroads against price increases necessary for the payment of decent wages, but difficult for the railroads to bear in a time when all railroads are suffering from a heavily reduced traffic resulting in the insolvency of a large number of railroad systems.

Under regulated hours and wages in the coal industry and "savage wolfish" competition, the result would be the survival only of higly mechanized, low-cost-production mines, throwing out of employment thousands of miners.

If the review board had pursued diligently the facts freely available for its consideration, it would have been forced to find that in every major industry protections had extended to small enterprises, and monopolistic practices had been curbed to a degree hitherto unknown.

The board made no adequate investigation of facts, but deliberately encouraged the presentation of incompetent, misleading, onesided testimony by those who joined the board in its preconceived hostility.

The board concluded its labors appropriately with a defense of the "chiseler," satisfied by the pretense that the sweatshop operator, the exploiter of child labor, the cut-throat competitor, was often a man struggling to prevent the total absorption of an industry or interest into a monopontistic organization or chain against which the public has no other protection.

Disregarding the high purposes of the President and the intensive, faithful efforts of the national recovery administration to carry forward his program, abusing shamefully the confidence reposed in its membership, the board has made itself on agency to furnish ammunition for the malicious sniping of political partisans, for the covert scheming of monopolists and for the mean attacks of chislers who seek private profit out of continuing that "say ge, wolfish" competition which the review board would perpetuate in its contempt or pessimistic despair of the processes of civilization.

Cry of the Dead

SILENCE the hateful mortar's lying mutter;
Silence the drums loud perjury; the quick
Falsehood of bullets; the machine-gun's stutter;
And all the bellowing cannon's rhetoric!

Silence them all: the rifle's rapid lies;
Silence the bugle's treacherous evasion;
Silence the shrapnel's shrill and ghaulish cries;
The bayonet's abrupt and false persuation!

Out of the forum of our hush, we dead
Cry out above the cannon and the drum:
Never from any slaying, any dread
Will spring to flower the millennium!

Begin rebuilding Eden once more: start
Healing all broken, parted peoples whole;
There is no other nation but the heart;
There is no other country but the soul.

First Patent to a Woman

While the first American invention was patented by a man, the records further state that the process was "found out by Sybille his wife." For 19 years after the enactment of the patent law in 1790 not a single one of the 10,000 patents issued was granted to a woman. The first successful application from a woman was recorded in 1809 by Mary Kies and was granted for a method of weaving straw with silk or thread.

First Patent to a Woman

While the first American invention was patented by a man, the records further state that the process was "found out by Sybille his wife." For 19 years after the enactment of the patent law in 1790 not a single one of the 10,000 patents issued was granted to a woman. The first successful application from a woman was recorded in 1809 by Mary Kies and was granted for a method of weaving straw with silk or thread.

COURT REFUSES TO GRANT WRIT AGAINST CITY

Judge Holds Council May Anticipate Tax and Earnings In Truck Purchase.

Application by H. A. Brumund for injunction restraining the city from entering contract with the Oen Mercantile company for the purchase of a fire truck was denied by Judge of the District Court M. A. Brattland, in a decision handed down last week.

The court holds that in absence of evidence to the contrary the affidavit of the city clerk as to the state of the city's finances must be assumed to be correct and that the council has authority to anticipate the earnings of the power plant and tax collections to be received into the current expense fund. In a memorandum attached to the decision the court states that: "the affidavit submitted in opposition by the defendants is made by P. G. Pederson, who has been city clerk since 1924 and prior thereto was the deputy city clerk from 1914 to 1924—we must assume that the statements and estimates made by him are substantially correct."

"The affidavit submitted contains, apparently, a complete statement of what funds are on hand, the amount of taxes levied, the total amount of funds available for the fiscal year 1934, and applicable to the liabilities of the city."

Referring to the law which the plantiff cited in substantiation of their claim to an injunction the court says: "The section of the statute relied upon by the plaintiff, section 108, chapter 8, laws of 1895, limits the authority of city councils and its officers to issue bonds or create any debt or liability against the city in excess of the amount of revenue actually levied and applicable to the payment of such liabilities."

The court further holds that the "revenue" referred to, is sononymous with, and includes income from all sources referred to in the affidavit submitted by the defendants." This is further borne out, the court says by section 88 of the same act which provides for the maintainance in the city treasury of a fund designated as the current expense fund replenished by the income of the city and by tax levies. Out of such funds shall be paid all salaries and expenses of the city government not otherwise provided for, "and the cost of all the departments of the city government having no special funds created therefore, and the purchase, construction, and repair of all appliances and apparatus therein."

Funds which will come into the city's possession thru tax levies and sale of electrical energy will replenish the current expense fund thru repayments to it from funds now overdrawn, the court holds, and is therefore applicable to the purchase contemplated by the city.

Severe Penalty for Miss-Use Of Mail Boxes; Dept. Says

Federal Statutes provide for fine of $300 for the placing in mail boxes of circulars, posters, bills, etc., Postmaster Anderson pointed out Wednesday.

Use of mail boxes, placed for the convenience in delivering mails, for depositing of statements, bills, circulars, etc., has been forbidden by postal laws for some time past and the penalty for their mis-use by bill peddlers etc., who used them for the deposit of mailable matter upon which no postage was paid, was no more than the collection of postage due on the matter. Now the law has been amended to provide a severe penalty, and reads as follows:

"Whoever shall knowingly or willfully deposit any mailable matter such as statements of accounts, circulars, sale bills or other like matter on which no postage has been paid, in any letter box established, approved or accepted by the Postmaster-General for the receipt or delivery of mail matter on any mail route with intent to avoid payment of lawful postage thereon; or shall willfully aid or assist in any of the aforementioned offenses, shall for every such offense be punished by a fine of not more than $300.00.

Manufaturing Plant Being Conducted on the "QT" Until Snooping Reporter Discovers It

Fred Forsberg of 210 Kendall avenue south, has been "slipping one over" on the people of Thief River Falls for three months. During all this time he and his sons have been manufacturing some re l up-to-the-minute sweet clover hullers and seed cleaners in a garage away down on the south end of Crocker avenue. But for an unguarded word which he dropped while down at the Forum office a few days ago he might have been getting away with it yet.

However, "Adam [illegible]ity was aroused and an investigation followed. We pulled a 'coup de foudre' and bursting in on them suddenly caught them right in the act of manufacturing and assembling one of the machines. Being "caught with the goods" there was nothing for Mr. Forsberg to do but to show the layout and the machines.

There were key-way cutting machines, press punches, drill presses, metal rollers, crimpers, shears that that will just eat its way thru 14 gauge sheetmetal and patterns galore. Three machines are assembled and ready for business and a fourth is under construction at this time.

Mr. Forsberg showed us the 'works' in one of the machines and there is the usual hopper with roller feed into which the seed is shoveled. The hopper was lifted off and we were shown the scarrifiyng cylinder; a big drum covered with what looked like coarse wood rasps, and what a back scratcher that would be when in motion. No wonder its called "scarifier" it ought to scare the hulls off'n most anything, even from a "hardshell' republican.

A sort of an overgrown vacuum cleaner is attached to this cylinder case so that the machine can be set right in the parlor and won't even lay dust on the center table, Mr. Forsberg says. Then the seen having been thoroughly "scared" goes over a series of sieves and screens and this separates, with the aid of a fan the hulls from the seeds. Hulls and cockle burs go one way, undersized seeds, pigon grass seed, and such things go another, and the clean clover seed comes up thru an elevator to the sacker.

The machine which is protected with one United States and two Canadian patents is better than any that is on the market, Mr. Forsberg says. He manufactures them only for his own use at the present time, being engaged in the business of scarrifying and cleaning seeds for firms and for groups of farmers who desire his services He is at the present time in the employ of the Land O' Lakes Creameries here and the machines which he has just built are being installed in their warehouses.

Mr. Forsberg first started building the machines which he calls "Combine Clover Huller and Seed Cleaner" at Dauphin, Manitoba.

Rocksbury Club Will Sponsor Another All-Party Rally in August

The Rocksbury Community club will sponsor another political rally some time before the general election campaign closes, according to an announcement made this week by Paul Engelstad.

This rally, which they repect to stage sometime in August will differ from the meeting which was so well enjoyed by both voters and candidates during the primary campaign, in that in this case it will be the major political parties that will be invited to present their arguments rather than the individual candidates. Invitation is being extended to the county committees of the republican, democratic and Farmer-Labor parties to provide a speaker for the occasion, Mr. Engelstad stated, and lots will be drawn to decide which speak first, second and third. From a half hour to three quarters of an hour will be alloted for each speaker and they will be expected to confine their talk within the time allowed. No mud-slinging will be tolerated, Mr. Engelstad stated, but the speakers will be expected to present the platform of their party and the return of that party's candidates to office.

Over 600 people attended the candidates rally held at Valhall just prior to the primary campaign, and judging from comment on this new plan already heard, this second meeting should bring several thousand people out to hear the speakers. No action has been taken on the invitation by the several party organization yet, but questioned about it, members of the farmer-labor county committee stated that they will accept the invitation and secure a speaker for the occasion. Further particulars will be announced when arrangements are completed in greater detail, Mr. Engelstad said.

COUNCIL TABLES C W A PETITIONS RE: 2 MEN FIRED

Workmen's Group Threaten to Boycott Businessmen On Council.

At the meeting Tuesday evening the CWA Workmen's Protective association presented its petition requesting that W. W. Viebahn, the city engineer be discharged and the two men, employees of the light department which he discharged without justification some time ago be reinstated, to the council. Chas. Schulz acting as spokesman for the workmen's group stressed the fact that no adequate reason had been given for the discharge of the men in question and suggested that the council act at once in the matter. 205 names were affixed to the petitions presented to the council. Another petition containing 190 names had been lost.

Chas. Evenson, janitor at the auditorium, addressed the council, and defended the action of the city engineer. He suggested that the council should "look into the other side of the story."

Alderman McFarland turning to Schulz stated that the incident had been closed a month ago and that he could see no reason for reopening it. "As far as I am concerned the matter is closed," he said.

Jack VanPelt, secretary of the workmen's organization pointed out that these people had signed the petitions after the council had disregarded the demands of the workmen's group a month ago and that in their mind the matter is not closed, but very much open.

Aldermen Griebstein and president of the council Myhrom stated that the matter was disposed of as far as they are concerned.

Addressing them a second time, Mr. Schulz said, "You men are all in business and depend upon our trade. We can take that trade anywhere we want to, and we will trade with those businesses that treat us right. We can boycott you if we want to, and we're going to do it. There's over two hundred people signed that petition and if you want to go against them you can. But we have a right to trade somewhere else if we want to."

President Myhrom advised him not to try to "highpressure" the council, to which Schulz replied that he was not trying to highpressure anyone, but that people can trade where ever they want to, and they may be wanting to trade somewhere else.

On motion by Alderman McFarland seconded by Griebstein the petitions were laid on the table and the matter indefinitely postponed.

Bids covering water main were opened and contract was allotted to the Tri-State Building Material company at 75 cents per foot. Other bids were as follows: United States Pipe and Foundry Co., 97c pr. ft.; American Cast Iron Pipe Co., 97c pr. ft.; Marshall-Wells Co., $1.01 pr. ft.; and The Crane Co., $1,046.54 for the entire amount of the contract which included 1020 feet of 6 inch water main and one 'T' connection and one valve. The prices on the latter two items were uniformly about $12 and $4 in all bids. This brings the Crane company's bid to about $1.01 pr. ft., for the pipe.

Dry cleaning license was granted to K. E. Dahl and building permits were issued to D. V. Snelling, remodeling, to cost about $800; H. T. Helgeson, constructing an oil station at the corner of Eigth street and Dewey avenue at a cost of $850.

Dr. Jacobson appeared on behalf of the park board and discussed the proposed condemnation of certain lots in the south end of the city for park purposes.

The bills of the month were approved and ordered paid.

Land O' Lakes Buys Cooperative Creamery. Plans For New Creamery Are Being Drawn

Sale of their present creamery building to the Land O' Lakes was decided upon by the stockholders of the Farmer's Co-operative creamery association of this city at a special meeting held in the Civic and Commerce association rooms at the auditorium last Friday.

Under the terms of the agreement entered into by the creamery association and the Land O' Lakes organization, the latter will construct a new creamery on the site formerly occupied by the Thief River Falls Seed House retail store which burned down last fall, at the corner of Horace avenue and Second street. The new building will be one story, of brick and tile construction and will be throroughly modern thruout. The Land O' Lakes will also stand all costs of moving the creomery into the new structure when it is completed. The Land O' Lakes will assume about one half of the creamery associations present indebtedness under the term of the contract.

Plans for the new structure are being drawn at this time and construction will be started as soon as possible.

The present creamery building will be extensively remodeled, Mr. B. O. Norby, manager of the Land O' Lakes stated yesterday. A tunnel connecting it with the present plant of the Land O' Lakes will be constructed and the two buildings will also be constructed above ground with corridors.

The purchase was made to provide more room for the poultry and egg business of the Land O' Lakes plant, which has expanded at a rapid rate according to Mr. Norby. The top floor of the creamery building will be fitted up to house feeding batteries for poultry and will most likely be connected with the top floor of the present poultry plant which is used for the same purpose by a viaduct.

COURT REFUSES TO GRANT WRIT AGAINST CITY

Judge Holds Council May Anticipate Tax and Earnings In Truck Purchase.

Application by H. A. Brumund for injunction restraining the city from entering contract with the Oen Mercantile company for the purchase of a fire truck was denied by Judge of the District Court M. A. Brattland, in a decision handed down last week.

The court holds that in absence of evidence to the contrary the affidavit of the city clerk as to the state of the city's finances must be assumed to be correct and that the council has authority to anticipate the earnings of the power plant and tax collections to be received into the current expense fund. In a memorandum attached to the decision the court states that: "the affidavit submitted in opposition by the defendants is made by P. G. Pederson, who has been city clerk since 1924 and prior thereto was the deputy city clerk from 1914 to 1924—we must assume that the statements and estimates made by him are substantially correct."

"The affidavit submitted contains, apparently, a complete statement of what funds are on hand, the amount of taxes levied, the total amount of funds available for the fiscal year 1934, and applicable to the liabilities of the city."

Referring to the law which the plantiff cited in substantiation of their claim to an injunction the court says: "The section of the statute relied upon by the plaintiff, section 108, chapter 8, laws of 1895, limits the authority of city councils and its officers to issue bonds or create any debt or liability against the city in excess of the amount of revenue actually levied and applicable to the payment of such liabilities."

The court further holds that the "revenue" referred to, is sononymous with, and includes income from all sources referred to in the affidavit submitted by the defendants." This is further borne out, the court says by section 88 of the same act which provides for the maintainance in the city treasury of a fund designated as the current expense fund replenished by the income of the city and by tax levies. Out of such funds shall be paid all salaries and expenses of the city government not otherwise provided for, "and the cost of all the departments of the city government having no special funds created therefore, and the purchase, construction, and repair of all appliances and apparatus therein."

Funds which will come into the city's possession thru tax levies and sale of electrical energy will replenish the current expense fund thru repayments to it from funds now overdrawn, the court holds, and is therefore applicable to the purchase contemplated by the city.

Severe Penalty for Miss-Use Of Mail Boxes; Dept. Says

Rocksbury Club Will Sponsor Another All-Party Rally in August

The Rocksbury Community club will sponsor another political rally some time before the general election campaign closes, according to an announcement made this week by Paul Engelstad.

This rally, which they repect to stage sometime in August will differ from the meeting which was so well enjoyed by both voters and candidates during the primary campaign, in that in this case it will be the major political parties that will be invited to present their arguments rather than the individual candidates. Invitation is being extended to the county committees of the republican, democratic and Farmer-Labor parties to provide a speaker for the occasion, Mr. Engelstad stated, and lots will be drawn to decide which speak first, second and third. From a half hour to three quarters of an hour will be alloted for each speaker and they will be expected to confine their talk within the time allowed. No mud-slinging will be tolerated, Mr. Engelstad stated, but the speakers will be expected to present the platform of their party and the return of that party's candidates to office.

Over 600 people attended the candidates rally held at Valhall just prior to the primary campaign, and judging from comment on this new plan already heard, this second meeting should bring several thousand people out to hear the speakers. No action has been taken on the invitation by the several party organization yet, but questioned about it, members of the farmer-labor county committee stated that they will accept the invitation and secure a speaker for the occasion. Further particulars will be announced when arrangements are completed in greater detail, Mr. Engelstad said.

COUNCIL TABLES C W A PETITIONS RE: 2 MEN FIRED

Workmen's Group Threaten to Boycott Businessmen On Council.

At the meeting Tuesday evening the CWA Workmen's Protective association presented its petition requesting that W. W. Viebahn, the city engineer be discharged and the two men, employees of the light department which he discharged without justification some time ago be reinstated, to the council. Chas. Schulz acting as spokesman for the workmen's group stressed the fact that no adequate reason had been given for the discharge of the men in question and suggested that the council act at once in the matter. 205 names were affixed to the petitions presented to the council. Another petition containing 190 names had been lost.

Chas. Evenson, janitor at the auditorium, addressed the council, and defended the action of the city engineer. He suggested that the council should "look into the other side of the story."

Alderman McFarland turning to Schulz stated that the incident had been closed a month ago and that he could see no reason for reopening it. "As far as I am concerned the matter is closed," he said.

Jack VanPelt, secretary of the workmen's organization pointed out that these people had signed the petitions after the council had disregarded the demands of the workmen's group a month ago and that in their mind the matter is not closed, but very much open.

Aldermen Griebstein and president of the council Myhrom stated that the matter was disposed of as far as they are concerned.

Addressing them a second time, Mr. Schulz said, "You men are all in business and depend upon our trade. We can take that trade anywhere we want to, and we will trade with those businesses that treat us right. We can boycott you if we want to, and we're going to do it. There's over two hundred people signed that petition and if you want to go against them you can. But we have a right to trade somewhere else if we want to."

President Myhrom advised him not to try to "highpressure" the council, to which Schulz replied that he was not trying to highpressure anyone, but that people can trade where ever they want to, and they may be wanting to trade somewhere else.

On motion by Alderman McFarland seconded by Griebstein the petitions were laid on the table and the matter indefinitely postponed.

Bids covering water main were opened and contract was allotted to the Tri-State Building Material company at 75 cents per foot. Other bids were as follows: United States Pipe and Foundry Co., 97c pr. ft.; American Cast Iron Pipe Co., 97c pr. ft.; Marshall-Wells Co., $1.01 pr. ft.; and The Crane Co., $1,046.54 for the entire amount of the contract which included 1020 feet of 6 inch water main and one 'T' connection and one valve. The prices on the latter two items were uniformly about $12 and $4 in all bids. This brings the Crane company's bid to about $1.01 pr. ft., for the pipe.

Dry cleaning license was granted to K. E. Dahl and building permits were issued to D. V. Snelling, remodeling, to cost about $300; H. T. Helgeson, constructing an oil station at the corner of Eigth street and Dewey avenue at a cost of $850.

Dr. Jacobson appeared on behalf of the park board and discussed the proposed condemnation of certain lots in the south end of the city for park purposes.

The bills of the month were approved and ordered paid.

Land O' Lakes Buys Cooperative Creamery. Plans For New Creamery Are Being Drawn

Sale of their present creamery building to the Land O' Lakes was decided upon by the stockholders of the Farmer's Co-operative creamery association of this city at a special meeting held in the Civic and Commerce association rooms at the auditorium last Friday.

Under the terms of the agreement entered into by the creamery association and the Land O' Lakes organization, the latter will construct a new creamery on the site formerly occupied by the Thief River Falls Seed House retail store which burned down last fall, at the corner of Horace avenue and Second street. The new building will be one story, of brick and tile construction and will be thoroughly modern thruout. The Land O' Lakes will also stand all costs of moving the creomery into the new structure when it is completed. The Land O' Lakes will assume about one half of the creamery associations present indebtedness under the term of the contract.

Plans for the new structure are being drawn at this time and construction will be started as soon as possible.

The present creamery building will be extensively remodeled, Mr. B. O. Norby, manager of the Land O' Lakes stated yesterday. A tunnel connecting it with the present plant of the Land O' Lakes will be constructed and the two buildings will also be constructed above ground with corridors.

The purchase was made to provide more room for the poultry and egg business of the Land O' Lakes plant, which has expanded at a rapid rate according to Mr. Norby. The top floor of the creamery building will be fitted up to house feeding batteries for poultry and will most likely be connected with the top floor of the present poultry plant which is used for the same purpose by a viaduct.

BOARD OF FIVE TO TAKE OVER NRA

General Johnson to Relax Rest of Summer, Go on Blue Eagle "Sales Trip".

Washington—The national recovery administration has come to the threshold of a new experiment. Hugh S. Johnson will convert the recovery agency's one-man leadership into a five-man control for the summer.

Most of the job of directing NRA will be shifted to five assistants. Johnson wants to see how NRA can get along without his hand on the helm. The tryout—which is purely informal and designed to give Johnson a chance to relax—also will be an important test of commission control.

The general's way of relaxing will be a swing across the country to sell the Blue Eagle and put in a good word here and there for the new deal.

The five-man board will run NRA except for major decisions which Johnson must make under the law. On the board will be G. A. Lynch, NRA administrative officer; Robert W. Lea, assistant administrator for industry, and George L. Berry, A. R. Glancy and George Buckley, division administrators.

After the basic code for small industries has been promugated, Johnson plans to put NRA's emphasis on compliance, and it is this job particularly which the board will have in his absence.

Henry Ford's Blue Eagle standing still is being discussed at NRA. Officials say signing of the letter of compliance recently approved by Johnson is necessary before the Ford Motor Company can bid on government contracts.

'U' PRESIDENT LAUDS STATE

Enthusiastic praise of the state of Minnesota and its many attractions and advantages is voiced by President L. D. Coffman of the University of Minnesota in a message to students printed as an introduction to The Gopher, or student year book at the university, which recently appeared.

"Minnesota is a splendid state," he wrote, "It enjoys the perennial attraction of variety. In its southern parts it is of the corn belt, yet its north is piney forest. To the west it blends into the prairies, yet on the east it has access to the Atlantic Ocean through the Great Lakes and to the Gulf of Mexico by the Mississippi river. Its minerals, manufactures and forests combine with the products of the field and the dairy to provide a diversified source of livelihood for its people.

"To be ranked with these resoures in importance and value to the state of Minnesota is its splendid educational system. It has been said that Minnesota has no other advertisement the equal of its university. Men and women from all parts of the world come here to study, often at great expense to themselves. Surely, if the future of the state is to be a developing one, we are to comprehend life so as to be happier, if we are to make the most fruitful uses of our raw materials, and if we are to develop a high type of social organization ,we must under all circumstances give support to our researchers and scholars. We must continue to bring our young people into contact with them and with the science, art and philosophy of the world.

"May there be an ever fuller realization of the importance of this policy when the university becomes seventy-five years old than there is now on the seventy-fifth birthday of the state."

The Gopher was dedicated to the State of Minnesota in honor of its seventy-fifth birthday.

NATIONAL PRONIBITION STARTS BACK SAYS W. G. CALDERWOOD

National prohibition has officially started back on June 15, Senator Sheppard of Texas, who introduced the 18th amendment seventeen years ago, introduced a proposal for a new amendment the purpose of which is to clothe congress with the power to regulate or prohibit the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages.

Section 1 of the resolution grants to congress the full power to pass uniform laws regulating or prohibiting the traffic in the several states.

Section 2 reserves to the several states the power to enact regulations or prohibition within their respective borders, "irrespective of legislation by congress." That preserves to each state power to pass more stringent laws than those passed by congress, but leaves the state no power to annull or defeat congressional action.

Section 3 prohibits the transportation of liquor into prohibited areas.

Section 4 repeals the 21st amendment by which the 18th (prohibition) amendment was repealed.

Section 5 provides that the proposed amendment shall be ratified by conventions held in the several states, which method was first in repealing the 18th amendment.

The first proposal for a prohibition amendment was introduced into congress in 1887. Thirty-three years thereafter the 18th amendment had closed 170,000 saloons and had outlawed every distillery and brewtry manufacturing beverage alcohol. In 1887 there were only two prohibition states—Maine and Kansas. Now there are 20 dry states and hundreds of dry counties. In nearly every local wet-dry election since repeal the drys romped to victory, in some cases by a 10-to-1 majority.

National prohibition has started back, and it may go fast and far.

GIVES REASONS WHY FAT CATTLE SHOULD BE STRONG

"Less cattle on feed, the probability of less cattle on feed, this fall, high priced feed and scarcity of feed and hay all point toward a more favorable outlook for the future market on strictly good grain-fed cattle," says Charles E. Lee, head of the cattle department of the Central Cooperation, South St. Paul.

Mr. Lee, also points out that a good many cattle have already been forced to market which ordinarily would have been fed for a longer period. He says that there will probably be a lot of half-fat, warmed-up cattle coming to market for some time and during the fall and winter months, strictly grain feds of good and choice quality will be scarce. Consequently they will sell at a premium over ordinary kinds.

"Right now, prime, long-fed 1200 to 1400 lb. steers are quotable to $9,00 at $9.50 per cwt. but nothing of that quality has been offered on the market, most offerings being of fair to good grades and selling at $5.25 to $6.75 with a few choice at $7.00 and up. The feeder with fat cattle of choice quality and furnish undoubtedly has better days ahead of him."

The margin between feeder costs and fat cattle prices has been far more favorable this spring than a year ago, according to the weekly market bulletin issued by the Central Co-Operative Association. The average price of stocker and feeder cattle shipped from South St. Paul to country points for the last three months has been $3.64 for June, $3.75 for May and $4.02 for April. The average fat steer price for the same month has been $6.35 for June, $5.94 for May and $5.68 for April. Thus, a favorable margin of from 1.63 to $2.71 has prevailed, the margin for June being $2.71.

These figures are encouraging to the feeder and the prospective purchaser of feeder cattle especially when considering that a year ago the corresponding margins were only 54c per cwt. to $1.30 per cwt. In other words, the cost of feeder stock has been but very little different than a year ago while the average price of fat cattle is fully $1.00 above a year ago.

BITUMINOUS ROADS TO BE RETREATED

More than 1,350 miles of bituminous surfaced trunk highways will be given retreatments this summer by the maintenance division of the state highway department, according to a department announcement.

Within the past few days the department has purchased 4,871,000 gallons of bituminous material for approximately $320,000. It has also awarded contracts in each of the sixteen maintenance districts of the state for the application of the material purchased. The cost of apprication will be $68,000.

Maintenance crews have been busy getting the roads in shape for the retreatments, and the bituminous work will be at its peak in the next few weeks. There are approximately 2,700 miles of bituminous treated roads in the trunk system.

OUTSTANDING HORSESHOW WILL BE STAGED AT THE MINNESOTA STATE FAIR

Arrangements have been concluded for the staging of the nation's outstanding horse show in connection with Minnesota's Diamond Jubilee State Fair, September 1 to 8 announces Raymond A. Lee, Secretary.

It will be a $10,000 show, to run five successive nights, from Sept. 3 to 7 With the leading stables of the country competing, the capitol of the horse show world will be literally transplanted from Kentucky to the Hippodrome at the State Fair.

Sixty-one events will make up the five-night program. There will be classes for three and five-gaited horses, hunters and jumpers, saddle yearlings, roadsters, polo mounts, military horses, harness horses and heavy draft hitches.

Of special interest to show devotees will be the five classes in which riding skill only will be the basis of the judges' awards. Since there are many gifted equestrians in the Northwest these classes are expected to scintillate with action.

Several stake events are included on the program. Prominent Twin City sportsmen and sportswomen have united to underwrite some of the stakes, with the Fair management offering the balance of the prize money, which exceeds $10,000 an all-time record.

Assurances already have been received from topnotch stables in Texas, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and Iowa that they will include Minnesota on their itineraries this year, reports Norris K. Carnes, Superintendent of the show. This augurs well for the horse enthusiasts. Minnesota-owned animals have cut a wide swath in show circles in recent years and many of the stables rank with the best anywhere.

Entries in the horse show division will close August 13.

DROUTH SPURS FIGHT ON WATER POLUTION

"The severe drouth has focused attention on all available sources of water supply", says a statement issued by the Minnesota Chapter of the Izaak Walton League. "The shortage of water in many places is made doubly serious by unsanitary disposal of sewage into the extremely low water courses. The present emergency has aroused many communities to a realization of the danger, and P.W.A. loans and grants have helped to get started.

"Fourteen Minnesota communities with a population of 33,450 have let contracts for sewage treatment plants in recent months. Most of these projects are well underway. Total cost of projects is $561,840. They include Waconia, Marshall Hutchinson, Redwood Falls, Appleton, Montevideo, Sauk Centre, Ortonville, Blooming Prairie, Harmony, Wabasha, Fairmont, Glencoe and Watertown.

"In Lake City, Bemidji, Winona, Moorhead, St. Paul and Minneapolis partial contracts have been let or plans are in preparation for projects with an estimated cost of $18,611,000 which when completed will serve 779,100 people. Allotments of P.W.A funds to three cities, Fergus Falls, Northfield and Hibbing, totaling $707,000 have been rescinded, due to failure to pass local bond issues.

"The state boards of health of Minnesota and North Dakota recently completed a joint survey of the Red River of the North and recommended that treatment be provided for sewage and industrial wastes at all places from Breckenridge to Grand Forks.

"There are many communities where the purity of drinking water is dependent upon sewage treatment in other places upstream. It is a just obligation upon each community to see that its wastes are so treated or disposed of that they do not contaminate their own water supply or that of other communities. This obligation will not cease when the drouth ends for untreated sewage is always a menace and low water only makes the danger greater. The drouth has not made sewage treatment necessary, but only emphasized the need. No community which is concerned about public health can afford to take chances with unsafe sewage disposal."

The tournament, which will be registered-classified two-day shoot, will be held under the auspices of the Twin City Shooting Association, and scatter-gun experts from coast to coast will compete, according to Harry W. BOARD OF FIVE TO TAKE OVER NRA

General Johnson to Relax Rest of Summer, Go on Blue Eagle "Sales Trip".

Washington—The national recovery administration has come to the threshold of a new experiment. Hugh S. Johnson will convert the recovery agency's one-man leadership into a five-man control for the summer.

Most of the job of directing NRA will be shifted to five assistants. Johnson wants to see how NRA can get along without his hand on the helm. The tryout—which is purely informal and designed to give Johnson a chance to relax—also will be an important test of commission control.

The general's way of relaxing will be a swing across the country to sell the Blue Eagle and put in a good word here and there for the new deal.

The five-man board will run NRA except for major decisions which Johnson must make under the law. On the board will be G. A. Lynch, NRA administrative officer; Robert W. Lea, assistant administrator for industry, and George L. Berry, A. R. Glancy and George Buckley, division administrators.

After the basic code for small industries has been promugated, Johnson plans to put NRA's emphasis on compliance, and it is this job particularly which the board will have in his absence.

Henry Ford's Blue Eagle standing still is being discussed at NRA. Officials say signing of the letter of compliance recently approved by Johnson is necessary before the Ford Motor Company can bid on government contracts.

The first contract calls for 5,649 feet of a tunnel 13 feet, 10 inches in diameter—slightly more than a mile long—at a cost of $449,476.40.

'U' PRESIDENT LAUDS STATE

Enthusiastic praise of the state of Minnesota and its many attractions and advantages is voiced by President L. D. Coffman of the University of Minnesota in a message to students printed as an introduction to The Gopher, or student year book at the university, which recently appeared.

"Minnesota is a splendid state," he wrote, "It enjoys the perennial attraction of variety. In its southern parts it is of the corn belt, yet its north is piney forest. To the west it blends into the prairies, yet on the east it has access to the Atlantic Ocean through the Great Lakes and to the Gulf of Mexico by the Mississippi river. Its minerals, manufactures and forests combine with the products of the field and the dairy to provide a diversified source of livelihood for its people.

"To be ranked with these resoures in importance and value to the state of Minnesota is its splendid educational system. It has been said that Minnesota has no other advertisement the equal of its university. Men and women from all parts of the world come here to study, often at great expense to themselves. Surely, if the future of the state is to be a developing one, we are to comprehend life so as to be happier, if we are to make the most fruitful uses of our raw materials, and if we are to develop a high type of social organization we must under all circumstances give support to our researchers and scholars. We must continue to bring our young people into contact with them and with the science, art and philosophy of the world.

"May there be an ever fuller realization of the importance of this policy when the university becomes seventy-five years old than there is now on the seventy-fifth birthday of the state."

The Gopher was dedicated to the State of Minnesota in honor of its seventy-fifth birthday.

NATIONAL PRONIBITION STARTS BACK SAYS W. G. CALDERWOOD

National prohibition has officially started back on June 15, Senator Sheppard of Texas, who introduced the 18th amendment seventeen years ago, introduced a proposal for a new amendment the purpose of which is to clothe congress with the power to regulate or prohibit the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages.

Section 1 of the resolution grants to congress the full power to pass uniform laws regulating or prohibiting the traffic in the several states.

Section 2 reserves to the several states the power to enact regulations or prohibition within their respective borders, "irrespective of legislation by congress." That preserves to each state power to pass more stringent laws than those passed by congress, but leaves the state no power to annull or defeat congressional action.

Section 3 prohibits the transportation of liquor into prohibited areas.

Section 4 repeals the 21st amendment by which the 18th (prohibition) amendment was repealed.

Section 5 provides that the proposed amendment shall be ratified by conventions held in the several states, which method was first in repealing the 18th amendment.

The first proposal for a prohibition amendment was introduced into congress in 1887. Thirty-three years thereafter the 18th amendment had closed 170,000 saloons and had outlawed every distillery and brewtry manufacturing beverage alcohol. In 1887 there were only two prohibition states—Maine and Kansas. Now there are 20 dry states and hundreds of dry counties. In nearly every local wet-dry election since repeal the drys romped to victory, in some cases by a 10-to-1 majority.

National prohibition has started back, and it may go fast and far.

GIVES REASONS WHY FAT CATTLE SHOULD BE STRONG

"Less cattle on feed, the probability of less cattle on feed, this fall, high priced feed and scarcity of feed and hay all point toward a more favorable outlook for the future market on strictly good grain-fed cattle," says Charles E. Lee, head of the cattle department of the Central Cooperation, South St. Paul.

Mr. Lee, also points out that a good many cattle have already been forced to market which ordinarily would have been fed for a longer period. He says that there will probably be a lot of half-fat, warmed-up cattle coming to market for some time and during the fall and winter months, strictly grain feds of good and choice quality will be scarce. Consequently they will sell at a premium over ordinary kinds.

"Right now, prime, long-fed 1200 to 1400 lb. steers are quotable to $9,00 at $9.50 per cwt. but nothing of that quality has been offered on the market, most offerings being of fair to good grades and selling at $5.25 to $6.75 with a few choice at $7.00 and up. The feeder with fat cattle of choice quality and furnish undoubtedly has better days ahead of him."

The margin between feeder costs and fat cattle prices has been far more favorable this spring than a year ago, according to the weekly market bulletin issued by the Central Co-Operative Association. The average price of stocker and feeder cattle shipped from South St. Paul to country points for the last three months has been $3.64 for June, $3.75 for May and $4.02 for April. The average fat steer price for the same month has been $6.35 for June, $5.94 for May and $5.68 for April. Thus, a favorable margin of from 1.63 to $2.71 has prevailed, the margin for June being $2.71.

These figures are encouraging to the feeder and the prospective purchaser of feeder cattle especially when considering that a year ago the corresponding margins were only 54c per cwt. to $1.30 per cwt. In other words, the cost of feeder stock has been but very little different than a year ago while the average price of fat cattle is fully $1.00 above a year ago.

BITUMINOUS ROADS TO BE RETREATED

More than 1,350 miles of bituminous surfaced trunk highways will be given retreatments this summer by the maintenance division of the state highway department, according to a department announcement.

Within the past few days the department has purchased 4,871,000 gallons of bituminous material for approximately $320,000. It has also awarded contracts in each of the sixteen maintenance districts of the state for the application of the material purchased. The cost of apprication will be $68,000.

Maintenance crews have been busy getting the roads in shape for the retreatments, and the bituminous work will be at its peak in the next few weeks. There are approximately 2,700 miles of bituminous treated roads in the trunk system.

OUTSTANDING HORSESHOW WILL BE STAGED AT THE MINNESOTA STATE FAIR

Arrangements have been concluded for the staging of the nation's outstanding horse show in connection with Minnesota's Diamond Jubilee State Fair, September 1 to 8 announces Raymond A. Lee, Secretary.

It will be a $10,000 show, to run five successive nights, from Sept. 3 to 7 With the leading stables of the country competing, the capitol of the horse show world will be literally transplanted from Kentucky to the Hippodrome at the State Fair.

Sixty-one events will make up the five-night program. There will be classes for three and five-gaited horses, hunters and jumpers, saddle yearlings, roadsters, polo mounts, military horses, harness horses and heavy draft hitches.

Of special interest to show devotees will be the five classes in which riding skill only will be the basis of the judges' awards. Since there are many gifted equestrians in the Northwest these classes are expected to scintillate with action.

Several stake events are included on the program. Prominent Twin City sportsmen and sportswomen have united to underwrite some of the stakes, with the Fair management offering the balance of the prize money, which exceeds $10,000 an all-time record.

Assurances already have been received from topnotch stables in Texas, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Illinois, Pensylvania, Wisconsin and Iowa that they will include Minnesota on their itineraries this year, reports Norris K. Carnes, Superintendent of the show. This augurs well for the horse enthusiasts. Minnesota-owned animals have cut a wide swath in show circles in recent years and many of the stables rank with the best anywhere.

Entries in the horse show division will close August 13.

DROUTH SPURS FIGHT ON WATER POLUTION

"The severe drouth has focused attention on all available sources of water supply", says a statement issued by the Minnesota Chapter of the Izaak Walton League. "The shortage of water in many places is made doubly serious by unsanitary disposal of sewage into the extremely low water courses. The present emergency has aroused many communities to a realization of the danger, and P.W.A. loans and grants have helped to get started.

"Fourteen Minnesota communities with a population of 83,450 have let contracts for sewage treatment plants in recent months. Most of these projects are well underway. Total cost of projects is $561,840. They include Waconia, Marshall Hutchinson, Redwood Falls, Appleton, Montevideo, Sauk Centre, Ortonville, Blooming Prairie, Harmony, Wabasha, Fairmont, Glencoe and Watertown.

"In Lake City, Bemidji, Winona, Moorhead, St. Paul and Minneapolis partial contracts have been let or plans are in preparation for projects with an estimated cost of $18,611,000 which when completed will serve 179,100 people. Allotments of P.W.A funds to three cities, Fergus Falls, Northfield and Hibbing, totaling $707,000 have been rescinded, due to failure to pass local bond issues.

"The state boards of health of Minnesota and North Dakota recently completed a joint survey of the Red River of the North and recommended that treatment be provided for sewage and industrial wastes at all places from Breckenridge to Grand Forks.

"There are many communities where the purity of drinking water is dependent upon sewage treatment in other places upstream. It is a just obligation upon each community to see that its wastes are so treated or disposed of that they do not contaminate their own water supply or that of other communities. This obligation will not cease when the drouth ends, for untreated sewage is always a menace and low water only makes the danger greater. The drouth has not made sewage treatment necessory, but only emphasized the need. No community which is concerned about public health can afford to take chances with unsafe sewage disposal."

TRAPSHOOT TOURNAMENT WILL BE HELD IN CONNECTION WITH MINN. STATE FAIR SEPT. 1-8

An army of trapshooters from all parts of the nation will compete in the first annual Northwestern Class Championship Tournament to be sponsored by the Minnesota State Fair as one of its many features in connection with the Diamond Jubilee celebration, Sept. 1 to 8.

The tournament, which will be registered-classified two-day shoot, will be held under the auspices of the Twin City Shooting Association, and scatter-gun experts from coast to coast will compete, according to Harry W. Maginnis of Minneapolis, nationally famous sportsman, who will be in charge of the details.

Eighteen beautiful trophies, in addition to a cup emblematic of the all-round championship, will be awarded to the winners. Such noted shots as Frank Trosh of Portland, Ore., Mark Arie of Champaign, Ill., Walter Berwyn of Pennsylvanit, 1933 Grand American Handicap Champion, and others, will be among the outstanding field of more than 300 entrants.

A battery of four traps will be installed on Machinery Hill, providing an unexcelled range for the contestants. The shoot will be held Friday and Saturday, Sept. 7 and 8, and there will be three classes, entrants averaging 93 per cent or better competing in Class A; 87 to 93 per cent, Class B; and under 87 percent, Class C.

Minnesota boasts of many crack shots, acording to Mr. Maginnis, and a representative field of experts will carry the state colors in the first annual competition. Entry blanks and complete information can be obtained by writing to the State Fair officials.

In the Rostrum

Dear Editor:

It is now quite a while since I promised the people of Rocksbury Township that at some time during the summer there would be staged a second Political Rally in Valhall Hall, at which time all aspirants for public offices would again have the opportunity to meet the Rocksbury voters on neutral grounds, without running from farm to farm peddling cards for votes.

Arrangements are now under way for a bigger, and more inspirationa Political Rally than the one previous At this time the opportunity will be presented to the three major parties to furnish whoever they choose, to say whatever they please in defense of the party and platform. Ample time will be given each speaker. Lots will be drawn to see who speaks first and last. Notice will be served on the speakers not to indulge into a mud-slinging talk, but to give the public a fair and square synopsis of the parties principles as the effect the American citizen with equality, and square deal to all alike.

Ample notice will be given the public in order to set aside other activities, if they choose to partake in a true non-partisan Political Rally, staged for the public's benefit to get a square deal out of a Political Meeting.

Yours for a more enlightened citizenary in matters pertaining to Public Welfare.

Paul Engelstad.

SOMETHING IN YOUR EYE? KEEP IT OPEN SAYS 'DOC'

Dust storms get under the eyelids of a great many people, and they are likely to produce some major casualties via the eye route, according to a bulletin from the Minnesota State Medical Association issued today.

The following instructions for removal of foreign bodies from the eye ball are given in the bulletin so as to avoid the serious infections that too often result from bungling, amateur attempts to get them out.

First When you feed something strike your eye, try not to close your lids. Sudden forceful closing of your lids may furthur embed the particle in the eyeball.

Hold the lids apart with your fingers. The sudden rush of tears which natures provides will help flush it out.

Second: If the same stinging sensation is still there after a minute or two, hold your head erect, look and grasp the lid in its central portion. Now pull the upper lid over the lower one, roll the eyeballs upward and release the upper lid. The edge of the lower lid or its lashes may brush off the particle if it is under the upper lid Try it two or three times if necessary.

If these maneuvers are unsuccessful, it is probable that the foreign body is embedded in the cornea, the shiny portion immediately in front of the pupil, an area on which you should keep hands off.

The doctors especially warn against allowing any one to use a knife or a pocket handkerchief or a toothpick. That's the way grave infections which sometimes result in impaired sight get into the eye. If several hours must elapse before you can get expert help, the bulletin advises application of plain boric acid ointment or plain petrolatum-not carbolated to the eyeball, in the meantime keeping the eyes closed and quiet. A spoonfull of castor oil or olive oil sterilized by putting it into a cup which is in turn placed in a pan of boiling water for 10 or 15 minutes and then cooled completely, can be used instead.

P C A BORROWERS ARE REPAYING THEIR LOANS

Many of Minnesota's 1509 PCA borrowers have already begun to repay their loans, using the opportunity make partial repayments, says E. C. Johnson, Vice-President of the Production Credit Corporation of St. Paul, which supervises the 88 associations in the 7th district.

This state had 1,695 members on June 20, including members who had joined at the time of organizing the associations in order to get them going, but who did not at that time any loans. On June 20 the loans to Minnesota members amounted to $828,000, the average loan in this state being $542 per borrower, Membership consists of those farmers who have borrowed from the PCA and have paid $5 per share for class B stock for each $100 they borrowed. None but members may borrow, and no applicant pays for his shares until he has received his loan.

All these loans are made upon good security for periods of 6 months, 9 months, or a year, depending upon when the member expects to have income from which he may repay his loan. Replacements being made from current or occasional marketing of farm products are weekly ranging up to several thousand dollars.

Renewals may be had in cases where there is sufficient security and the borrower has shown a willingness and effort to meet his obligations. These loans are not to be confused with "emergency" loans made under special arrangements to meet the drouth situation, but are strictly business loans, the earnings from which will go into the treasury of the local association to build up a guaranty and reserve fund, and to pay future dividends when the reserve is built up to 25 per cent of the outstanding capital stock. Total loans in the 88 associations amounted to $2,109,000 on June 20 and at that time there were 5,504 borrowers.

In the Rostrum

Dear Editor:

It is now quite a while since I promised the people of Rocksbury Township that at some time during the summer there would be staged a second Political Rally in Valhall Hall, at which time all aspirants for public offices would again have the opportunity to meet the Rocksbury voters on neutral grounds, without running from farm to farm peddling cards for votes.

Arrangements are now under way for a bigger, and more inspirational Political Rally than the one previous At this time the opportunity will be presented to the three major parties to furnish whoever they choose, to say whatever they please in defense of the party and platform. Ample time will be given each speaker. Lots will be drawn to see who speaks first and last. Notice will be served on the speakers not to indulge into a mudslinging talk, but to give the public a fair and square synopsis of the parties principles as the effect the American citizen with equality, and square deal to all alike.

Ample notice will be given the public in order to set aside other activities, if they choose to partake in a true non-partisan Political Rally, staged for the public's benefit to get a square deal out of a Political Meeting.

Yours for a more enlightened citizenary in matters pertaining to Public Welfare.

Paul Engelstad.

SOMETHING IN YOUR EYE? KEEP IT OPEN SAYS 'DOC'

Dust storms get under the eyelids of a great many people, and they are likely to produce some major casualties via the eye route, according to a bulletin from the Minnesota State Medical Association issued today.

The following instructions for removal of foreign bodies from the eye ball are given in the bulletin so as to avoid the serious infections that too often result from bungling, amateur attempts to get them out.

First When you feed something strike your eye, try not to close your lids. Sudden forceful closing of your lids may furthur embed the particle in the eyeball.

Hold the lids apart with your fingers. The sudden rush of tears which natures provides will help flush it out.

Second: If the same stinging sensation is still there after a minute or two, hold your head erect, look and grasp the lid in its central portion. Now pull the upper lid over the lower one, roll the eyeballs upward and release the upper lid. The edge of the lower lid or its lashes may brush off the particle if it is under the upper lid Try it two or three times if necessary.

If these maneuvers are unsuccessful, it is probable that the foreign body is embedded in the cornea, the shiny portion immediately in front of the pupil, an area on which you should keep hands off.

The doctors especially warn against allowing any one to use a knife or a pocket handkerchief or a toothpick. That's the way grave infections which sometimes result in impaired sight get into the eye. If several hours must elapse before you can get expert help, the bulletin advises application of plain boric acid ointment or plain petrolatum-not carbolated to the eyeball, in the meantime keeping the eyes closed and quiet. A spoonfull of castor oil or olive oil. sterilized by putting it into a cup which is in turn placed in a pan of boiling water for 10 or 15 minutes and then cooled completely, can be used instead.

P C A BORROWERS ARE REPAYING THEIR LOANS

Many of Minnesota's 1509 PCA borrowers have already begun to repay their loans, using the opportunity make partial repayments, says E. C. Johnson, Vice-President of the Production Credit Corporation of St. Paul, which supervises the 88 associations in the 7th district.

This state had 1,695 members on June 20, including members who had joined at the time of organizing the associations in order to get them going, but who did not at that time any loans. On June 20 the loans to Minnesota members amounted to $828,000, the average loan in this state being $542 per borrower. Membrship consists of those farmers who have borrowed from the PCA and have paid $5 per share for class B stock for each $100 they borrowed. None but members may borrow, and no applicant pays for his shares until he has received his loan.

All these loans are made upon good security for periods of 6 months, 9 months, or a year, depending upon when the member expects to have income from which he may repay his loan. Replacements being made from current or occasional marketing of farm products are weekly ranging up to several thousand dollars.

Renewals may be had in cases where there is sufficient security and the borrower has shown a willingness and effort to meet his obligations. These loans are not to be confused with "emergency" loans made under special arrangements to meet the drouth situation, but are strictly business loans, the earnings from which will go into the treasury of the local association to build up a guaranty and reserve fund, and to pay future dividends when the reserve is built up to 25 per cent of the outstanding capital stock. Total loans in the 88 associations amounted to $2,109,000 on June 20 and at that time there were 5,504 borrowers.

WHOSE FAULT IS IT, IF IT ISN'T MORE?

Commenting on Red Lake county's share of the income tax recently distributed to the school districts of the state by the state tax commission, the Red Lake Falls Gazette deplores that the distribution is not larger. "The principal trouble with the income tax, is that it does not bring in enough money," they state, "It was estimated that the state would collect $5,000,000 the first year. Instead of that it collected about one fifth."

Our understanding of the announcement released by the tax commission was that this distribution was of the first half year's collections, so that it would seem that the Gazette is only half right when they state that it failed to bring more than one-fifth of the sum estimated.

The Gazette is one of those newspapers that are to blame for the income tax bringing less relief to the taxpayers. They were among the newspapers of the state which were listed in a poll of the state's papers as being opposed to the statutory income tax. It might be enlightening for the Gazette to also know that those members of the legislature which they have held up as model and examplary lawmakers that it would be well for all other to emulate; such as for instance Mr. Hitchcock of Hibbing, opposed the income tax, and due to their efforts, the rate of taxation stops at 5 per cent on all incomes of $10,000 and over. The farmer-labor members favored a higher rate on large incomes. Some of them were quite outspoken in favor of as high as forty per cent, on incomes of half a million and over. Thanks to Hihchcock, Quinlivan, Kern, Pfaender and others the tax was hard enough to pass with the rate as it is. With these men out of the running and with a splendid chance of electing a farmer-labor majority in the next legislature, it is possible that the Gazette will have to worry less about the sum brought into the state's coffers by this tax in the future.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT CURSES HIS OFFSRING

The awful toll on human lives that is taken by the automobile was deplored, Saturday by President Roosevelt, who in commenting on the situation said:

> "We cannot afford to temporize with this problem. Those who use the highways must realize the responsibility they take when they take the wheel. Safer conditions of travel undoubtedly would contribute to the greater use of the high ways now that shorter working hours and more leisure time are assured by the National Recovery Act."

In view of the fact that there are even now in midsummer, some fifteen million unemployed, which is just about equal to the unemployment peak, the latter part of the president's statement is an invitation to caustic comment which we shall pass by. If after a year of NRA fizzles; three Darrow reports; bloody strikes and riots in all parts of the country; and ever swelling relief lists, the president is still harboring any illusions about his much touted National Recovery Act, he is more sanguine than the most uninformed country bumpkin.

What we wish to call attention to at this time is the fact that Mr. Roosevelt himself must accept the blame for the major part of the increase in automobile fatalities. Motor registrations have dropped. Hundreds of thousands of people who drove cars in the past can no longer afford to own them. But automobile accidents mount in number with appalling rapidity.

The St. Louis County Independent says:

> "Study of the statistics reveal that a majority of the 756,500 automobile accidents in the United States in 1933 occured an straight, dry roads in cleor weather, and involved cars in good condition driven by persons with a year or more experience. Over 75 per cent of these drivers were persons of mature age—from 25 to 64. The majority of the 30,000 deaths and 850,000 injured must be attributed to blunders."—(or booze.)

The addition in parenthesis is ours. Gasoline and alcohol will not mix. The age of speed and machines requires a sober people and if the accident statistics tell any tale at all, they tell us that we are less a sober people today than we were under prohibition. We never held and do not now hold any particular briefs of prohibition. It was not a success. No attempt was ever made to make it asuccess. Mr. Roosevelt knows this and knew it when he advocated repeal so fervently. The blessings of a 'balanced budget,' the millions for recovery, the millions who were to reemployed if we would only repeal prohibition has proven to be a chimera, and Mr. Roosevelt will have to face the fact that he was the main sponsor of repeal, and consequently he will also have to face the responsibility for the appaling increase in motor fatalities. His will be the larger of the share that can be placed on any individual. In the final analysis the blame must lay on the American people themselves who allow demagogues and cheap politicians sell them one gold brick after another, who will allow themselves time and time again to be stampeded over precipices.

We heard a man say a few days ago that a person should know better to drive a car when he is drinking. This is typical of our average mental age. Common sense would tell anyone that he should know better than to drink, whether he is driving a car or not.

CALIFORNIA HAS A HITLER

"Heads will roll" said Hitler, when uprisings against his tyranny took place in Germany. And heads have rolled, and the uprising has been quelled for a time but we tremble to think of the fate that will be his and his henchmen's when the day of settlement comes. Germany will probably be purged of "Hitlerism," but it will be in a bath of blood which will make the French revolution appear like two small boys in aback-alley scrap.

"Any man who fires a shot in the air will be courtmartialed. Shoot to kill," said Col. H. H. Mittelstaedt, of the California state militia, to the men under him on strike duty in the longshoremen strike in San Francisco. And so "heads are to roll" in America among those who demand justice from the robber barons of industry, if this would-be-murderer has his way. And American industry is to be "purged in blood" until no slave again dares to lift up his voice against a rotten economic system which denies to all but a small portion of the population an opportunity to provide for themselves and their children a decent living.

"Shoot to kill" and forever silence the mutterings of those who still have a job; but have nothing else.

King George issued such an order in 1776 and for 158 years we have celebrated the overthrow of his dynasty in America. But King Capital will not profit from his example, for tyrants never learn.

GERMANY'S BATH OF BLOOD

(St. Paul Daily News)

As further details become known it appears that Hitler has been quite thorough in cleaning his Nazi house.

More than 100 former aids and leaders of the Brown Shirts have been summarily executed according to reports of eye witnesses. Substantiation of this is to be seen in the refusal of the government to make public the list after an earlier announcement that it would be submitted.

Germany has had its bath and it only remains to be seen whether the immersion will be sufficient to ward off other attempts to get rid of Hitler.

Hitler, himself, is only a catspaw of a group of large industrialists who have held Germany in bondage since, if not before, the war. He built up his own following and thereby became a useful person to the group which is engaged in exploiting the country. When he ceases to be useful, or it is deemed time for a change of policy, Hitler will go the way of some of his subordinates.

Meanwhile, no doubt, Clarence Darrow expressed the general feeling in this country and, perhaps, internationally, when he hoped that Hitler would soon get a dose of his own medicine.

It is more immediate importance to us, however, to be eternally on guard that Hilterism or some equivalent does not get a foothold in our United States. An increasing number of half-wits here are playing with the idea of some form of dictatorship. They might take a look at Germany today. If they enjoy this kind of government by terrorism and deceit, they should join Hitler.

DRUNKEN DRIVERS

(Pope County Tribune)

According to W. G. Calderwood, well known prohibition worker, deaths caused by drunken drivers have increased in an alarming pace since repeal went into effect. It is estimated that the cost to the nation of the increased automobile wrecks due directly to intoxicated drivers has amounted to $70,000,000 for the first year. In checking up the utomobile accidents that happen nowadays, the story seems always to be about the same, that the driver of one of the cars has been having too many beers or drinks. Even in Glenwood, a business man stated that he was awakened one night when a young man tied to wrap his car around a telephone post while under the influence of strong drink.

Alcohol, gasoline and speed will not mix and sooner or later the nation will be aroused to the extent that no drunken or half drunken driver will be allowed to drive.

MR. RICHBERG'S ERROR

(Minneapolis Tribune)

It is a little distressing to learn from Donald R. Richberg, chief counsel of the NRA, that the national recovery administration is without an answer to the problem it purports to solve. We refer, of course, to the problem of keeping wages high for the workers, prices low for the consumer, and protecting small enterprises at all times from the burdensome consequences of special codes.

In commenting on the second Darrow report, Mr. Richberg said: "Perhaps, before its labors are concluded, the board will furnish its answer to the knotty question as to how industry should be operatied to produce high wages for labor, low prices for consumers and at the same time protect those small enterprises which can only survive by paying low wages and charging high prices. The NRA would welcome an authoritative answer to this question."

No one will take issue with Mr. Richberg when he characterizes this question as a "knotty" one. What will flabbergast the nation is the frank admission, by the chief counsel of the NRA, that it is still casting about for an authoritative answer to that quesion. Mr. Richberg, of course, was indulging in a polite sniff at the Darrow board. If the board is so ominiscient, he was asking in effect, why doesn't it tell the NRA how it can guarantee a square deal for the worker, the consumer and the small industry at one and the same time?

The truth is, obiviously, that the Darrow board can't and doesn't pretend to be able to do so. The problem which Mr. Richberg stated so admirably is NRA's own. What the NRA was supposed to do he now presents as a problem in higher economics which baffles even the great mind of Clarence Darrow.

The Richberg statement, of course, was a sly dig at the Darrow board. Where it erred was in making the job which NRA has attempted appear virtually impossible of accomplishment. Certainly the "knotty question" has never been stated more accurately than by Mr. Richberg himself, who has now placed himself in the unenviable position of inviting the Darrow board to help the NRA chase rainbows.

PEOPLES LOBBY SAYS CONGRESS STARVED PEOPLE TO SUBSIDIZE PROPERTY

(St. Louis County Independent)

"The 73rd Congress will be known as the Congress which subsidized property and starved people," says the People's Lobby through its executive secretary, Benjamin C. March. He points out that "at least five million people are far below a decent living standard, and as many more near it."

Although nearly two-fifth of the total national income in 1932 was from property and 5 per cent of the people received most of this property income, Marsh says, "most legislation enacted by the last Congress was to protect property interests, at the peril of producers and consumers."

The housing bill program is described as "sinister handouts to land speculators and profiteers in building materials," in the Lobby statement; the Public Works administration has "degenerated into federal largesse for landowners and allied parasites; and the R. F. C. is called "first aid to gambling financial interests."

The Revenue Act, Marsh says, "cuts consuming power of the masses by about one and a half billion dollars, for the benefit of the rich. The masses of the unemployed are worse off today than in March, 1933, while the unemployed—still four-fifths of the peak—are kept on a puritanical diet for which the next generation will pay."

A SERIOUS SITUATION

Last Friday at Muscatine, Iowa Howard Wells and his wife, Clara, ended their troubles by walking hand inhand into the waters of the Mississippi river. Without work for a long time, and nothing to eat in the home, they became tried of the battle and decided to end their misery.

To the police who arrived at the Well's home, one of the Wells children said: "We hadn't had anything to eat for a week, so this morning, ma and pa went down and walked into the river."

AND THIS HAPPENED IN THE UNITED STATES WHERE THE FARMER GETS LITTLE FOR HIS GRAIN BECAUSE THERE IS AN OVER PRODUCTION. Something is wrong somewhere.—Breckenridge Telegram.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Large bodies move slowly. Public sentiment has been, and still is slow to express itself in relation to the results of repeal. Yet the tide of protest is rising. The school authorities of San Diego are shocked at the evils and the defiant indecency of the legalized traffic. O. A. Darnell, one of the members of the school board is quoted in vigorous denunciation of present conditions. "In the old saloon days," he says, "we had much better regulations to protect our children. Now every movement is for liberalization. Those who voted for repeal are sorry. The results are not at all what was expected. Conditions are much worse now—crime and bootlegging have increased."

The truth is dawning on the people. It blares from the pages even of papers which were strong advocates of repeal only a few months ago. The St. Paul Daily News recently ran a series of front-page editorials which told of the debaucheny of youth—and even childhood in that city. In Chicago papers we read, "Young men and women, some of them mere boys and girls drop in for casual drinks and even more casual "necking" . . . dimly lighter dance room . . . couples twist and writhe in drunken rythm to music . . . girl, apparently intoxicated, dancing on top of table . . . couples dance closer and closer . . . students of high school obviously only 14 or 15 years old . . . blond child of about 16 is dancing, skirts to her hips. Most of the girls appear to be of the nice type to be found in West Side homes." The articles indicate that many of the nice type of girls are led into the vortex of ruin in these licensed gilded dens.

Condensed fom "Tumult in France" by Mathew Josephson in Common Sense magazine for June, 1934, by R. M. Aalbu.

Returning to western Europe from Russia, one undergoes a shock, as in descending from a rarified mountain air into the plains. Here in these cities, all the worn, hypocritical furnishings of "bougeois" society are still incredibly preserved. In the cafes and streets the prostitutes still ply their trade; the pimps are still eleganly dressed; the stockbrokers on their way to the bourse are ruddy and cheerful, though swarms of beggars, greater than ever before, beset the pedestrian from every hand. The most persistent among them, the official agents of beggary who devote themselves to keeping the unemployed in their fixed condition of misery. They call for alms in the name of the Roman church, the Salvation Army, the Red Cross or Hitler, depending on the country.

For a month I had lived among a people so busy building cities of socialism that there was no time for charity nor for armies of unemployed. Nor was the lethargic pace of economic activity in western Europe credible after Russia. Why so many "For Rent" or "To Let" signs everywhere? Despite the modest "recovery" announced in the spring of 1934, I grew familiar with slogans of business decay in Polish, German, Dutch, French and Spanish as well as English. The shopwindows were more brilliant and abundantly stocked than those in Moscow despite the great gains in distribution under the five year plan. But in Moscow shops were thronged, in Paris a half a dozen clerks leaped to serve you; a surfeit of merchandise was offered "for sale." But few people bought anything. Many of the conveniences to be had so easily in Paris "Little Bourgeoisie" as I lingered in the spring of 1934. Economic excesses had been modest in spite of the Stavinskis and the mass industrialism of the ill-fated Citroen; modest, compared to those in the United States. Therefore her depression had been a minimal one. The system of the bourgeois-democratic parliament halt suffered. The years following the peace had been prosperous for France but world events and world markets began to touch even her. And because French populace is still better fed and more self-respecting than neighboring countries, the reaction to a modified depression is more veciferous than elsewhere. Besides the French temper is more impetuous and veciferous.

When the depression reached almost its full force they saw the taxpayers riots of early 1933. A year later the streets were given over to combat between militants. The royal- and Madrid were still lacking in Russia, yet I had the impression that it was western capitals that were topsyturvy rather than the Russian.

The people of the west persisted stubbornly in ignorance of the new society rising in the east. Continuing with old pretentions, prejudices, fears, hatreds, class divisions. They were in agony. Europe's old agony.

France was still the paradise of the ist-fascists rioted nightly near the chamber of deputies. Walking in the once peaceful boulevard Saint-Germain one woul be caught between the fists of the Camelots du Roi and the clubs of the police. The police "put-down" the royalists very gently, fraternizing with them while "arresting" them. (At the other side of the town, before the Hotel de Ville, the same police confronted crowds of Communists with drawn revolvers). For the cohorts of the Action Francaise, numerically weak tho they were, had their part to play, and the police knew it.

There are at the most 15,000 active royalists in France, against 250,000 "Humanite" and approximately 500,000 votes for communism. The royalists have no working class following; but they have a legion of middle-class youth who court excitement and enjoy being the ultra-modern playboys of politics. They receive stipends from capitalists like Coty, and in a pinch they have been known to fill out their ranks with Senegalese and Algerians at five franks per riot. Their functions are limited by the paymasters to provoction. The capitalists have no interest in the last of the Bourbons; but they would pay the royalists to provoke not only the working class but also as on Febuary 6th, the shop keepers and government employees until a suffcient tumult is worked up to "feel" for a dictatorship. This is precisely what honest observers believe happened on February 6th.

Definitely alligned with the royalists are the two other fascist movements; the Croix de Feu, and the Jeunesse atriote. Finally there was the hope that the Anceins Combatants composed of 3,000,000 ex-soldiers, would be swung upon the road to fascism. No one knows who fired the first shots into the ranks of the unarmed veterans on the night of February 6th. The trick was nearly turned—yet to date, the exsoldiers have not come out for fascism. They are divided by lines including socialists, communists and democrats in great numbers. In the streets of the French cities, the communists and socialists far outnumber the Royalists, J. P.'s and Croux de Feu combined and in conflicts, nearly always rout them. This of course is no promise of salvation so long as the worker's parties fail to win complete government power and the fascists meanwhile work to spread disorder.

In the historic events of February, these who desired a Fascists capitalism rioted against the "corruption" of the present parliamentary-capitalist regime. The industrialists and bankers who preside over France's mountain of gold, but are dissatisfied with parliamentary government stood behind the fascists up to a certain point. The crisis was artfully intensified; the country was thrown into alarm and after a few tumultuous days the parliamentary alliance between the radical, (really "liberal") party of Herriot and the Social-Democratic party of Leon Blum was broken; and the "Bloc National" was revived under the leadership of Doumergue.

The republic was "saved" as the franc had been "saved" and the war had been 'won" by the bloc national. The quarrelling fractions among the capitalists and the middle class was united as effectively as by a fascist coup d'etat. The government of "political truce" (having excluded the 107

WEEKLY WASHINGTON LETTER

Two Minnesota Congressmen Stay at Washington

All indications point to Congressman Lundeen as the last of the Minnesota delegation to leave Washington after the adjournment of Congress. Congressman Shoemaker was the first to be found in the home state arriving in March to conduct his Senatorial campaign. Chase followed several weeks later, also before adjournment, returned to Washington before the close of the session, and has now left for Minnesota again. Arens, Johnson, Christianson, Knutson and Hoidale left soon after adjournment. Senator Shipstead is expected to leave within a day, the Schall, who has no campaign on his hands this year, will probably remain for a few weeks. Kvale is kept in Washington as a member of the sub-committee of the House Military Affairs Committee investigating War department purchases of automobiles, planes, etc. He will probably be in Washington for about ten days.

The date of Lundeen's return is still indefinite. He expects to call on several Department officials to sound them out on certain Minnesota public works projects, including the North Minneapolis Harbor, the Chicago Chain of Lakes, the Lake Minnetonka and Minnehaha Creek restoration project, and the development of the St. Croix River, giving a nine-foot channel to the city of Stillwater.

Also on his calander are calls on Relief Administrators, for the purpose of gaining assurance that an adequate allotment of funds will be made for schools. Al though the primary is over and his opposition in the third district is definitely known, he stated on the floor of the House June 18 that he expects to stay in Washington until he receives assurance that an adequate allotment will be made for schools in adlition to the $75,000,000 provided in the Loans to Industry Bill for teachers' salaries.

GENERAL JOHNSON "CAN'T TAKE" DARROW'S CRITICISM

After submitting his final 120 page report, which doubtless contains plenty of dynamite, but will not be made public until the White House sees fit to publish it, Clarence Darrow,greatest criminal lawyer in America, severed his connection with the NRA. Johnson has no use for Darrow's scathing denunciation of "monopolistic" and "oppressive" codes, and Darrow has no use for Johnson's fear of criticism.

Slaves Brought From Africa

While there are no definite figures on the number of slaves brought from Africa to the western hemisphere, this importation went on for about 360 years, from about 1517 to about 1880 when the last slaves were imported into Cuba and Brazil. One estimate places the number at 12,000,000.

A Fighting Chance

LAWRENCE HAWTHORNE

There's a good, old baseball maxim
That is true of life, as well;
And it ought to be adopted
By the folks who try to tell
Whether fortune will be better
In the days that lie ahead,
Or be full of disappointments
And unhappiness, instead.

It's a mighty helpful doctrine
For a man to contemplate
When he's facing loss or failure,
Whether trivial or great;
It will give him hope and courage;
It will show him at a glance
That you never are defeated
While you have a fighting chance

Any baseball star will tell you
That he plays to get the breaks—
Bearing down just so much harder
In the face of bad mistakes;
And he wins a lot of ball games,
For he knows beyond a doubt
That "a game is never ended

WHOSE FAULT IS IT, IF IT ISN'T MORE?

Commenting on Red Lake county's share of the income tax recently distributed to the school districts of the state by the state tax commission, the Red Lake Falls Gazette deplores that the distribution is not larger. "The principal trouble with the income tax, is that it does not bring in enough money," they state, "It was estimated that the state would collect $5,000,000 the first year. Instead of that it collected about one fifth."

Our understanding of the announcement released by the tax commission was that this distribution was of the first half year's collections, so that it would seem that the Gazette is only half right when they state that it failed to bring more than one-fifth of the sum estimated.

The Gazette is one of those newspapers that are to blame for the income tax bringing less relief to the taxpayers. They were among the newspapers of the state which were listed in a poll of the state's papers as being opposed to the statutory income tax. It might be enlightening for the Gazette to also know that those members of the legislature which they have held up as model and examplary lawmakers that it would be well for all other to emulate; such as for instance Mr. Hitchcock of Hibbing, opposed the income tax, and due to their efforts, the rate of taxation stops at 5 per cent on all incomes of $10,000 and over. The farmer-labor members favored a higher rate on large incomes. Some of them were quite outspoken in favor of as high as forty per cent, on incomes of half a million and over. Thanks to Hihchcock, Quinlivan, Kern, Pfaender and others the tax was hard enough to pass with the rate as it is. With these men out of the running and with a splendid chance of electing a farmer-labor majority in the next legislature, it is possible that the Gazette will have to worry less about the sum brought into the state's coffers by this tax in the future.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT CURSES HIS OFFSRING

The awful toll on human lives that is taken by the automobile was deplored, Saturday by President Roosevelt, who in commenting on the situation said:

> "We cannot afford to temporize with this problem. Those who use the highways must realize the responsibility they take when they take the wheel. Safer conditions of travel undoubtedly would contribute to the greater use of the high ways now that shorter working hours and more leisure time are assured by the National Recovery Act."

In view of the fact that there are even now in midsummer, some fifteen million unemployed, which is just about equal to the unemployment peak, the latter part of the president's statement is an invitation to caustic comment which we shall pass by. If after a year of NRA fizzles; three Darrow reports; bloody strikes and riots in all parts of the country; and ever swelling relief lists, the president is still harboring any illusions abount his much touted National Recovery Act, he is more sanguine than the most uninformed country bumpkin.

What we wish to call attention to at this time is the fact that Mr. Roosevelt himself must accept the blame for the major part of the increase in automobile fatalities. Motor registrations have dropped. Hundreds of thousands of people who drove cars in the past can no longer afford to own them. But automobile accidents mount in number with appalling rapidity.

The St. Louis County Independent says:

> "Study of the statistics reveal that a majority of the 756,500 automobile accidents in the United States in 1933 occured an straight, dry roads in clear weather, and involved cars in good condition driven by persons with a year or more experience. Over 75 per cent of these drivers were persons of mature age—from 25 to 64. The majority of the 30,000 deaths and 850,000 injured must be attributed to blunders."—(or booze.)

The addition in parenthesis is ours. Gasoline and alcohol will not mix. The age of speed and machines requires a sober people and if the accident statistics tell any tale at all, they tell us that we are less a sober people today than we were under prohibition. We never held and do not now hold any particular briefs of prohibition. It was not a success. No attempt was ever made to make it asuccess. Mr. Roosevelt knows this and knew it when he advocated repeal so fervently. The blessings of a 'balanced budget,' the millions for recovery, the millions who were to reemployed if we would only repeal prohibition has proven to be a chimera, and Mr. Roosevelt will have to face the fact that he was the main sponsor of repeal, and consequently he will also have to face the responsibility for the appaling increase in motor fatalities. His will be the larger of the share that can be placed on any individual. In the final analysis the blame must lay on the American people themselves who allow demagogues and cheap politicians sell them one gold brick after another, who will allow themselves time and time again to be stampeded over precipices.

We heard a man say a few days ago that a person should know better to drive a car when he is drinking. This is typical of our average mental age. Common sense would tell anyone that he should know better than to drink, whether he is driving a car or not.

CALIFORNIA HAS A HITLER

"Heads will roll" said Hitler, when uprisings against his tyranny took place in Germany. And heads have rolled, and the uprising has been quelled for a time but we tremble to think of the fate that will be his and his henchmen's when the day of settlement comes. Germany will probably be purged of "Hitlerism," but it will be in a bath of blood which will make the French revolution appear like two small boys in aback-alley scrap.

"Any man who fires a shot in the air will be courtmartialed. Shoot to kill," said Col. H. H. Mittelstaedt, of the California state militia, to the men under him on strike duty in the longshoremen strike in San Francisco. And so "heads are to roll" in America among those who demand justice from the robber barons of industry, if this would-be-murderer has his way. And American industry is to be "purged in blood" until no slave again dares to lift up his voice against a rotten economic system which denies to all but a small portion of the population an opportunity to provide for themselves and their children a decent living.

"Shoot to kill" and forever silence the mutterings of those who still have a job; but have nothing else.

King George issued such an order in 1776 and for 158 years we have celebrated the overthrow of his dynasty in America. But King Capital will not profit from his example, for tyrants never learn.

From Our Exchanges

GERMANY'S BATH OF BLOOD
(St. Paul Daily News)

As further details become known it appears that Hitler has been quite thorough in cleaning his Nazi house.

More than 100 former aids and leaders of the Brown Shirts have been summarily executed according to reports of eye witnesses. Substantiation of this is to be seen in the refusal of the government to make public the list after an earlier announcement that it would be submitted.

Germany has had its bath and it only remains to be seen whether the immersion will be sufficient to ward off other attempts to get rid of Hitler.

Hitler, himself, is only a catspaw of a group of large industrialists who have held Germany in bondage since, if not before, the war. He built up his own following and thereby became a useful person to the group which is engaged in exploiting the country. When he ceases to be useful, or it is deemed time for a change of policy, Hitler will go the way of some of his subordinates.

Meanwhile, no doubt, Clarence Darrow expressed the general feeling in this country and, perhaps, internationally, when he hoped that Hitler would soon get a dose of his own medicine.

It is more immediate importance to us, however, to be eternally on guard that Hilterism or some equivalent does not get a foothold in our United States. An increasing number of half-wits here are playing with the idea of some form of dictatorship. They might take a look at Germany today. If they enjoy this kind of government by terrorism and deceit, they should join Hitler.

DRUNKEN DRIVERS
(Pope County Tribune)

According to W. G. Calderwood, well known prohibition worker, deaths caused by drunken drivers have increased in an alarming pace since repeal went into effect. It is estimated that the cost to the nation of the increased automobile wrecks due directly to intoxicated drivers has amounted to $70,000,000 for the first year. In checking up the utomobile accidents that happen nowadays, the story seems always to be about the same, that the driver of one of the cars has been having too many beers or drinks. Even in Glenwood, a business man stated that he was awakened one night when a young man tied to wrap his car around a telephone post while under the influence of strong drink.

Alcohol, gasoline and speed will not mix and sooner or later the nation will be aroused to the extent that no drunken or half drunken driver will be allowed to drive.

MR. RICHBERG'S ERROR
(Minneapolis Tribune)

It is a little distressing to learn from Donald R. Richberg, chief counsel of the NRA, that the national recovery administration is without an answer to the problem it purports to solve. We refer, of course, to the problem of keeping wages high for the workers, prices low for the consumer, and protecting small enterprises at all times from the burdensome consequences of special codes.

In commenting on the second Darrow report, Mr. Richberg said: "Perhaps, before its labors are concluded, the board will furnish its answer to the knotty question as to how industry should be operatied to produce high wages for labor, low prices for consumers and at the same time protect those small enterprises which can only survive by paying low wages and charging high prices. The NRA would welcome an authoritative answer to this question."

No one will take issue with Mr. Richberg when he characterizes this question as a "knotty" one. What will flabbergast the nation is the frank admission, by the chief counsel of the NRA, that it is still casting about for an authoritative answer to that quesion. Mr. Richberg, of course, was indulging in a polite sniff at the Darrow board. If the board is so ominiscient, he was asking in effect, why doesn't it tell the NRA how it can guarantee a square deal for the worker, the consumer and the small industry at one and the same time?

The truth is, obiviously, that the Darrow board can't and doesn't pretend to be able to do so. The problem which Mr. Richberg stated so admirably is NRA's own. What the NRA was supposed to do he now presents as a problem in higher economics which baffles even the great mind of Clarence Darrow.

The Richberg statement, of course, was a sly dig at the Darrow board. Where it erred was in making the job which NRA has attempted appear virtually impossible of accomplishment. Certainly the "knotty question" has never been stated more accurately than by Mr. Richberg himself, who has now placed himself in the unenviable position of inviting the Darrow board to help the NRA chase rainbows.

PEOPLES LOBBY SAYS CONGRESS STARVED PEOPLE TO SUBSIDIZE PROPERTY
(St. Louis County Independent)

"The 73rd Congress will be known as the Congress which subsidized property and starved people," says the People's Lobby through its executive secretary, Benjamin C. March. He points out that "at least five million people are far below a decent living standard, and as many more near it."

Although nearly two-fifth of the total national income in 1932 was from property and 5 per cent of the people received most of this property income, Marsh says, "most legislation enacted by the last Congress was to protect property interests, at the peril of producers and consumers."

The housing bill program is described as "sinister handouts to land speculators and profiteers in building materials," in the Lobby statement; the Public Works administration has "degenerated into federal largesse for landowners and allied parasites; and the R. F. C. is called "first aid to gambling financial interests."

The Revenue Act, Marsh says, "cuts consuming power of the masses by about one and a half billion dollars, for the benefit of the rich. The masses of the unemployed are worse off today than in March, 1933, while the unemployed—still four-fifths of the peak—are kept on a puritanical diet for which the next generation will pay."

A SERIOUS SITUATION

Last Friday at Muscatine, Iowa Howard Wells and his wife, Clara, ended their troubles by walking hand inhand into the waters of the Mississippi river. Without work for a long time, and nothing to eat in the home, they became tried of the battle and decided to end their misery.

To the police who arrived at the Well's home, one of the Wells children said: "We hadn't had anything to eat for a week, so this morning, ma and pa went down and walked into the river."

AND THIS HAPPENED IN THE UNITED STATES WHERE THE FARMER GETS LITTLE FOR HIS GRAIN BECAUSE THERE IS AN OVER PRODUCTION. Something is wrong somewhere.—Breckenridge Telegram.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Large bodies move slowly. Public sentiment has been, and still is slow to express itself in relation to the results of repeal. Yet the tide of protest is rising. The school authorities of San Diego are shocked at the evils and the defiant indecency of the legalized traffic. O. A. Darnell, one of the members of the school board is quoted in vigorous denunciation of present conditions. "In the old saloon days," he says, "we had much better regulations to protect our children. Now every movement is for liberalization. Those who voted for repeal are sorry. The results are not at all what was expected. Conditions are much worse now—crime and bootlegging have increased."

The truth is dawning on the people. It blares from the pages even of papers which were strong advocates of repeal only a few months ago. The St. Paul Daily News recently ran a series of front-page editorials which told of the debaucheny of youth—and even childhood in that city. In Chicago papers we read, "Young men and women, some of them mere boys and girls drop in for casual drinks and even more casual "necking" . . . dimly lighter dance room . . . couples twist and writhe in drunken rythm to music . . . girl, apparently intoxicated, dancing on top of table . . . couples dance closer and closer . . . students of high school obviously only 14 or 15 years old . . . blond child of about 16 is dancing, skirts to her hips. Most of the girls appear to be of the nice type to be found in West Side homes." The articles indicate that many of the nice type of girls are led into the vortex of ruin in these licensed gilded dens.

An incipient tide of indignation and apprehension is rising. It may sweep on to a mighty flood. A United Press dispatch under Washington date line states that "wet and dry Senate leaders are agreed that conditions resulting from repeal are intolerable, and that prohibition will soon return unless there is speedy improvement." The congressman who voted to declare 3.2 per cent beer non-intoxicating now see that the action was a blunder. Millions who voted to ratify repeal are now sick at heart over the results.

Arens, Johnson, Christianson, Knutson and Hoidale left soon after adjournment. Senator Shipstead is expected to leave within a day, the Schall, who has no campaign on his hands this year, will probably remain for a few weeks. Kvale is kept in Washington as a member of the sub-committee of the House Military Affairs Committee investigating War department purchases of automobiles, planes, etc. He will probably be in Washington for about ten days.

The date of Lundeen's return is still indefinite. He expects to call on several Department officials to sound them out on certain Minnesota public works projects, including the North Minneapolis Harbor, the Chicago Chain of Lakes, the Lake Minnetonka and Minnehaha Creek restoration project, and the development of the St. Croix River, giving a nine-foot channel to the city of Stillwater.

Also on his calander are calls on Relief Administrators, for the purpose of gaining assurance that an adequate allotment of funds will be made for schools. Al though the primary is over and his opposition in the third district is definitely known, he stated on the floor of the House June 18 that he expects to stay in Washington until he receives assurance that an adequate allotment will be made for schools in adlition to the $75,000,000 provided in the Loans to Industry Bill for teachers' salaries.

GENERAL JOHNSON "CAN'T TAKE" DARROW'S CRITICISM

After submitting his final 120 page report, which doubtless contains plenty of dynamite, but will not be made public until the White House sees fit to publish it, Clarence Darrow, greatest criminal lawyer in America, severed his connection with the NRA. Johnson has no use for Darrow's scathing denunciation of "monopolistic" and "oppressive" codes, and Darrow has no use for Johnson's fear of criticism.

Slaves Brought From Africa

While there are no definite figures on the number of slaves brought from Africa to the western hemisphere, this importation went on for about 360 years, from about 1517 to about 1880 when the last slaves were imported into Cuba and Brazil. One estimate places the number at 12,000,000.

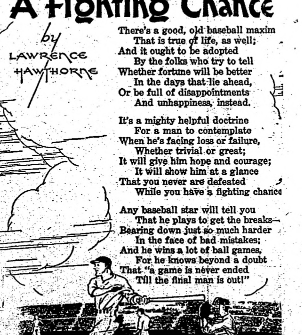
A Fighting Chance



There's a good, old baseball maxim
That is true of life, as well;
And it ought to be adopted
By the folks who try to tell
Whether fortune will be better
In the days that lie ahead,
Or be full of disappointments
And unhappiness, instead.

It's a mighty helpful doctrine
For a man to contemplate
When he's facing loss or failure,
Whether trivial or great;
It will give him hope and courage;
It will show him at a glance
That you never are defeated
While you have a fighting chance

Any baseball star will tell you
That he plays to get the breaks—
Bearing down just so much harder
In the face of bad mistakes;
And he wins a lot of ball games,
For he knows beyond a doubt
That "a game is never ended

Our Community Builders

THE CITY'S FIRST CLERK RELATES STORY OF COMMUNITY'S EARLY STRUGGLES.

The gentleman selected as our first subject in this series of articles is Lars Backe, an unswerving and fair-minded pioneer and community builder, who has watched our city of Thief River Falls pass nearly a half century of milestones in its growth and progress.

Lars Backe was born in Norway on August 29, 1856, the son of Bartel and Eline Backe who were farmers of the old country. He received his education and early training in his native land, and came to Minnesota in 1880. He worked on a homestead in Marshall County previously to coming to Thief River Falls in 1888. Backe spent several years in Arygle, but returned here in 1891 and has made his residence here since.

Mr. Backe has taken an active part in organizing the city and laying the foundation for what our city is today. In the various city offices he has held, he has proven himself entirely capable and efficient, upholding the public interest and trust.

From 1893 until November 4, 1896, Backe held the office of village recorder, being the second person to hold that office. In 1896, the city organization took effect, and his judgment proved indispensable in this big step toward our city's upbuilding. Mr. Backe has an interesting anecdote to relate in regard to this period: It seems that the sawmill people who had their holdings across the river, opposed the organization of the city because it would bring them into the corporate limits. They preferred to be in the town of North because taxes would be higher in the city. They applied for a mandamus against the newly elected city officers under the city organization with intent to keep in the old village council. The mandamus proceedings were set aside, and an appeal was made to the Supreme Court which decided that the city was duly organized as Thief River Falls under the provisions of Chapter 8, Laws of 1895. But the lumber interests were dissatisfied, and so one day when Mr. Backe, the new city clerk, was on a business trip to Crookston, they made an attempt to overthrow the new government, and re-establish the old village council. Upon returning in the evening, Backe was surprised to find a crowd waiting outside the city hall, with a meeting of the old village council in full swing inside, passing bills and transacting matters of business in their own way. The key of the city hall had been given to the police, which Backe obtained and then entered his office. He was ordered to get out, whereupon Backe informed them that he had been elected city clerk by the people and had a right to be there, and said it was for them to get out. They did, and there was no trouble thereafter.

From 1896 and for the ensuing fourteen years, Mr. Backe served as city clerk. In 1911, he was elected mayor, and held that office for two terms, during which time he was instrumental together with the library board, in bringing the Carnegie Public Library to the city. He served as probate judge for twelve years, commencing in 1920.

Lars Backe did much to promote good schools and was a member of the local school board for 23 years. He was the first clerk of Independent School District No. 18 during its first years, later holding the office of president, and up to 1922, he was treasurer of the board for a number of years.

Always looking to the public welfare, Backe was one of the first volunteers of the local fire department in its early days, and was secretary of that organization for several years.

He took part in the building of the city electric light plant, and getting it under way. There was considerable entreaty, opposition and discouragement at its commencement by private interests who wanted to gain control of the plant rather than have it city owned. Mr. Backe says that Carl Kretzschmar, who had control of its power site, deserves a lot of credit for refusing to let the power interests get control. "These were the years during which the real foundation of the city was laid by men with foresight for the public welfare," Mr. Backe says.

Mr. Backe was married July, 1884 in Ottertail County, Minnesota to Kerstie Loken, who passed away December 1889. Three children blessed the union: Emma, who is Mrs. Gaston Ward of this city; Bartel L., who is employed with the U. S. mail service in Los Angeles, California; and Clara (Mrs. S. Loveid) who passed away in the summer of 1933.

Backe was a charter member of the Lutheran Synod Church, which later incorporated to the Trinity Lutheran Church, and up until a few fears ago, he was secretary of that organization. He is also a member of the Sons of Norway, and the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

"All one has to do is to use common sense and do something for the public interest" is the motto which Mr. Backe has abided by and which accounts for his enviable wisdom and judgment throughout his personal and public life. He has made his home for uany years with his daughter, Mrs. Gaston Ward in this city, and finds peace and enjoyment in his daily walks and visits with his old friends, and in communion with his God.

LIBERAL DIGEST

Socialit deputies) could cut budgets by lowering civil service salaries discharging railway workers and reducing pensions as thoroughly as any fascist government. Its secret police, making preventive arrests, cowing the populace could function as ruthlessly-always under democratic laws—and less wastefully than a horde of colored "shirts." But the working classes were brought together in the United Front.

The Socialist party of France has a less shameful record than that of Germany before 1933. Its policy has been one of growth during abstentation from power. The last two years of "negative collboration" with the middle party of the "radical-socialistes" during which it could be truthfully said that some of the sums voted for Austrian loans were used to shoot down Austrian socialists--have proven disastrous. The socialists now pursue the tactics of the United Front with the Communists—and more real than was formerly possible in Germany. Street action, strikes, manifestations—some of them on an enormous scale are never honestly reported in the French press—continue from week to week. After the February days in Paris and Vienna, the mood of the workers is serious, not only in France, and Spain but also in Belgium, Switzerland, Sweden, Holland Fascism as it is practiced in Germany has not whetted the appetite of the masses for a Hitler or a Dollfuss.

There is a fear of war everywhere. I had occasion to talk with people of all sorts about war and was astonished at the growing pacifism in France. All remarked in effect with one voice, "I would as lief go to a madhouse as to the front again." The French government could not have launched "preventive" war against Germany if it had wanted to. Now the revival of the class struggle gives hope that imperialist war may be postponed for some time in western Europe.

At the present time it is common report that the workers are constantly arming themselves, and the police consequently hunt for their nests of arms.

Capitalism is fighting a defensive battle. This explains the contradictions of its maneuvers for instance, the salary cuts of 800,000 civil workers will tend to deepen the depression. But capitalism is still tremendously strong in comparison with Germany and Italy. It can hold the country well in hand, it can buy off Hitler for a time. It need not move toward autocracy unless the great middle party, the "Radical" should split. But must not forget the long tradition of militancy, tenacity and courage of the French working class—especially in Paris—a decisive turn towards Fascism might bring a civil conflagration which would make the episode in Vienna seem like a comic opera.

White Muskrat

There is no such animal as a white muskrat as a breed of animal, White animals of many different kinds "happen" and this includes muskrats, but they are albino animals. They have no value apart from being curiosities.

OLD BIKE LAWS ARE STILL ON THE BOOKS

One set of laws, passed in 1897 and still in force, is puzzling the officials, says the Los Angeles Times. These laws provide that the county supervisors can grant franchises for as long as 50 years, for roads, paths, etc., for bicycles and other horseless vehicles. No one seems to know just exactly what it means, but the law is still on the books and suggests a forgotten occupation which might or might not be resuscitated with profit.

And here are some points both cyclists and autoists should bear in mind. It is unlawful for a bicycle to be parked in a loading zone, but it is also unlawful for a truck or other vehicle to damage it. The cyclist can collect damages even though he himself has broken the law. On the other hand, a cyclist is one of the few persons who is liable for both real and punitive damages if, while breaking the law, he injures a pedestrian. A cyclist riding on the left side of the street faces the full limit of damage action if he hits anyone.

Effects of Smoking

Completion of tests by Dr. A. L. Winsor, of Cornell university, indicate that the effect of smoking upon the human body depends upon the individual smoker, says Pathfinder Magazine. Not only the physique of the smoker but the manner of smoking and the amount smoked are the determining factors. He found that one cigarette—if inhaled—was enough to affect the steadiness of a non-smoker but a cigarette now and then actually steadied a regular smoker. Excessive smokers have a tendency to unsteadiness. He found that the body develops a tolerance for nicotine up to a certain point and excessive in this case is taken to mean an amount beyond that point.

Flea Mart Seeks Tariff Aid

The demands of the dealers at the Marche aux Puces that the wares that they sell shall not be subject to foreign competition is quite natural in these protectionist times, writes the Paris correspondent of the London Sunday Observer. "Buy French fleas only" is no doubt their cry. Of course fleas are not the only things sold at this famous market, in spite of its name, although they are the only live stock. Any kind of junk—including an occasional artistic masterpiece or antiquarian rarity and a large number of "fakes"—can be found there; but its really important trade is in second-hand clothes; and it is upon these that higher import duties are demanded.

World Represented at Meals

A report on the coffee, tea and spice industry in Canada shows how half the world is called on to contribute some of the most common things of the meal table. For example, British East Africa supplies most of the cloves for Canadians. Mustard seed comes from the Netherlands, nutmegs from the Straits Settlements and the British West Indies, pepper from the British and Dutch East Indies, Ceylon and the Straits Settlements; spices from the Far East, ginger from British India and Spain. In return for these products Canada sells to the countries from which they are bought wheat, flour and a variety of manufactured products.

We knew that Super Shell would be a great success, because Shell's new supercharging process packs up to 6900 extra firing charges into every gallon. These extra firing charges give you greater power, quicker pick-up, and—as you motorists tell us—from 1 to 3 miles more per gallon.

When a Congressman Resigns

When a congressman wishes to resign he sends his resignation to the governor of his state, or to the presiding officer of the house of congress of which he is a member. The usual practice in the house is to send the letter of resignation to the governor, also notifying the speaker of the house. If the member resigns directly to the senate or the house, the body to which he belongs orders the presiding officer to inform the governor of his state of the resignation.

English Unite Sports

Sports in all parts of the world is being united by English, according to a European student, and football is one of the games with an almost universal language. The French play "football," and Spanish and South American countries call it "el futbol," which is near enough. The German "outside" wing man scores a "goal" in football, he plays for his "team" and does his "training" if his club is playing for a "cup." And the game itself, as in France, is "football." Players in France, Germany and Italy are all penalized by the referee if they have committed a "foul." In fact, no footballer need worry about being misunderstood anywhere in the world. "Goal," "offside" and "center" are practically universal words today.

This Bird Has Speed

At widely-separated points on the prairies, says Nature Magazine, you find outcrops of sandstone, forming cliffs or buttes, and here you are sure to find in the portholes or on ledges the brick-red eggs of that most splendid of all our birds of prey—the prairie falcon. A bird of marvelous speed and indomitable courage, this little falcon typifies the wild freedom of the Great Plains. Less frequently you come upon the eyries of the majestic golden eagle. The nests, which are often used for generations, are added to, year after year, until the material composing them would fill the body of a wagon.

The World's Oil Supply

Petroleum in known deposits and at the rate of the present consumption is sufficient to last the world for the next 30 centuries, according to Dr. Gustave Egloff, of Chicago. With only 2,000,000 acres of oil well producing in the United States alone, Doctor Egloff points out that America has 1,100,000,000 acres of possible oil land that is yet to be explored and developed.

Appendicitis Deaths

Every twenty-six minutes some one in the United States dies of appendicitis, says a writer in Hygeia, the health magazine, commenting that delay and wrong medicines cause 18,000 of the 20,000 deaths from appendicitis each year.

"It seemed kind of incomplete to me," answered Senator Sorghum. "It didn't contain a word about coffee, tooth paste or patent medicine."

Canada's white population is more than 50 per cent of British origin and nearly 30 per cent French origin.

When a Congressman Resigns

When a congressman wishes to resign he sends his resignation to the governor of his state, or to the presiding officer of the house of congress of which he is a member. The usual practice in the house is to send the letter of resignation to the governor, also notifying the speaker of the house. If the member resigns directly to the senate or the house, the body to which he belongs orders the presiding officer to inform the governor of his state of the resignation.

COUNTY BOARD FIXES TAX FOR FOR NEXT YEAR

Old Age Pensions May be Payable After January 1st 1935.

The board of county commissioners met at the court house Wednesday, July 18, and completed the budget for the year 1934. The budget submitted by County Auditor H. L. Fowler was accepted by the board. It calls for a tax levy of $110,400. which is a reduction from last year's tax levy.

In the budget of anticipated expenses for 1934, $31,675. would be needed for county revenue, $23,125. for the poor fund, $60,500. for the road and bridge fund, $15,000. for bonds and interest, and $4,400. for the sanatorium. This gives a grand total of $134,700. which is nearly $10,000. less than the grand total expenditures for 1933.

To meet the budget, Fowled estimated that the following tax levy would be required: county revenue, $32,00., road and bridge fund, $37,00., poor fund, $23,000., bonds and interest, $13,000., sanatorium fund, $4,400 The total levy will then be $110,400.

The list of applicants for old age pensions was also discussed, although none were granted in the list of one hundred applications as the list is yet incomplete. Any person over 70 years of age who has lived in the county for 15 years is eligible for the pension, and will receive $5.00 a month if the pension is granted. Payments will begin January 1, 1935.

No changes were made in the real estate assessment in Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire, and Goodridge by the commissioners sitting as a board of equalization, these all being accepted as submitted by the assessors.

Dr. Lynde Is Injured In Auto Spill Monday

Returning from a call near Wylie shortly after midnight on Monday morning, Dr. O. G. Lynde sustained several injuries to the jaw, kness, and teeth, when totally fatigued, he fell asleep at the wheel of his car and turned over in the ditch. The accident occured on the Black River road where the Wylie road joins the St. Hilaire road. Cities Should Read Danger Signals, McDonell Says

A warning was issued today by James P. McDonnell, president of the Minnesota Taxpayers Association, in a talk over WCCO, that the debt adjustment plan for municipalities cannot be used by solvent cities to postpone payment of debts. The primary purpose of the municipal adjustment act is to provide a means by which insolvent communities could work out of their difficulties with the cooperation of their creditors, he stated.

"Our cities, and government all along the line, should read the danger signals. Embarrassment that requires such adjustments as these now provided for bankrupt cities, will come eventually to any unit of government that disregards the principles of economy. Trouble is waiting for cities that carry on an extended program of short-time borrowing and that continue to create long-time bond issues that are unwarranted. No business, not even public business, can long be solvent, unless it balances its budget, lives within its income, and meets its honest obligations. 1,300 units of local government are now insolvent" he stated.

"If we continue to go on the theory that the future generation will benefit by all our bond issues, and therefore future generations should bear part of the cost, let us see how our children will come out: The money that our municipalities borrow at 4 per cent today will double in 25 years. This means that every million dollars of 4 per cent bonds that we issue will cost our children two million dollars at maturity over 25 years' time.

C. W. A. DECIDES TO TAKE ACTION AGAINST COUNCIL

Circularize the City With Bills Stating They "Will Not Patronize."

Following the curt refusal of the city council to reconsider their action in regard to the city employees discharged by the city engineer W. W. Viebahn, the CWA Protective association decided at their meeting last Wednesday evening to take drastic action against the members of the city council to force them to at least give the dismissed men a hearing. On motion which was passed unanimously they decided to withdraw their patronage from the businessmen on the council and from the firms with which they are connected. A committee was selected to distribute handbills stating the "We Will Not Patronize" followed by a list of the members of the council and the firms that they are connected with.

The entire city and many of the neighboring towns were circularized on Saturday evening and on monday. Some severe criticism of their action was voiced by several business men who stated that they thought it would be unfair to some innocent parties.

This phase of the matter was discussed at the organization's meeting last evening and a statement to the public was prepared and handed to the newspapers in the city wherein they clarify their position.

The statement follows:

Statement to the Public:

The CWA Protective Association wishes to take this means to inform the public why we have decided that we will not patronize the members of the city council of Thief River Falls nor the firms with which they are connected.

The city council has been very unfair to local labor. Three men who have served the city for many years have been discharged and their places filled with men from other places. In the case of the last two the CWA Protective Association has requested that the council reinstate them in their positions and that it dispense with the services of the city engineer, who is himself an imported man and absolutely unnecessary in the set-up of the city's business. There is ample evidence to show that he is unqualified to hold the position that he has and is absolutely without experience as an engineer in charge of a large utility such as our water and light department.

This request was tossed aside without being given any consideration. When we asked that a reason be given for the discharge of these men we were told that "they refuse to cooperate" and that "they are ineffi-

TWO DIE IN WRECK AT MIDDLE RIVER

A tragic automobile accident took place between Strathcona an Middle River on Monday night when a car driven by Joe Vogel of Fergus Falls collided with a car occupied by Fred Johnson of Crookston and another occupant. Both cars were coming from Strathcona, with Johnson's car in the lead. Johnson stopped his car, and together with the other occupant, was standing on the road with intent on hailing Vogle to stop. Vogel was apparently going at a fast speed, and not seeing the other car or its occupants on the road, crashed headway into them, killing Johnson immediately. The other occupant was saved by his jumping into the nearby ditch. Vogel's car then swerved around and went into the other side of the ditch. Vogel was apparently all right before the occupant of Johnson's car hiked back to Strathcona for aid, but was found dead on their return. A coroner was summoned from Warren and the bodies were taken to Middle River.

Mr. Johnson was a salesman for the Nash-Finch Company at Crookston, while Mr. Vogel was salesman for the Diamond Match Company Chicago.

Old Age Pensions May be Payable After January 1st 1935.

The board of county commissioners met at the court house Wednesday, July 18, and completed the budget for the year 1934. The budget submitted by County Auditor H. L. Fowler was accepted by the board. It calls for a tax levy of $110,400. which is a reduction from last year's tax levy.

In the budget of anticipated expenses for 1934, $31,675. would be needed for county revenue, $23,125. for the poor fund, $60,500. for the road and bridge fund, $15,000. for bonds and interest, and $4,400. for the sanatorium. This gives a grand total of $134,700. which is nearly $10,000. less than the grand total expenditures for 1933.

To meet the budget, Fowled estimated that the following tax levy would be required: county revenue, $32,00., road and bridge fund, $37,00., poor fund, $23,000., bonds and interest, $13,000., sanatorium fund, $4,400 The total levy will then be $110,400.

The list of applicants for old age pensions was also discussed, although none were granted in the list of one hundred applications as the list is yet incomplete. Any person over 70 years of age who has lived in the county for 15 years is eligible for the pension, and will receive $5.00 a month if the pension is granted. Payments will begin January 1, 1935.

No changes were made in the real estate assessment in Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire, and Goodridge by the commissioners sitting as a board of equalization, these all being accepted as submitted by the assessors.

JOBLESS PEDS ARE ASKED TO FILE WITH EED

Plans Are Under Way to Extent Emergency Education Projects.

Looking forward to the possible extension of the emergency education program under the relief administration in September, Mr. E. M. Phillips, Commissioner of Education, requests that all unemployed teachers who are residents of Minnesota register with the Emergency Education Division of the State Department of Education. While there is no indication yet as to the number of teachers who may secure relief employment, Mr. Phillips states that he is desirous of having all unemployed teachers registered.

Under the Emergency Education Program as it was operating during the last school year, 822 employed teachers were given employment at one time or another during the course of the program. They provided educational and recreational opportunities for more than 40,000 persons ranging from sixteen to sixty-five years of age.

General fields of educational work in which unemployed and needy teachers may be employed are: general adult education, worker's education, rural education, nursery schools and parent education. Projects within the above field are initiated locally under the administration and supervisory of local school authorities.

Mr. Phillips urges that unemployed teachers wishing to be considered for relief employment during the ensuing year write the Emergency Education Division requesting application and eligibility blanks. Registration is completed when these forms have been filled out, signed and returned to the Emergency Education Diivsion. It will not be necessary for teachers to call personally at the State Departmment in making application.

The outcome of the project all depends on an appropriation being received by Federal Aid to carry it out. W. C. Stephens has consented to do the work if it is endorsed.

Cities Should Read Danger Signals, McDonell Says

A warning was issued today by James P. McDonnell, president of the Minnesota Taxpayers Association, in a talk over WCCO, that the debt adjustment plan for municipalities cannot be used by solvent cities to postpone payment of debts. The primary purpose of the municipal adjustment act is to provide a means by which insolvent communities could work out of their difficulties with the cooperation of their creditors, he stated.

"Our cities, and government all along the line, should read the danger signals. Embarrassment that requires such adjustments as these now provided for bankrupt cities, will come eventually to any unit of government that disregards the principles of economy. Trouble is waiting for cities that carry on an extended program of short-time borrowing and that continue to create long-time bond issues that are unwarranted. No business, not even public business, can long be solvent, unless it balances its budget, lives within its income, and meets its honest obligations. 1,800 units of local government are now insolvent" he stated.

"If we continue to go on the theory that the future generation will benefit by all our bond issues, and therefore future generations should bear part of the cost, let us see how our children will come out: The money that our municipalities borrow at 4 per cent today will double in 25 years. This means that every million dollars of 4 per cent bonds that we issue will cost our children two million dollars at maturity over 25 years' time.

C. W. A. DECIDES TO TAKE ACTION AGAINST COUNCIL

Circularize the City With Bills Stating They "Will Not Patronize."

Following the curt refusal of the city council to reconsider their action in regard to the city employees discharged by the city engineer W. W. Viebahn, the CWA Protective association decided at their meeting last Wednesday evening to take drastic action against the members of the city council to force them to at least give the dismissed men a hearing. On motion which was passed unanimously they decided to withdraw their patronage from the businessmen on the council and from the firms with which they are connected. A committee was selected to distribute handbills stating the "We Will Not Patronize" followed by a list of the members of the council and the firms that they are connected with.

The entire city and many of the neighboring towns were circularized on Saturday evening and on Monday.

Some severe criticism of their action was voiced by several business men who stated that they thought it would be unfair to some innocent parties.

This phase of the matter was discussed at the organization's meeting last evening and a statement to the public was prepared and handed to the newspapers in the city wherein they clarify their position.

The statement follows:

Statement to the Public:

The CWA Protective Association wishes to take this means to inform the public why we have decided that we will not patronize the members of the city council of Thief River Falls nor the firms with which they are connected.

The city council has been very unfair to local labor. Three men who have served the city for many years have been discharged and their places filled with men from other places. In the case of the last two the CWA Protective Association has requested that the council reinstate them in their positions and that it dispense with the services of the city engineer, who is himself an imported man and absolutely unnecessary in the set-up of the city's business. There is ample evidence to show that he is unqualified to hold the position that he has and is absolutely without experience as an engineer in charge of a large utility such as our water and light department.

This request was tossed aside without being given any consideration. When we asked that a reason be given for the discharge of these men we were told that "they refuse to cooperate" and that "they are ineffi-

TWO DIE IN WRECK AT MIDDLE RIVER

A tragic automobile accident took place between Strathcona an Middle River on Monday night when a car driven by Joe Vogel of Fergus Falls collided with a car occupied by Fred Johnson of Crookston and another occupant. Both cars were coming from Strathcona, with Johnson's car in the lead. Johnson stopped his car, and together with the other occupant, was standing on the road with intent on hailing Vogle to stop. Vogel was apparently going at a fast speed, and not seeing the other car or its occupants on the road, crashed headway into them, killing Johnson immediately. The other occupant was saved by his jumping into the nearby ditch. Vogel's car then swerved around and went into the other side of the ditch. Vogel was apparently all right before the occupant of Johnson's car hiked back to Strathcona for aid, but was found dead on their return. A coroner was summoned from Warren and the bodies were taken to Middle River.

Mr. Johnson was a salesman for the Nash-Finch Company at Crookston, while Mr. Vogel was salesman for the Diamond Match Company of Chicago.

STRIKE TIES UP SAN FRANCISCO

Guardsmen Pour Into City, Police Augmented as Mobs Loot Grocery Stores.

San Francisco—The normal processes of existence for 1,300,000 men, women and children were torn up by the roots in the relentless clutch of a general strike in the San Francisco metropolitan district. National guardsmen by the thousand, with tanks, field pieces, machine guns and other formidable engines of death, surged into befuddled San Francisco and others were on their way. Police forces were swelled throughout the area by emergency additions. A great community had been knocked off its balance by the shock of business stagnation and fearful consequences loomed in the face of its shakiness.

Mobs looted a few grocery stores still running in the face of a food shortage and a buying stampede. By the tens of thousands the populace began surging into the streets. Mostly they were the curious. Others, perhaps, had less friendly motives. Virtually all were pedestrians. Everywhere there is tenseness and uncertainty.

At the request of the President's national longshoremen's board here, which failed to persuade opposing sides to arbitrate the original strike, the new national labor relations board in Washington detailed its chief examiner, P. A. Donahue, to head for San Francisco by airplane to assist in negotiations. City, state and federal authorities as well as leaders of the general strike promised food for everybody but it was not in evidence. At Washington it was reported a federal check-up on food supplies in the San Francisco area revealed that there was no shortage and that the government saw no need of using its agencies to supplant the usual food supply channels.

Strikers were reported picketing against supply trucks waiting an opportunity to enter the city, under national guard or state police envoy.

Khaki clad militiamen began mounting machine guns on the roofs of commission houses in the produce district, and there are 6,100 guardsmen in the city to keep order.

Second Trunk Murder In London.

With it were found the head and arms of the torso previously found at the Brighton railway station. This discovery, police said, definitely links the bodies and establishes that both crimes were committed by the same person or persons. In addition to the trunk the police took possession of a quantity of blood-stained clothing belonging to a woman.

AUTO FATALITIES CONTINUE TO MOUNT THRUOUT NATION

The Census Department has just released figures showing the death rate from automobile accidents in 86 of the large cities of the nation for the four weeks ending June 9, 1934. The first striking feature is the fact that during the four weeks ending June 9, 1934, after repeal, there were 108 more deaths than in the like period in 1933 when beer only was legal. This shows an increase of 19.8%.

The National Council of Safety reckon that the average cost per motor car deaths is $50,000. Therefore, if repeal was responsible for this increase, the loss to the nation was $5,400,000 for the four weeks, at which rate the total loss during a year would be $70,200,000.

Figures from all parts of the nation indicate that there has been an alarming increase of drunkenness since the return of beer which has been still further augmented by repeal. Only fragmentary figures for 1934 are available, but 1933, nine months of which were beer months and one month of which was a repeal month, recorded a sharp increase in drunkenness in nearly every city reporting. The rate of increase ranged from .8% to 36.2 per cent, with an average of 92.8%. That this would be sharply reflected in the rate of automobile accidents and fatalities is evident.

Robbins E. Stoeckel, former state director of motor traffic in Connecticut, now research executive in highway transportation, recently stated that reckless driving and similar generalities are apparently being widely used to camouflage alcohol as a factor in traffic accidents."

These facts make it evident that in any honest system of bookkeeping there will have to be a large deduction from the revenue received from the liquor traffic to cover the cost of the accidents and fatalities that must be charged against it in connection with highway travel.

TREATMENT MAY PREVENT SUDDEN HEART DEATHS

When the Minnesota State Medical Association held its 81st annual meeting in Duluth, July 16, 17 and 18, Minnesota physicians considered an interesting new treatment for the prevention of sudden deaths from heart disease.

This new treatment, according to a bulletin on the subject, issued by the Public Health Education Committee of the Minnesota State Medical Association, has not had a trial on a sufficient number of human cases to be accepted, yet, as part of medicine's ever growing armamentarium against disease disaster. It does, indicate, however, that real progress is being made in the treatment of the much dreaded heart conditions, angina pectoris and disease of the cononary arteries, and what there is a read possibility, in the future, of preventing the sudden tragic heart-failures that take off so many men and women prematurely.

The new theory and treatment to be demonstrated in Duluth is the work of a single Minnesota researcher with whom the University of Minnesota has cooperated in experimental work.

It is based on the fact, shown in a large number of postmortem studies, that the actual structural changes found in the heart are often not enough to account for death. In a large proportion, the heart muscle is practically normal. These findings indicated to the researcher that the trouble in many cases was with the physiological mechanisms of the heart rather than with the heart structure itself. The only two that could cause sudden cessation of the circulation are the standstill and the fibrillation of the ventricles. In the first, the ventricles simply cease to contract. In the second, they go into a quivering which makes the contraction ineffectual.

In animals and in a few human cases, this Minnesota physician appears to have been able to produce these phenomena and stop them at will by means of simple drugs.

PART-TIME JOBS TO BE GIVEN COLLEGE STUDENTS THRU E.E.

Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator, more than 2,500 young men and women will be given part-time jobs which will enable them to begin or continue their college education in Minnesota through the coming year according to announcement made by Harold O. Farmers Warned Of 'Chiselers' on Mortgage Debts

Mortgage burdened farmers are warned by the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation Protective service against a scheme that proposes to levy on them for "assistance" rendered in obtaining the scaling down of their debts. Under this scheme, if a former succeeded in having a debt scaled down from $5,000 to $3,000, he would be forced to pay the promoters one percent of the scaled down amount, or $20.

During the past year and a half there has been a strong trend toward the scaling down of farm debts, and creditors have voluntarily surrendered claim to thousands upon thousands of dollars, thus relieving farmers of some of the debt load they have been carrying, says A. J. Olson president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau. The scaling down process has not gone nearly far enough, but in the instances where it has been benefited. Mr. Olson says.

When creditors agree to scale down they do it with the intention of making it easier for the debtor to carry on, and if they learn that a third party is to enter the deal and levy tribute from the farmer on the amount the creditors have voluntarily agreed to strike off their books, it is probable that the scaling down movement will be seriously impeded. On the other hand, no debt-burdened farmer should be expected to pay from his sadly depleted resources for any alleged services that intermediaries may furnish.

"This heartless attempt to wring tribute from debt-stricken farmers should be nipped in the bud, and all parties to a debt-conciliation agreement shoud be sure, before the agreement is completed, that the farmer, rather than outsiders, get all the benefits that may accrue from the settlement," Mr. Olson asserts.

The first debt-conciliation committee in Minnesota was formed nearly three years ago in Cottonwood county under the auspices of the Cottonwood County Farm Bureau. Since that time a number of other County Farm Bureaus have organized local debt conciliation groups, and splendid resuts in the scaling down of debts have been made to the debt-stricken farmer for services rendered, the idea of wringing tribute from a debtor's misfortunes being abhorrent to the organization, Mr. Olson asserts.

Farmers who wish assistance in adjusting their debt burden should communicate with their local county debt adjustment committee or, if they do not know its personnel, with the County Farm Bureau office or with the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation in St. Paul.

It is not necessary to join the Farm Bureau or any other farm organization, or to pay any fees, or agree to pay any, for the services of debt conciliation committees, Farm Bureau officers explain.

HOLIDAY TRAFFIC DEATHS IN STATE ARE HIGH DESPITE THE WORK OF SAFETY COUNCILS

Four traffic deaths in Minnesota on the 4th of July, (in addition to numerous injured on the highways,) in spite of the intensive effort made by newspapers, the radio, organizatins and speakers co-operating with the city and county public safety committees to influence the holiday motorists and pedestrians to exercise caution and give heed to traffic regulations, indicates the need for the public safety educational program to go on in Minnesota, even more thoroughly, in the opinion of C. H. Zealand, director of the Safety Division State Emergency Relief Administration.

News dispatches on July 5th placed the death toll in this state at four, Duluth, Rochester, Triumph and Fairbault being the scenes of the fatalities.

John P. Arnoldy, head of the state highway patrol, said that traffic was unusually heavy this year on the Fourth of July, but it was not at all points where traffic congestion was greatest that the fatalities occurred. That there was co-operation with the rules for traffic safety throughout the state generally, was the observation of highway patrolmen. On the strength of the observation of enforcement officers, the driving public was credited with being careful, and the general impression of the behavior of motorists and pedestrians was that it was in gener l in accord with the requests of city and county safety committees, newspapers and radio speakers for the exercise of care for prevention of accidents.

"I cannot help but feel that we got a response from the public, as the result of efforts made preceding the holiday for careful driving," Mr. Zealand said. He cited that the automobile death toll of 69 in the country as a whole for the 4th of July, which was reported by the Associated Press as a lower figure than the drowning fatalities of the holiday was indicative that an impression had been made in the interests of safety upon motorists, as a whole. This was the first time, since 1931 that there were fewer deaths in traffic, than the total of drowning fatalities for the day.

Where Water Goes Uphill

Water flows uphill in plants through the many thousands of tiny tubes that make up the woody parts of the stems, but it does not flow as water does in the plumbing pipes of a house, Science Service says. It does not go up in solid streams, at least in times of water scarcity, but forms films that stick to the walls of the tubes and flow along them, with hollow spaces in the middle filled with water vapor. This hypothesis of sap ascent in plants, radically differs from all doctrines accepted by botanists for many years.

OLDEST LIVING SETTLER TELLS OF THE EARLY DAYS IN THIEF RIVER FALLS

A pioneer of this part of the country for 54 years, M. C. Burns is the only living pioneer of the four men who were the first white settlers in this territory. He has watched the growth of Thief River Falls since the days when the occupants of the present city site were Indians and whose tepees were cluttered along the river bank around the territory now occupied by the Central Lumber Company, and whose trail over-ran the present LaBree avenue.

Mr. Burns was born in eastern Canada at Campellford, Ontario on September 25, 1848, and was one of a family of thirteen. He was raised on a farm and had no schooling to speak of excepting in the school of experience, hard knocks, and hard work. When sixteen, Burns went to the lumber woods in Canada where he worked until he came to this country. Beginning at the age of 22, he worked in the lumber woods around the Georgian Bay for a number of years.

He entered this territory in May, 1880, driving oxen over the Indian Trail to Crookston which was the only available trail at that time. Burns filed a claim south of town, where he "batched it" all alone on the farm with the possible exception of occasional Indian visitors. During this time , he had the distinction of raising the first wheat grown north of St. Hilaire, which was crudely cut with a cradle and threshed with a flail. After seven years of hard and unsuccessful farming, Mr. Burns sold his farm and personal property and for the ensuing several years, he was engaged as a farm hand, and worked on building elevators in North Dakota.

Burns aided in erecting the first building ever built in the town which was for Frank Russell, and also worked on several of the town's first buildings. In 1883 he helped to stack the first grain stacked in Thief River Falls which was for John LaBree. Burns filed a claim at Red Lake in 1888, which he sold after three years. In March of 1888, he assisted several other men in moving C. A. Robekke's hotel building from St. Hilaire to this city. This building later became the Hotel Ogamah. Burns also helped grade the first streets of the town which composed two blocks on the present Horace Avenue, and two blocks on LaBree Avenue.

In April, 1892, Burns, together with other men, buried the first man in Greenwood cemetery. The sawmill was established in 1891, and for some time, Mr. Burns was in the employ of the lumber company. Among other businesses he has engaged in from that time, he has speculated in real estate, maintained a farm implement business until 1907, and has been caretaker of several city buildings in the Dobner-Meehan block since 1910.

Mr. Burns tells of the large prairie fire which swept this part of the country from Wylie to Holt around September, 1883. He says that the fire was from three to four miles wide, and cleaned everything in its course. Burns was working out in the field, when Mrs. C. A. Robekke came running across the field with a child in her arms. She cleared the field just ahead of the fire's path, as it passed the Robekke farm immediately after her, burning everything except the house, which Mr. Burns spent two hours in saving from being burned to the ground. The course of the fire ran to the west of the town near the fairgrounds, the only obstacle in its progress further east being the old Indian Trail.

In November, 1893, Mr. Burns was married to Miss Nellie Powers, who came from Renville, Minnesota to this territory in 1893. An excellent family resulted from this union: Francis, who is in business at Hawley; Evangeline, (Mrs. G. L. Ardron) of Seattle, Washington; Lucille (Mrs John T. Nolan) of Gilbert, Minn. and Marguerite, (Mrs. A. G. Janse) of Fargo, N. Dak.

Patriotism for his country is but one of the few qualities of Mr. Burns' sterling character, and is evident in his staunch and law-abiding attitude. He says: "The country I live in is good enough for me. I believe in my country and its government, and I believe that the only way for one to be satisfied is to live up to and abide by the laws of their country."

Despite his 86 years, Mr. Burns is still very active, driving his own Ford V-8 and being caretaker of the Dobner-Meehan building. He and his kindly wife are contented and satisfied in their comfortable home, after having weathered unflinchingly together so many gales in life's voyage of happiness and disappointments.

AVERERAGE LIVESTOCK PRICES ARE BETTER THAN LAST YEAR

The first half of 1934 has passed and livestock prices generally averaged well above a year ago and the price outlook, considering future supplies, is encouraging, says the weekly market bulletin issued by the Central Cooperative Association of South St. Paul.

As the second half of the current year started the average fat cattle market stood $2.00 per cwt above a year ago. Hogs averaged 40c above year ago and fat lambs averaged $1.60 above a year ago.

During the first six months of 1934 cattle receipts at twenty leading markets of the U. S. were 5,235,00 head or 921,000 more than during the same period last year. Hog receipts thus far this year at 13,434,000 head at twenty markets were 1,489,000 less than the corresponding total last year, and the sheep receipts 6,864,000 head showed a falling off of 2,854,000 head as compared with a year ago.

With the drought causing liquidation of many cattle, hogs and sheep and the government making vast purchases of livestock in drought areas, future supplies of livestock for markets undoubtedly will be smaller. The recent pig crop estimate of 28% less this spring and 38% less sows to farrow this fall, also indicates small supplies for future market.

Fewer hogs for the future is bearish in the corn market since it points to reduced consumption of corn. If hog production has been cut as much as reports indicate, it may prove to be too drastic a reduction. A bad run of cholera this summer and fall might result in a pork famine.

CANALIZATION OF MISSISSIPPI COSTS RUNS UNDER ESTIMATE

The actual cost of the 16 projects now under construction in the canalization of the Upper Mississippi river will be more than $3,000,000 less than the government's estimates, according to official reports from division engineers.

There are 8 locks and 2 dams being built in the northern division extending from the Twin Cities to the mouth of the Wisconsin river. This division is in charge of Major D. F. Johns, St. Paul. Estimated total cost of this work was $16,987,608. The contract cost, which includes liberal estimates for miscellaneous work and equipment charges, is $15,313,898, which is $1,673,710 less than the estimated total. On the southern division, in charge of Major R. A. Wheeler, Rock Island, there are 9 locks and 2 dams either under construction or finished. Total estimated cost for the work at these 9 dam sites was $21,907,384 while the construction cost is $20,428,175. The difference is $1,479,209, making a total saving under the orginal estimates of $3,152,919.

These figures in addition to being good news for all interested in the development of the nine-foot channel, serve to refute some wild and exaggerated guesses as to the total cost of this work. It now becomes apparent that the estimates were quite liberal and the engineer's figures also are significant because these estimates were made some time ago, most of them before the N.R.A. and the 30-hour week and minimum hourly wages. In only two instances would the actual cost exceed the estimates. These are at Lock No. 16 at Muscatine, Ia., and Lock No. 18 at Burlington, Ia., and the total over-run for these two projects was less than $100,000.

ROAD OILING MEANS MORE MOTORING ENJOYMENT

This is the season in which motorists enjoy "razzing" the engineers responsible for oiling the roads and establishing detours around construction projects, says a highway department bulletin.

Some motorists probably think the engineers have deliberately plotted against their Sunday afternoon enjoyment of some particular stretch of highway. But if the highway department failed to apply the needed bituminous treatments, the motorist would have poor driving for the next twelve months, instead of some slight inconvenience for a few minutes or few hours with the freshly applied black surfacing.

And if there were no detours, there would be no nice, modern roads to drive on. Construction activity brings temporary detours which make possible years of driving comfort over improved highways.

The state highway department, in applying ordinary retreatments to bituminous roads, treats only half the roadway at a time. It covers the fresh material with gravel or sand immediately after application. It keeps flagmen on the job while treatment is in progress, and these men warn drivers to go slowly over the treated stretch. If cars go slowly they do not spatter the bituminous material, but if they speed they will pick it up off the road. Bituminous treatments must be applied during summer months.

If cars become spattered with bituminous road surfacing, highway department chemists recommend the following cleaning method: Mix one quart lubricating oil with one gallon of gasoline. Do not use gasoline containing lead compounds, such as ethyl gas. Spray or brush the mixture on the spots to be cleaned. Let the gasoline evaporate, then wash with soap and lukewarm water.

HIGH SPEED BOOSTS STATE'S AUTOMOBILE TRAGEDIES

Excessive speed and "riding the center line" are among the prime factors in Minnesota's increasing toll of automobile fatalities, according to an analysis of traffic accident causes made by Chief John P. Arnoldy of the state highway patrol.

"Excessive speed means any speed too high for prevailing conditions," Mr. Arnoldy said. "Twenty miles an hour might be excessive speed in some circumstances, although much higher speeds are reasonable under other conditions.

"Too many drivers become accustomed to high speeds on long, open stretches of highway and refuse to slow down sufficiently for traffic, for warning signs, towns, schools and other driving hazards.

"Drivers have a marked tendency to take the middle of the road when going at high speeds. This is exceedingly dangerous, and often forces other cars out into the ditch. Even in open country driving, motorists must realize that there is a limit to the speed at which they can travel. When a fast driver finds himself 'riding the center line' instead of keeping to the right side, it is time to slow down."

A report just issued by the California patrol says: "Motor vehicle fatalities in California can be reduced 10 to 25 per cent within a year as soon as excessive speed can be checked."

Frank C. Berry of the Minneapolis Automobile club, writing in the current issue of Sparks on "What Price Speed?", declares: "The remedy calls for drastic treatment. We must educate and train both drivers and pedertrians—vigorously enforce the penalities incident to flagrant and dangerous traffic violations—hold down driving speeds on city streets to a maximum of thirty miles an hour. Can we do these things? Not until public opinion has been materially altered. Not until the moral verities as expressed in the Golden Rule have re-established themselves in our consciences."

In the Rostrum

Dear Editor:

In the Times and Forum of July 12th I notice my friend Paul Engelstad invites speakers for the three parties in this state to come to Valhall and present the merits of their respective party platforms. The only restriction he makes for the speakers is that no mud-slinging shall be allowed.

I think that this is a very good plan to adopt in every community. If the platform and principles of the different political parties are explained to the voters at political meetings they can form a more clear opinion and cast a more intelligent vote at the November election.

The saying is that "politics is rotten," and the reason for this is that politics has been left in the main to those who have made it their business to fool and mislead the people at the political rallies of the old political parties in the past the greater part of the speeches has consisted in abuse and calling people of different opinion bad names.

Most people are agreed that this Depression is caused by there being not only "something rotten in Denmark" but right here in the United States. If people can come to political rallies where patry principles are fairly explained they may cast a more intelligent vote this fall and elect men of a party that will work for the good of the commonpeople and not only for Big Business as before.

Paul Engelstad and myself have often found ourselves, both in the columns of the papers and in personal talk, on opposite sides of political questions, but he has never in those instances used abusive language nor called bad names. And it has always been a pleasure to discuss things with him even when we disagree. But all too many like a certain farm-renter in Kratka Township whose name I will not sully the columns of this paper by mentioning can present no arguments but use only mud-slinging, abusive language and the calling of bad names.

Well, I wish you, Paul Engelstad, good luck, at your political rally and hope other communities may do likewise.

J. W. Erlandson.

Dear Editor:

A meeting is about to be called, and a move on foot to sell or trade off the creamery building of the Thief River Falls Co-operative Creamery Association. The undersigned stockholders feel that before we dispose of our Creamery Building we should consider the matter very carefully and we would like a little space in your paper.

There are at least two important questions to consider in this connection. First: Do we want to dispose of our present creamery building under any conditions? Is it necessary or disirable to sell?

Second: If we do sell the property, what price should we get? What is the property fairly worth?

The Land O' Lakes wants to buy our property. Mr. Brandt stated at the meeting that the most they would pay is twenty thousand ($20,000.00) dollars. Are we willing to sell this property for that price? The building and the site cost us two or three times that amount. What ought we to get now if we do sell?

If we sell out, then we shall have to build another small creamery perhaps. The first thing is to buy a new lot or site for the creamery, which will cost us about $1750.00 or thereabouts. Then we have to drill a well, at about $1200.00. Then we have to move and install the fixtures and machinery, which will cost us about $3000.00. We also have to pay up our bonds or indebtedness on the creamery, which amounts to about $4800.00 after deducting what Land O' Lakes owes. In other words in all we shall have to pay out $10,750 or nearly $11,000 before we are through.

This will leave us about $9,000.00 with which to build a smaller building. It seems to us that anyone can see that we cannot get an adequate new creamery building, even if we build much smaller for Nine Thousand Dollars. That means that in order to get an adequate new building we shall have to go in debt again. Taking Mr. Brandt's own figures we shall still be in debt quite a large sum of money if we build. Do we want such a deal?

Another question is whether we can really save on overhead by having a smaller building? They tell us we are going to save a lot, but can we really save very much? Think this over and figure it out for yourself whether there will be any appreciable saving. We cannot see much of a saving when we figure it all out? Consider this carefully.

Still another question: If we sell do we want the Land O' Lakes to put up the new building for us, or do we want to build it ourselves? It seems to us that if we are going to have a new building, we ought to build it ourselves, and know just what we are getting.

These are important questions. Give the matter some thought and investigation. If we want to sell, then we certainly must see to it that we get a fair and just price for our Creamery property.

THE ENIGMATIC MR. ROOSEVELT

President Roosevelt presents quite a puzzle to the radicals of the country. Some of his actions have given them reasons to believe that he is indeed radical and committed at least to a program of socialization of public utilities and key industries. His enthusiasm for the Tennessee Valley development, his sponsoring of the NRA with its provisions for shorter hours and longer wages, his signature on the Frazier-Lemke Farm Moratorium Act, and above all, his outspoken support of some of the more radical members of Congress, of other than Democratic party adherence, even to the extent of flaunting his own party's candidates, has all been to his advantage with the liberal-radical element.

On the other side of the ledger, however, there is his opposition to, and practically killing of the Frazier Farm Refinancing bill, his let-down on section 7a of the NRA, his opposition to inflation and his apparent kowtowing to the International Bankers in all and sundry monetary matters, and his toying with the tariff situation and world armament policies, in neither of which he seems to have any conception of the problems involved.

The left-wingers on the other hand unhessitatingly condemn the pre-those who believe socialization in a greater or lesser degree inevitable, are prone to hail Roosevelt as a super-politician, who is leading the industrial-banking crowd on and giving them rope enough to hang themselves, while at the same time he is advancing the cause of the Co-operative Commonwealth as fast as the American people can assimilate this to them, new and untried doctrine. They apparently believe that when the time has come, that he has the unsuspicious and benighted capitalists out on the end of the limb he will suddenly pull the denouement and reveal himself as the master of political strategy and the long awaited leader of the Common People.

The elft-wingers, on the other hand, unhessitatingly condemn the president as a conniving rascal who conspires to fasten upon the people forever, a rotten capitalistic system by insidiously forging the chains of a Fascist dictatorship. They see in him the super-salesman who would retain and strengthen the industrial-financial oligarchy.

Frankly, we see in Mr. Roosevelt, neither the great leader of the common people nor the staunch defender of Big Business. We do not see any particular greatness in him, unless it should be his optimism. He is undoutedly a clean-living, clean-hearted person who earnestly desires to do the things that will be of the greatest good to the greatest number without knowing precisely where that course lays. But his birth, his early training and environment, and his subsequent experience is all against him. He cannot know the motives that move the people nor the passions that can rock a nation on its foundations. The history of his life does not reveal that he has lived. Consequently he can not lead, and his tenure of office must continue to be just what it has been so far, a goodnatured fumbling of the fundamentals and travel along the way of least resistance. Aristocrats never become great leaders of the Common People.

It is easy for Roosevelt to say that, noone shall starve in America, in the face of widespread misery and near-starvation, for he has never himself known the pangs of hunger. He cannot know the icy blasts that pierce the thinly clothed, and chill men's bones to the marrows, freezing the soul. He has always had a warm coat. He has not known the aches and the grime of the mines and the shops. He has not known the heartbreak of the farmer who sees the fruit of a whole season's grubbing in the soil; broiling in the hot sun; the hopes of paying the mortgage; or of sending the boy to college pounded into the earth by a hailstorm. He hasn't known the aching limbs and burning feet of those who must pound the pavements in vain search of work. He hasn't tasted the salt of his own blood and his sweat, hugging a moist and heaving earth while shot and shell screamed and whined over his head like an inferno. He has not had to meet tangible physical crisis, so he can not be expected to meet intangible ones squarely and with decision.

Great leaders do not emanate from Hyde Park mansions; they are not raised with silver spoons. They spring from the depths of the people. They reach the top by meeting and conquering adversity They have known hunger, cold, sweat and harsh words. As Andrew Jackson the orphan boy; as Abraham Lincoln the railsplitter; as Floyd Olson the newsboy.

MINNESOTA'S GARDEN SPOT

A person need only to travel to the Twin Cities and return to appreciate the wonderful section of the state that we have here in the Red Lake River Valley. We have of course heard a great deal about the drouth that has hit the state and the untold damage it has done to crops and to the fortunes of men. We supposed all the time that we were hard hit here in this section, and this article is not intended to belittle nor to minimize the damage this part of the state has suffered.

Nevertheless we can truthfully say that we had no idea of what a drouth is until last week when we made a trip to the cities. From Glenwood and south it seemed to us that the crops were increasingly hard hit. The Eden Valley country which has been known as the paradise spot of Minnesota in the past, while it had not, so far as we could see from the car window, suffered as much as some of the sections further south, was far from the garden it has been in the past. Oat fields were being cut with the mower and stood only six inches high. They were dead white in color. Corn was ranging in height from a foot to two feet. Pastures in a great many places were bare as a floor and brown. Within fifty miles of Minneapolis we saw corn fields that were wilted and brown an though hit by a killing frost.

We spoke with a man who boarded the train at one of the little stations down there and he stated that if it were not for the drouth aid of $5,000,000 provided by the special session of the legislature at the insistence of Governor Olson, "men, women and children would have starved to death in Minnesota this spring and summer."

Having viewed the desolation, and knowing the struggle that has been the lot of our people here where the drouth was relieved in time to save the late grains and even bring about a bumper crop for some, we can well believe him. It makes us more than ever impatient with men like Rockne and others like him who oppose every effort tthat men and women with a heart in their bosom put forth to aid the stricken populaiton.

MORE PRUSSIANISM

St. Paul Daily News.)

"Any man who fires a shot in the air will be court-martialed—shoot to kill."

This official order was proclaimed not in Russia, nor Germany nor even in Italy but in the United States of America.

It is credited in the United Press dispatch from San Francisco to Col. H. H. Mittelstaedt, commander of the national guard troops ordered out Friday to maintain order in the longshoremen's strike.

It may be that the colonel was giving a message for public consumption, warning strikers what they could expect as the best way of avoiding bloodshed.

Unfortunately his order has not been accepted that way. It has been taken as a bit of brutal militaristic arrogance and contempt for human life. If it were carried out, literally hundreds would be killed.

What industrial dispute is worth that sacrifice of life?

Surely there must be some point where sanity can enter into this matter.

CANADA TRIES CURRENCY

(Labor)

Canada has started a works program for unemployment relief without selling bonds. She is printing currency. The works program calls for about $40,000,000; and Canada is issuing about $75,000,000 of new notes. spokesmen of the Canadian government insist that this will not impair the credit of the Dominion, since the gold reserves will still be far above those agreed upon at the World Economic Conference. If Canada can do this, why not the United States? We have the need, we have the basic wealth, and as for gold reserves, we have about half the monetary gold in all the world.

Admittedly, inflation can go too far, and often has done so. But will inflation, such as Canada proposes, do as much harm as the piling up of interest charges through constant borrowing?

FARMER CAN'T SEE IT

(New Ulm Journal)

Everybody in the country is talking about the improvement of agricultural conditions throughout the nation, but the farmer himself. It takes more than slight increases in the prices of farm commodities to convince him that prosperity is returning. What the farmer has to buy, costs much more than a year ago, so he argues that he is far from "getting his."

W. C. T. U. NOTES

MIGHT IT BE THE NEW FREEDOM

And who should find himself agreeing with Anti-s loonist McBride but a New York "old-timer!" An old-timer, it seems, is anybody who was old enough to exercise a stand-up drinker's idea of personal liberty before Prohibition. Dr. McBride has just launched an attack on America's "cocktail hour" and "Old-Timer" has written a letter to the press admitting that the "Cocktails-for-Two fad is a "ruinous institution."

But—and this is important as an indication of the line that repeal defense may soon be obliged to take—"Old-Timer" says that before Prohibition very few young people indulged in mixed drinking. Girls and boys of the good old days got together over nothing more stimulating than an ice-cream soda, unless perhaps it was a banana split. Prohibition, we are to believe, taught them to take spirits in a coeducational way.

So today, one of the faults of repeal that cannot be overlooked even by an "old-timer" can at any rate be charged up by him to the noble experiment. We may expect to see more of this kind of argument, which explains that whatever is wrong with repeal is due to Prohibition. But repeal was supposed to abolish the ills of the arid era, not annex them.

And old-timers are continually informing us that girls didn't drink as much in the old days as after the Eighteenth Amendment was enacted. Well, neither did they smoke so many cigarets or plaster their faces with so many cosmetics, or drive so many automobiles so fast. Are these lusty employments Prohibition-bred or are they just negative manifestations of the New Freedom? And if repeal fails to curb them, will that be Probihition's fault?—Christian Science Monitor.

Farmer-Labor Press Service

by Senator Henry G. Teigan

Wisconsin Progressives have gotten their new party plans well under way. More than 120.000 signatures of voters in that state have been affixed to petitions asking for the establishment of the new progressive party.

"The gathering of these thousands of names, viewed as a matter of mechanics, was a tremendous task calling for hard and sacrificing work on the part of loyal progressives," says the party organ The Progressive. "There was no money for paid workers—those who saw to it that petitions were made available to enthusiastic signers worked from devotion to progressive principles and progressive cause without recompense."

The Progressive Party will have the support of the old LaFollette organization and of the newly organized "Farmer-Labor and Progressive League." There are, of course, other independent groups that will throw their suport to the Progressive Party and its slate of candidates both at the primary in September and again in the November election..

Jimmy Higginses On Job

Wisconsin Progressives are just like their brethren in other states of the Northwest. It is the devotion of Jimmy Higginses throughout Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, and other states that has made the progressive movement the power that it has today. There is, of course, no discounting the importance of leadership. The leaders of the movement deserve due credit for their great efforts, and yet without the aid of local boosters, leadership of the most remarkable sort would meet without success.

A second convention of the Progressive Party was held at Fond du Lac a week ago. The delegates adopted a fine platform on which the candidates of the party will wage their campaign. In substance it is much the same as the platform of the Farmer-Labor Party of Minnesota.

Fourteen Planks

The platform consists of fourteen planks as follows:

Government sale of arms, and munitions.
Public ownership of public utilities.
Complete ownership of country's banking system.
A job for everyone who is capable of working.
Financial and old age security thru state and national legislation creating unemployment insurance sickness, and accident insurance and old age pensions.
Legislation guaranteeing workers the right to organize as they choose.
Opposition to sales taxes; opposition to the exemption of securities and governmental salaries from taxation.
Support of a tax on corporate dividends.
Immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus.
Adequate legislation to secure the tenure of land for those who own it through moratorium laws.
Opposition to the destruction of wealth while the people are in need.
Support of co-operative marketing to reduce the spread between prices received by the farmers and by the the consumers.
Abolition of speculation and profiteering in food.

LaFollette Candidate For Senator

Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr will head the new party ticket. Candidates for other places on the ticket have not been selected. Phillip La Follette, brother of the senator and former governor, has been mentioned as possible candidate for the governorship. Another prospective candidate for governor is William T. Evjue, editor of the Capitol Times.

Fly In Ointment

The only fly in the ointment is the apparent disinclination of the socialists of Wisconsin to join hands with the progressives in the fight. "socialists worship dogma rather than reality!" is the charge made by The Progressive in an editorial in its July 7th issue. "There is much common ground between Progressives and Socialists. Both believe that the God given resources which have been so lavishly conferred upon this country should be used to promote a fuller life for the masses of people rather than to be used in serving selfish greed and power. Why then are not these groups standing shoulder to shoulder in making the fight for a better state and nation?"

It will be most unfortunate indeed should the Socialists of the Badger state see fit to go it alone when they might join hands with the Progressives and make victory for a common cause all but certain in the November election. Let us hope that Wisconsin Socialists will aid the Progressive Party as the Socialists of Minnesota have aided the Farmer-Labor Party of this state virtually since the founding of the latter party in this state.

The Liberal Digest

NRA; THE ANTITHESIS OF AAA

Condensed from the "Rainbow Over the White House" by M. Farmer Murphy, in the Nation of July 11, 1934 by R. M. Aalbu.

There is no denying the remarkable accomplishments of the Roosevelt administration. By a few bold strokes galantly executed he changed the attitude of the nation from one of despair to one of hopefulness. Among these acts were reforms which had been proved, and others which were in the nature of radical experiments. The power development project; the truth-in-securities law; the banking reform act; represented only wholesome changes in the exsisting conditions. But the National Recovery Act and the Agricultural Adjustment Act were new and their consequenses incalculable.

What some believed that they saw then, and what the sponsors did not see, was that the purposes of the two acts were mutually antogenistic. In the crumbling of the NRA its critics see justification for thier position. The broad purpose of the NRA was to increase purchasing power, by shortening hours and increasing wages. To attain this the industrialist who had exploited the people in the past would have to become Christians over night, and meet the increased costs of production out of their profits. To induce this the anti-trust laws were suspended in order that they could "cooperate." If the industries did not meet the increased cost out of their profits, but on the other hand tried to recapture it thru higher prices, all the increased costs would come out of the public and there would be no addition to the purchasing power of the people.

This is exactly what they tried to do. Their cooperation was only for their own advantage and not for the general welfare. They combined to fix prices and manipulate wages so that as many as possible were thrown into the minimum wage class. The result has been, no increase in total consuming power, complaints about high prices and endless labor disputes. There has been no attempt on the part of the NRA to enforce the labor provisions of the codes. In every crisis, General Johnson has not "cracked down" but has rather himself "cracked up."

The problem of the AAA, as seen by its administrators, was to shorten the span between the price of comodities the farmer has to sell and the things that he must buy. This had become disastrously wide, and every increase in tariff rates on agricultural products was matched by an increase on manufactured goods so that the disparity remained. The AAA, therefore set out to increase the price of farm commodities, of which there was a surplus, by a series of plans to restrict production. Inducements to farmers to cooperate, in addition to the promised higher prices, were made in the form of bonuses for restricted acreage. While the spead has been slightly lessened there has been no gain because, just as in the case of the tariff, the farmers gain has been nullified by the higher prices the industrialists obtain thru the NRA.

Failure to see this may be excused owing to the fact that they were initiated when the times were critical and quick action was necessary. And they could not reasonobly be abandoned without a fair trial. But between the Special sesion of Congress when they were put into effect and the regular session in January of this year six and a half months elapsed which should have made it possible to work out a coordinated plan.

Such a scheme was not presented. Various useful measures were passed by the session just ended but none of them went to the fundamentals of the situation. Hence, people who are entirely friendly to the administration and are in full sympathy with the broad humanitarian principles enunciated by the president in his message of June 8, are asking why the things he holds out now as promises to be fulfilled by the next congress could not have been got ready for the one that just expired. Bills covering some of them were already in committee.

The ideas contained in the suggested program are basic. They go to the root of the trouble—security in home, in living, and in old age. But will the means to attain this end be formulated with such care as to exclude the confusion that have attended the experiments inaugerated the past year? This question is worrying those who have only good will for the administration and the reason for it is found in the records. The acute problem to be solved is that of purchasing power to balance production, and yet no serious attention has been given to it. All the talk has been of stimulating industrial producion. Altho the banks are full of money which they can't or won't lend, Congress provided another $5,000,000 for loans to industry—more is added to too mugh. It has been demonstrated that the CWA and the AAA thru its bonuses gave stimulus to business. They were antidotes for the high prices created by the NRA and the AAA crop restriction plans. But the CWA was abandoned and the fundamental task which it had been performing; that of providing more consuming power was thrown back upon direct-relief agancies.

No thinking person would not want to go back to the old order. All in that category acclain President Roosevelt's recognition of the need for security—the removal of the deadly fear of want, and they desire to go forward with him. They hope that he will put into an orderly system the disjointed operations now in force before he is overwhelmed by the confusion and cross-purpose.

It is hoped that his great objectives; "security of the home, security of livelihood, and the security of social insurance," will be reached by methods which take into account the whole social and economic structure, so that the plan my work and endure.

Ohio's Losses in War

From seventeenth place in the population rank of states in 1803, Ohio advanced to thirteenth by 1810, to fifth place in the next ten years, and to third in the succeeding twenty years, which place she lost to Illinois. With only about 43,000 persons at her birth in less than 60 years the Buckeye state offered 340,000 men in the Civil war, 24,564 of whom died on the battle fields, more than half her population when she was given statehood, and a 16 per cent greater loss than that incurred by the British and American soldiery during the entire Revolutionary war.

Why Not Beauty Too?

Which is more important—to get where we want to go, or to have a pleasant time on the way? Usually we're severely practical, and say we're not much interested in anything but arriving. We say so even though, when we do get to our destination, we may just turn around and rush back.

Little by little, though, we're not so sure. There's something about a good road except the paving and the grades and curves. Something that we enjoy as we pass and remember with pleasure. Trees, shrubs, grass, and flowers, for instance, along the roadside, instead of bare dirt and ugly cuts. We begin to suspect that possibily beauty is as important as speed. Or at least half as important.

So more and more the engineering of new highways is supplemented with beautification plans. Some of the states are beginning to make regular appropriations for this purpose. Why not?—Fairbault Daily News.

CONTRIBUTION TO THE MINNEAPOLIS TRIBUNE EXPLAINS THE LANGER VOTE

To the Editor of The Tribune:

In your issue of July 2, in an editorial under the caption, "Two Verdicts in North Dakota" you find it difficult to reconcile the overwhelming indorsement given Governor Langer in a recent primary in the face of his conviction and severe sentence.

The indorsement is not difficult to analyze. The people of North Dakota are educated in the art of reading daily newspapers. The people had no way of knowing all the facts in the Langer case any more than they have of knowing all the facts about political issues or candidates for office, but one thing all the voters did know about Governor Langer and his trail was that every single daily newspaper in and out of the astte were all against Governor Langer and the people of North Dakota all being wise to the newspapers would naturally support the governor and why not? Where is there a daily newspaper who is not ashamed of its record during the World War when they all joined in a conspiracy of falsehood against Germany and propapandized people into a fenzy of idiotic patriotism from which we all suffer today. Where were the daily newspapers during the Tea Pot Dome scandal?

In the face of the record of the press, is it any wonder that intelligent readers everywhere should read the daily newspapers in reverse, that is, when the newspapers are for a thing, the people of North Dakota have sense enough to be against it and when the papers are against a thing ,the people are for it which is just right and as it should be.

That is why I voted for Governor Langer and his entire ticket and that is the only manner of voting in which the common ctiizen can defend his own interests as the daily newspapers are always lined up on the side of the respectable, smart crooks and against the people in every issue and every campaign.

On the tremendous vote given Governor Olson of Minnesota it is very evident that Minnesota voters are wise to the Twin City press and read them in reverse, the only way they can be read without injury to the individual and without injury to the cause of good government.

Someone from Home

by Lawrence Hawthorne

She welcomed me with trembling hands,
And eyes that smiled through tears—
I was the first old friend from home
She'd seen in twenty years!
"Someone from home," she said, and sighed;
"Oh, you could never know
How good it is to have you here!
I miss my old friends so!"

We talked about our yesterdays—
About the folks we knew
Long years ago; we talked about
The things we used to do.
Her heart still clung to memories
Of days when life was glad;
But oh, how lonely she had grown,
How desolate and sad!

The time for parting came too soon;
She plead with me to stay;
Someone from home gave her more joy
Than words could ever say . . .
And I shall cherish through the years
The brave and wistful smile
With which she thanked me—just because I talked with her awhile.

THE ENIGMATIC MR. ROOSEVELT

President Roosevelt presents quite a puzzle to the radicals of the country. Some of his actions have given them reasons to believe that he is indeed radical and committed at least to a program of socialization of public utilities and key industries. His enthusiasm for the Tennessee Valley development, his sponsoring of the NIRA with its provisions for shorter hours and longer wages, his signature on the Frazier-Lemke Farm Moratorium Act, and above all, his outspoken support of some of the more radical members of Congress, of other than Democratic party adherence, even to the extent of flaunting his own party's candidates, has all been to his advantage with the liberal-radical element.

On the other side of the ledger, however, there is his opposition to, and practically killing of the Frazier Farm Refinancing bill, his let-down on section 7a of the NRA, his opposition to inflation and his apparent kowtowing to the International Bankers in all and sundry monetary matters, and his toying with the tariff situation and world armament policies, in neither of which he seems to have any conception of the problems involved.

The left-wingers on the other hand unhessitatingly condemn the prethose who believe socialization in a greater or lesser degree inevitable, are prone to hail Roosevelt as a super-politician, who is leading the industrial-banking crowd on and giving them rope enough to hang themselves, while at the same time he is advancing the cause of the Co-operative Commonwealth as fast as the American people can assimilate this to them, new and untried doctrine. They apparently believe that when the time has come, that he has the unsuspicious and benighted capitalists out on the end of the limb he will suddenly pull the denouement and reveal himself as the master of political strategy and the long awaited leader of the Common People.

The elft-wingers, on the other hand, unhessitatingly condemn the president as a conniving rascal who conspires to fasten upon the people forever, a rotten capitalistic system by insidiously forging the chains of a Fascist dictatorship. They see in him the super-salesman who would retain and strengthen the industrial-financial oligarchy.

Frankly, we see in Mr. Roosevelt, neither the great leader of the common people nor the staunch defender of Big Business. We do not see any particular greatness in him, unless it should be his optimism. He is undoutedly a clean-living, clean-hearted person who earnestly desires to do the things that will be of the greatest good to the greatest number without knowing precisely where that course lays. But his birth, his early training and environment, and his subsequent experience is all against him. He cannot know the motives that move the people nor the passions that can rock a nation on its foundations. The history of his life does not reveal that he has lived. Consequently he can not lead, and his tenure of office must continue to be just what it has been so far, a goodnatured fumbling of the fundamentals and travel along the way of least resistance. Aristocrats never become great leaders of the Common People.

It is easy for Roosevelt to say that, noone shall starve in America, in the face of widespread misery and near-starvation, for he has never himself known the pangs of hunger. He cannot know the icy blasts that pierce the thinly clothed, and chill men's bones to the marrows, freezing the soul. He has always had a warm coat. He has not known the aches and the grime of the mines and the shops. He has not known the heartbreak of the farmer who sees the fruit of a whole season's grubbing in the soil; broiling in the hot sun; the hopes of paying the mortgage; or of sending the boy to college pounded into the earth by a hailstorm. He hasn't known the aching limbs and burning feet of those who must pound the pavements in vain search of work. He hasn't tasted the salt of his own blood and his sweat, hugging a moist and heaving earth while shot and shell screamed and whined over his head like an inferno. He has not had to meet tangible physical crisis, so he can not be expected to meet intangible ones squarely and with decision.

Great leaders do not emanate from Hyde Park mansions; they are not raised with silver spoons. They spring from the depths of the people. They reach the top by meeting and conquering adversity They have known hunger, cold, sweat and harsh words. As Andrew Jackson the orphan boy; as Abraham Lincoln the railsplitter; as Floyd Olson the newsboy.

MINNESOTA'S GARDEN SPOT

A person need only to travel to the Twin Cities and return to appreciate the wonderful section of the state that we have here in the Red Lake River Valley. We have of course heard a great deal about the drouth that has hit the state and the untold damage it has done to crops and to the fortunes of men. We supposed all the time that we were hard hit here in this section, and this article is not intended to belittle nor to minimize the damage this part of the state has suffered.

Nevertheless we can truthfully say that we had no idea of what a drouth is until last week when we made a trip to the cities. From Glenwood and south it seemed to us that the crops were increasingly hard hit. The Eden Valley country which has been known as the paradise spot of Minnesota in the past, while it had not, so far as we could see from the car window, suffered as much as some of the sections further south, was far from the garden it has been in the past. Oat fields were being cut with the mower and stood only six inches high. They were dead white in color. Corn was ranging in height from a foot to two feet. Pastures in a great many places were bare as a floor and brown. Within fifty miles of Minneapolis we saw corn fields that were wilted and brown an though hit by a killing frost.

We spoke with a man who boarded the train at one of the little stations down there and he stated that if it were not for the drouth aid of $5,000,000 provided by the special session of the legislature at the insistence of Governor Olson, "men, women and children would have starved to death in Minnesota this spring and summer."

Having viewed the desolation, and knowing the struggle that has been the lot of our people here where the drouth was relieved in time to save the late grains and even bring about a bumper crop for some, we can well believe him. It makes us more than ever impatient with men like Rockne and others like him who oppose every effort tthat men and women with a heart in their bosom put forth to aid the stricken populaiton.

MORE PRUSSIANISM
St. Paul Daily News.)

"Any man who fires a shot in the air will be court-martialed—shoot to kill."

This official order was proclaimed not in Russia, nor Germany nor even in Italy but in the United States of America.

It is credited in the United Press dispatch from San Francisco to Col. H. H. Mittelstaedt, commander of the national guard troops ordered out Friday to maintain order in the longshoremen's strike.

It may be that the colonel was giving a message for public consumption, warning strikers what they could expect as the best way of avoiding bloodshed.

Unfortunately his order has not been accepted that way. It has been taken as a bit of brutal militaristic arrogance and contempt for human life. If it were carried out, literally hundreds would be killed.

What industrial dispute is worth that sacrifice of life?

Surely there must be some point where sanity can enter into this matter.

CANADA TRIES CURRENCY
(Labor)

Canada has started a works program for unemployment relief without selling bonds. She is printing currency. The works program calls for about $40,000,000; and Canada is issuing about $75,000,000 of new notes. spokesmen of the Canadian government insist that this will not impair the credit of the Dominion, since the gold reserves will still be far above those agreed upon at the World Economic Conference. If Canada can do this, why not the United States? We have the need, we have the basic wealth, and as for gold reserves, we have about half the monetary gold in all the world.

Admittedly, inflation can go too far, and often has done so. But will inflation, such as Canada proposes, do as much harm as the piling up of interest charges through constant borrowing?

FARMER CAN'T SEE IT
(New Ulm Journal)

Everybody in the country is talking about the improvement of agricultural conditions throughout the nation, but the farmer himself. It takes more than slight increases in the prices of farm commodities to convince him that prosperity is returning. What the farmer has to buy, costs much more than a year ago, so he argues that he is far from "getting his."

W. C. T. U. NOTES

MIGHT IT BE THE NEW FREEDOM

And who should find himself agreeing with Anti-saloonist McBride but a New York "old-timer!" An old-timer, it seems, is anybody who was old enough to exercise a stand-up drinker's idea of personal liberty before Prohibition. Dr. McBride has just launched an attack on America's "cocktail hour" and "Old-Timer" has written a letter to the press admitting that the "Cocktails-for-Two fad is a "ruinous institution."

But—and this is important as an indication of the line that repeal defense may soon be obliged to take—"Old-Timer" says that before Prohibition very few young people indulged in mixed drinking. Girls and boys of the good old days got together over nothing more stimulating than an ice-cream soda, unless perhaps it was a banana split. Prohibition, we are to believe, taught them to take spirits in a coeducational way.

So today, one of the faults of repeal that cannot be overlooked even by an "old-timer" can at any rate be charged up by him to the noble experiment. We may expect to see more of this kind of argument, which explains that whatever is wrong with repeal is due to Prohibition. But repeal was supposed to abolish the ills of the arid era, not annex them.

And old-timers are continually informing us that girls didn't drink as much in the old days as after the Eighteenth Amendment was enacted. Well, neither did they smoke so many cigarets or plaster their faces with so many cosmetics, or drive so many automobiles so fast. Are these lusty employments Prohibition-bred or are they just negative manifestations of the New Freedom? And if repeal fails to curb them, will that be Probihition's fault?—Christian Science Monitor.

Farmer-Labor Press Service

by Senator Henry G. Teigan

Wisconsin Progressives have gotten their new party plans well under way. More than 120.000 signatures of voters in that state have been affixed to petitions asking for the establishment of the new progressive party.

"The gathering of these thousands of names, viewed as a matter of mechanics, was a tremendous task calling for hard and sacrificing work on the part of loyal progressives," says the party organ The Progressive. "There was no money for paid workers—those who saw to it that petitions were made available to enthusiastic signers worked from devotion to progressive principles and progressive cause without recompense."

The Progressive Party will have the support of the old LaFollette organization and of the newly organized "Farmer-Labor and Progressive League." There are, of course, other independent groups that will throw their suport to the Progressive Party and its slate of candidates both at the primary in September and again in the November election..

Jimmy Higginses On Job

Wisconsin Progressives are just like their brethren in other states of the Northwest. It is the devotion of Jimmy Higginses throughout Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, and other states that has made the progressive movement the power that it has today. There is, of course, no discounting the importance of leadership. The leaders of the movement deserve due credit for their great efforts, and yet without the aid of local boosters, leadership of the most remarkable sort would meet without success.

A second convention of the Progressive Party was held at Fond du Lac a week ago. The delegates adopted a fine platform on which the candidates of the party will wage their campaign. In substance it is much the same as the platform of the Farmer-Labor Party of Minnesota.

Fourteen Planks

The platform consists of fourteen planks as follows:

Government sale of arms, and munitions.
Public ownership of public utilities.
Complete ownership of country's banking system.
A job for everyone who is capable of working.
Financial and old age security thru state and national legislation creating unemployment insurance sickness, and accident insurance and old age pensions.
Legislation guaranteeing workers the right to organize as they choose.
Opposition to sales taxes; opposition to the exemption of securities and governmental salaries from taxation.
Support of a tax on corporate dividends.
Immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus.
Adequate legislation to secure the tenure of land for those who own it through moratorium laws.
Opposition to the destruction of wealth while the people are in need.
Support of co-operative marketing to reduce the spread between prices received by the farmers and by the the consumers.
Abolition of speculation and profiteering in food.

LaFollette Candidate For Senator

Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr will head the new party ticket. Candidates for other places on the ticket have not been selected. Phillip La Follette, brother of the senator and former governor, has been mentioned as possible candidate for the governorship. Another prospective candidate for governor is William T. Evjue, editor of the Capitol Times.

Fly In Ointment

The only fly in the ointment is the apparent disinclination of the socialists of Wisconsin to join hands with the progressives in the fight. "socialists worship dogma rather than reality" is the charge made by The Progressive in an editorial in its July 7th issue. "There is much common ground between Progressives and Socialists. Both believe that the God given resources which have been so lavishly conferred upon this country should be used to promote a fuller life for the masses of people rather than to be used in serving selfish greed and power. Why then are not these groups standing shoulder to shoulder in making the fight for a better state and nation?"

It will be most unfortunate indeed should the Socialists of the Badger state see fit to go it alone when they might join hands with the Progressives and make victory for a common cause all but certain in the November election. Let us hope that Wisconsin Socialists will aid the Progressive Party as the Socialists of Minnesota have aided the Farmer-Labor Party of this state virtually since the founding of the latter party in this state.

The Liberal Digest

NRA; THE ANTITHESIS OF AAA

Condensed from the "Rainbow Over the White House" by M. Farmer Murphy, in the Nation of July 11, 1934 by R. M. Aalbu.

There is no denying the remarkable accomplishments of the Roosevelt administration. By a few bold strokes galantly executed he changed the attitude of the nation from one of despair to one of hopefulness. Among these acts were reforms which had been proved, and others which were in the nature of radical experiments. The power development project; the truth-in-securities law; the banking reform act; represented only wholesome changes in the exsisting conditions. But the National Recovery Act and the Agricultural Adjustment Act were new and their consequenses incalculable.

What some believed that they saw then, and what the sponsors did not see, was that the purposes of the two acts were mutually antogenistic. In the crumbling of the NRA its critics see justification for thier position. The broad purpose of the NRA was to increase purchasing power, by shortening hours and increasing wages. To attain this the industrialist who had exploited the people in the past would have to become Christians over night, and meet the increased costs of production out of their profits. To induce this the anti-trust laws were suspended in order that they could "cooperate." If the industries did not meet the increased cost out of their profits, but on the other hand tried to recapture it thru higher prices, all the increased costs would come out of the public and there would be no addition to the purchasing power of the people.

This is exactly what they tried to do. Their cooperation was only for their own advantage and not for the general welfare. They combined to fix prices and manipulate wages so that as many as possible were thrown into the minimum wage class. The result has been, no increase in total consuming power, complaints about high prices and endless labor disputes. There has been no attempt on the part of the NRA to enforce the labor provisions of the codes. In every crisis, General Johnson has not "cracked down" but has rather himself "cracked up."

The problem of the AAA, as seen by its administrators, was to shorten the span between the price of comodities the farmer has to sell and the things that he must buy. This had become disastrously wide, and every increase in tariff rates on agricultural products was matched by an increase on manufactured goods so that the disparity remained. The AAA, therefore set out to increase the price of farm commodities, of which there was a surplus, by a series of plans to restrict production. Inducements to farmers to cooperate, in addition to the premised higher prices, were made in the form of bonuses for restricted acreage. While the spead has been slightly lessened there has been no gain because, just as in the case of the tariff, the farmers gain has been nullified by the higher prices the industrialists obtain thru the NRA.

Failure to see this may be excused owing to the fact that they were initiated when the times were critical and quick action was necessary. And they could not reasonobly be abandoned without a fair trial. But between the Special sesion of Congress when they were put into effect and the regular session in January of this year six and a half months elapsed which should have made it possible to work out a coordinated plan.

Such a scheme was not presented. Various useful measures were passed by the session just ended but none of them went to the fundamentals of the situation. Hence, people who are entirely friendly to the administration and are in full sympathy with the broad humanitarian principles enunciated by the president in his message of June 8, are asking why the things he holds out now as promises to be fulfilled by the next congress could not have been got ready for the one that just expired. Bills covering some of them were already in committee.

The ideas contained in the suggested program are basic. They go to the root of the trouble—security in home, in living, and in old age. But will the means to attain this end be formulated with such care as to exclude the confusion that have attended the year? This question is worrying those experiments inaugerated the past who have only good will for the administration and the reason for it is found in the records. The acute problem to be solved is that of purchasing power to balance production, and yet no serious attention has been given to it. All the talk has been of stimulating industrial producion. Altho the banks are full of money which they can't or won't lend, Congress provided another $5,000,000 for loans to industry—more is added to too much. It has been demonstrated that the CWA and the AAA thru its bonuses gave stimulus to business. They were antidotes for the high prices created by the NRA and the AAA crop restriction plans. But the CWA was abandoned and the fundamental task which it had been performing; that of providing more consuming power was thrown back upon direct-relief agancies.

No thinking person would not want to go back to the old order. All in that category acclain President Roosevelt's recognition of the need for security—the removal of the deadly fear of want, and they desire to go forward with him. They hope that he will put into an orderly system the disjointed operations now in force before he is overwhelmed by the confusion and cross-purpose.

It is hoped that his great objectives; "security of the home, security of livelihood, and the security of social insurance," will be reached by methods which take into account the whole social and economic structure, so that the plan my work and endure.

Ohio's Losses in War

From seventeenth place in the population rank of states in 1803, Ohio advanced to thirteenth by 1810, to fifth place in the next ten years, and to third in the succeeding twenty years, which place she lost to Illinois. With only about 43,000 persons at her birth in less than 60 years the Buckeye state offered 840,000 men in the Civil war, 24,504 of whom died on the battle fields, more than half her population when she was given statehood, and a 16 per cent greater loss than that incurred by the British and American soldiery during the entire Revolutionary war.

cient,' these reasons are not the real reasons and are only a smoke-screen to hide the fact that the city engineer has pulled booners and is trying to place the blame on someone else.

We circulated petitions which were signed by over four hundred citizens of Thief River Falls urging that the dismissed men be reinstated and that the engineer be dismissed. These petitions were also tossed aside without consideration.

The council has shown an utter disregard for the interests of the tax payers, in proof of which we cite the fact that they have accepted the higher rather than the lower bids in numerous instances where advertisement has been made for equipment or for services. In buying a firetruck they bought at a price of over $9,000 a truck of questionable value while equipment of known quality was offered at from one to three thousand dollars less. They contracted to have the city's official printing done at 35 cent per folio although another bid was offered by a responsible bidder at 25 cents per folio. In the case of the repair of the water reservoir they failed to call for bids on the job at all although the law provides that bids must be called when expenditures are to run over $500. This job cost the city over $3,000. They called in a Minneapolis firm to do the work altho there are cement workers and plasterers in the city of known ability who are out of work.

They have increased the payroll of the city without in any way giving the city any added service. They have two street commissioners where one was sufficient before, but our streets are no better than before. They have two janitors in the auditorium and only one was ever needed before. They are paying one of them as assistant a good salary but it is a known fact that he does not put in one half of his time on the job. He is gone sometimes for days.

We know that in the case of strikes, riots, lockouts and boycotts everybody in the community suffers. The innocent with the guilty. However, we also know that there is no other recourse at our command than to withhold our patronage from the members of the city council and the firms they are connected with in this case. We have tried all other methods of persuasion.

cient,' these reasons are not the real reasons and are only a smoke-screen to hide the fact that the city engineer has pulled booners and is trying to place the blame on someone else.

We circulated petitions which were signed by over four hundred citizens of Thief River Falls urging that the dismissed men be reinstated and that the engineer be dismissed. These petitions were also tossed aside without consideration.

The council has shown an utter disregard for the interests of the tax payers, in proof of which we cite the fact that they have accepted the higher rather than the lower bids in numerous instances where advertisement has been made for equipment or for services. In buying a firetruck they bought at a price of over $9,000 a truck of questionable value while equipment of known quality was offered at from one to three thousand dollars less. They contracted to have the city's official printing done at 35 cent per folio although another bid was offered by a responsible bidder at 25 cents per folio. In the case of the repair of the water reservoir they failed to call for bids on the job at all although the law provides that bids shall be called when expenditures are to run over $500. This job cost the city over $3,000. They called in a Minneapolis firm to do the work altho there are cement workers and plasterers in the city of known ability who are out of work.

They have increased the payroll of the city without in any way giving the city any added service. They have two street commissioners where one was sufficient before, but our streets are no better than before. They have two janitors in the auditorium and only one was ever needed before. They are paying one of them as assistant a good salary but it is a known fact that he does not put in one half of his time on the job. He is gone sometimes for days.

We know that in the case of strikes, riots, lockouts and boycotts everybody in the community suffers. The innocent with the guilty. However, we also know that there is no other recourse at our command than to withhold our patronage from the members of the city council and the firms they are connected with in this case. We have tried all other methods of persuasion.

Therefore, we wish to state that as long as the members of the city council refuse to grant the men in question a fair and public hearing to the charges of inexperience and inefficiency which have been made against the city engineer, we shall continue to withhold our patronage from the members of the city council and the firms with which they are connected.

BORCHERT CHILD BURNS TO DEATH IN FLAMING CAR

Three Year Old Boy Thought To Have Been Playng With Matches

Fire took the life of little Dale Borchert, three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Borchert at about 6 o'clock on Tuesday evening while playing in the family car in front of the Borchert home at 704 Knight Avenue North.

The origin of the fire is unknown, but ti is supposed that Dale was playing with matches or that the fire was coused by a short circuit in the car. Mr. Borchert discovered the fire, and tried to open the car door but couldn't get near it due to the intense heat and flames. A garden hose was turned on the car, putting out some of the blaze, after which the boy was removed by Earl Severson and Meis Von Schlosser. The little body was burned beyond recognition and was lying on the floor of the tonneau with the feet on the seat cushions. The fire department arrived to extinguish the remaining flames. The upholstering and interior of the car was burned and the windshield had also melted from the intense heat.

Dale Borchert was born May 8, 1931 in this city, Services were held this afternoon from the Larson Funeral Home with Rev. E. A. Cooke officiating. Interment was made in Greenwood cemetary.

K.K. SOLBERG HITS BOTH OLD PARTIES WITH SAME BRICK

Laud Senator L. Naplin and Urges Election of Paul A. Harris In Saturday Talk.

It was announced at the meeting of the Farmer-Labor club last Friday evening that Lieutenant Governor K. K. Solberg would be in the city on Saturday evening enroute to the Old Mill Site where he spoke on Sunday. A short-notice meeting was therefore arranged and advertised with handbills for a speech by the Lieutenant Governor at the court house on Saturday evening.

Mr. Solberg was introduced by Senator Naplin who paid her respects to Mr. Sobleg and his predecessor in the Lieutenant Governor's chair, Mr. Arens as being very capable and fair-minded presiding officers. Although they have no vote in the senate and were shorn of the committee appointive powers they were able to give the liberal minority in the senate a fair break when it came to getting their bills before that body on the closing night of the session and that consequently it was possible to get action on some bills that would otherwise have died on the desk, she said.

Mr. Solberg, who is well known to Thief River Falls audiences, discussed the present financial and economic situation in his usual forceful manner. He scored the destruction of food while people have been crying for bread, and asserted that the cry of communism directed against the Farmer-Labor party is false. Communism is being bred and fostered by the present economic chaos, he stated and this chaos is the result of 50 years of republican and democratic misrule.

The old gang politicians are so anxious to keep control of the lawmaking bodies of the state that they are willing to sacrifice their parties and their candidates in order to do so, he stated. Therefore this talk of fusion. This isn't Harris,' nor Solberg's, nor Floyd Olson's fight, he said, this is your fight. It is a fight by the common people to regain control of their government by lawful and peaceful means, at the ballot box.

He lauded the railroad brotherhoods for their efforts in behalf of all progressive legislation. They have always assisted the farmers in putting thru legislation to benefit the farmers, he said. As a member of the brotherhoods legislation board, Mr. Harris the Farmer-Labor endorsed candidate for the senate from this district, has done invaluable work in behalf of the farmers and workers. He urged the election of Mr. Harris and paid a fine tribute to Senator Laura E. Naplin and the splendid work she has done as a member of the uper house.

B. Dan Bjorkman "Celebrates" 25 Years in Model Laundry "Working as Usual"

The Model Steam Laundry, owned and operated by B. Dan Bjorkman, passed the ouarter century of its establishment on Thursday, July 19th. When Mr. Bjorkman assumed the laundry business, two washmachines composed the entire equipment. From such a small beginning, Mr. Bjorkman has built up a large business, which proves the old adage, that "big oaks from little acorns grow." In 1930, an addition was built to the building much improvement and remodeling was done, and various new devices and equipment was installed. None of the the original machinery remains.

To quote Mr. Bjorkman, he celebrated the occasion by "working as usual." His son, Lawrence, entered into business with him on June 1st, 1924.

Chief Executive Thrills Throng With Oration on Economic Philosophy

A crowd estimated at from ten to twelve thousand people jammed the Old Mill Site 13 miles west of Newfolden Sunday to hear Governor Floyd B. Olson and other Farmer-Labor speakers. The rally which was easily the largest ever held in Northwestern Minnesota was favored with an ideal day and the great throng of people apparenty enjoyed the outing to the fullest. Two aeroplanes were at the grounds and did a fine business as did an athletic show and several refreshment stands. Young folks were enjoying bathing facilities provided by the river which winds thru the site and hundreds of picnic parties occupied the groves which dot the eighty acre tract.

The governor was delayed by a tire blowout which occured near Warren, and which might easily have brought the occupants of his car to a tragic end, as they were travelling at between 70 and 80 miles an hour when it happened. However the governor's Chauffeur was able to bring the car to a stop without upsetting and the tire was changed. The governor proceeded to Hallock first where he addressed a large gathering and arrived at the Old Mill Site at about 4:45. He was introduced by Richard Rice of Alvarado, Farmer-Labor candidate for state sentaor from the 67th district.

Following are some of the highlights of the governor's speech:

Referring to the Declaration of Independence, wherein it states, "We hold these truths to be selfevident; that all men are created equal and are endowed by their Creator with certain unalinenable rights: That among these are Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of happiness." he said: "I take it that this referrence to "Pursuit" does not only mean we should have a right to chase it but also to enjoy happiness in some measure. And the first requisite if we are to enjoy happiness is to have some measure of security: security of home; security from want; and security of life and liberty."

"It seems to me that the functions of government must be not only to act as a policeman who stands about swinging his club, but as an instrumentality thru which the people may enjoy the fullest extent life, liberty and pursuit of happiness.

"If I were well enough versed in theology I believe that I should be able to preach a sermon wherein I could expound the principles of the farmer-labor party and take as my text "I Am My Brother's Keeper."

"The functions of government must be to protect the weak against the strong and against the greedy.

"The results of these studies convinces me that we have no overproduction of things that we need altho there is an overproduction of things that we are able to buy with the purchasing power that we have. The only commodity of which there is more then we need in the United States is wheat. and cotton, in other commodities, altho there is more than we can buy, there is not as much as we need—if each person should eat an egg a day we would have to increase our poultry production by 40 per cent.

From the Old Mill Site the governor went to Tabor where he addressed a dedication of the new Community Hall.

Other speakers on the program were, Lieutenant Governor K. K. Solberg, Judges of the District Court M. A. Brattland and James E. Montague, E. M. Evans, farmer-labor candicate for representative from Marshall county, Verner Nelson of Roseau Mr. Ohlquist of Badger, Richard Rice of Alvarado, and R. M. Aalbu of this city.

Dillinger is Shot to Death in Chicago

"Public Enemy One", John Dillinger, was shot and killed by three bullets from federal guns on Sunday evening upon leaving a small Chicago theater in the company of two women. Instrumental in the death of the Indiana outlaw was a "girl in red", Mrs. Anna Sage. Supposedly one of his sweethearts who torn between the conflicting emotions of loyalty to the man who had supported her on the one hand, and lust for money on the other, led him into a trap that cost his life.

Other public enemies such as Insull, Mitchell, and E. W. Decker are still at large according to the last reports.

F-L PAPERS FORM NEW PRESS GROUP

Writers Dedicate Selves To 'Disseminating Truth,' Leaders State

Twenty Farmer-Labor newspaper editors from all parts of Minnesota gathered at St. Paul last Friday, where they perfected organization of a new press group, the North Star Press association.

Dedicating its organization to the purpose of enlightening voters on Minnesota regarding the principals of Farmer-Labor government, the group elected as president John H. Woebke, editor of the New Ulm Review. Other officers named were Frank Muirhead, editor of the Hastings Gazette, vice president; E. E. Farnam, editor of the Independent Press, Madison Minn., secretary; and C. E. Mills of the Montevideo American, treasurer.

In an effort to knit the organization closely together, it was decided to name an executive committee of nine editors, one from each congressional district. Regular supervised editorial material will be prepared by association members, it was stated, "in a fight for the common people against the special interests."

Official tabulation at the organization meeting showed a total of 34 papers in the state at the present time which are espousing the Farmer-Labor cause. In addition, officers estimated, more than 30 other papers are classified as "favorable" publications, doing much "to bring the truth before the people, but who are of other political beliefs as well."

"There is a growing realization," association spokesmen stated, "that the burden of disseminating truth rests with the newspaper fraternity."

District Court Holds St. Lukes Hospital Tax-Exempt in Decision Handed Down Wed.

Judge M. A. Brattland handed down a decision this week, in the case of the County of Pennington vs the St. Lukes Hospital Association, relative to personal property taxes claimed to be due the county.

County attorney Paul A. Lundgren, appearing for the county asserted that the hospital was to be exempted from taxation in return for the maintainance of a charity ward, or in lieu of a special ward for charity cases would accept charity cases without discrimination. In his brief filed with the court he state: "It is the contention of the plaintiff that if the corporate set-up of the St. Lukes Hospital association is stripped of all fads and frills, the situation exposes itself as one whereby the Bratrud Clinic controls the operations of the hospital and receives a real pecuniary advantage therefrom, leaving however, the legal tielt in an institution which claims to be a tax-exempt institution." Further plaintiff states "—All patients who have been received at the hospital have been charged the regular rates of the hospital excepting those who were public charges upon the city, county, or townships who have, by contract with the municipal subdivisions received a special rate."

In conclusion plaintiff states that the St. Lukes Hospital Association is not owning and using the property in a manner contemplated by the constitutional exemption provision."

In holding that the property is indeed included under the constitutional exemption provision the court states; "The personal property of the association upon which the taxes for 1981 and 1932 were levied, were acquired by direct purchase and by donation from the Bratrud Clinic. "The court further states that the membership in the hospital association consists of ninety-five persons none of whom enjoy special advantages nor preference.

"The medical staff of the hospital," the court stay," consists of all doctors who take care of patients in the hospital and who have on application been admitted to practice in the hospital; such admission being subject to the control of the Chief of Staff, Dr. Edward Bratrud. The facilities of the hospital has been at the service of outside doctors who bring their patients to the hospital upon the same terms and conditions. There is no evidence that discrimination has been practiced in passing upon applications for admissions to practice in the hospital and any showing of that kind would have an important bearing upon the question of the public charactor of the hospital and whether the hospital is operated for the exclusive prifit of the Bratrud Clinic."

In conclusion the court states; "The court cannot find that the arrangements between the Hospital Association and the Bratrud Clinic were made for the purpose of assisting the latter to escape a tax justly due."

Mr. Lundgren states that an appeal may be taken.

Outlaw Is Killed as He Leaves Small Chicago Movie House.

Chicago—John Dillinger, 32, arch criminal, was shot dead by a group of department of justice operatives as he walked out of a Chicago movie treater. He whipped an automatic revolver out of his pocket and had it half raised when the operatives loosed a withering blast of revolver fire that dropped him. He died a few minutes after.

Fifteen operatives had surrounded the theater, after information had reached M. H. Purvis, Chicago agent for the department of justice, that Dillinger would attend the theater. Not a word was spoken as the outlaw ran into the cordon of officers. Dillinger knew what was coming. He gave a hunted look, reached quickly into his pocket, and the guns roared. The end of the greatest manhunt in contemporary criminal annals came in the swift tempo in which the notorious outlaw had lived

The federal men watched him buy his ticket, and then for more than two hours, the longest two hours ever spent, according to Purvis, they kept the theater surrounded.

It was late Saturday when undercover information was received that Dillinger would attend the movie, "Manhattan Melodrama", at the Biograph theater Purvis hurriedly made arrangements to surround the theater with picked men from among investigators. They were armed only with pistols. No shotguns or machine guns were issued, for he wished no general firing that might endanger passersby

Dillinger was shot through the back of the neck, the bullet coming out under the right eye, and another bullet crashed through his left breast The latter would not have killed him. The bullet through the neck being fatal. At the Cook county morgue, attempts were made to identify Dillinger by his fingerprint, but the ends of his fingers were scarred apparently having been treated with acid. Purvis had definitely identified him before the body was taken to the morgue. Dillinger's hair was dyed coal black and cut very short. His eyebrows appeared to have been plucked to a fine line. He had a small black moustache, and the scar on the left side of his face had been removed without a trace by a clever bit of plastic surgery.

FAT CATTLE PRICES HOLD UP DESPITE REDORD SLAUGHTER

In face of record bovine slaughtering, fat cattle prices are holding up unusually well the weekly market bulletin issued by the Central Cooperative Association of South St. Paul. Fed steers are selling at prices from $1.50 to $2.00 per cwt. above a year ago. Yet an unparalled slaughtering of cattle has taken place, during the last six months and particularly during the past month.

June slaughter of cattle in the United States was the largest on record, totaling 931,970, or 180,855 head more than a year ago, according to reports from all federally inspected packing plants of the country.

For the first six months this year, 4,880,463 cattle were slaughtered in the United States, this being the largest slaughter on record for that period except in 1918. The corresponding total for 1918 was 4,991,287 head. Last year the six-month total slaughter was 3,882,770 and the five-year average slaughter for the period was 3,868,015.

Calf slaughter in June also established new all time record at 601,332 head, or 160,151 head more than slaughtered in June last year. Likewise, the six month calf slaughter at 3,169,620 head set a new record for the period.

Heavy slaughter is attributed in part to government purchases in drouth areas, but it must be remembered that the cattle population of the country has been at its peak during the past year and that consequently slaughtering naturally has been large.

DISILLUSIONED VOTERS REGRET NEW WET LAW

The repeal wave swept over the nation in 1933 like a king tide. It carried dominantly dry states like Michigan, Ohio and Oregon with almost the same certainity as welter-wet Wisconsin, New York and Connecticut. Prominent personages who had been outstanding dry champions were washed from their morrings like skiffs in a typhoon. The nation went wet—soaking, sopping, swimming wet.

But, before repeal was six weeks old oustanding wet leaders who had honestly hoped that repeal would reduce, if not eliminate, the evils of drinking and drunkenness publicly denounces the measure as hopeless and intolerable failure.

Local option elections followed in April. Villages and small cities which had voted overwhelmingly for repeal only a few months before had, by that time been so disillusioned and disgusted by the results of repeal that they reversed themselves and voted two, four, and in some cases, ten to one for local prohibition.

And now two state-wide votes have been taken. The first was in North Dakota. On June 27, six months and 22 days after repeal, the Flickertail state gave prohibition more than 25,000 majority—a signal victory in a primary election with a small total vote. On July 10 Mississippi gave John Barleycorn a two-to-one knockout.

Though there may be nothing in these rather startling facts upon which to base a valid conclusion that the people of the United States demand a return of the 18th Amendment, there is sound basis for the belief that the tide of public sentiment is swinging sharply, rapidly and preponderantly back to the support of some measure to outlaw the liquor traffic.

If the wets ignore that conclusion it will be to their sorrow. If the drys fail to act immediately upon their advantage, it will be to their loss.

PUBLIC MUCH CONFUSED ABOUT FISH TAPEWORMS

Though it is true that fish may transmit tapeworms to human beings, there is no connection whatever between this risk and the ringed, ribbon-like tapeworms so commonly found in the intestines of bass, crappies and other game fish, says Dr. W. A. Riley, chief of the division of entomology and economis zoology at University farm. The kind of tapeworms that infest humans appear only in the flesh of fish and are so small that most people never notice them.

"The fact that fish harbor the immature stages of the tapeworm which develops in man has received much publicity in Minnesota in recent years," says Dr. Riley. "As a result many inquiries come to the experiment station. Almost invariably suspicion has been aroused by finding the ribbon-like tapeworm. Such forms are found eveyrwhere in fish and are in no ways harmful to man. The dangerous species is found in the flesh of fish, in a stage which is entirely different in appearance from [illegible] tion of an inch in length. It is quite likely to be overlooked entirely and is [illegible] led when the fish is properly cooked.

"The ringed, ribbon-like tapeworms so commonly found in the intestine of fish are species which have undergone their young, or larval stage in some other animal, that has been eaten by the fish. Unlike man, the fish cannot cook its food and hence is subject to frequent infections. There is no excuse for human cases of tapeworm infection, for they always arise from careless use of raw or imperfectly cooked meats or fish."

ROAD FUND DISTRIBUTION

More of Minnesota's last allotment of federal highway funds went for concrete paving than any other purpose except grading, according to an announcement by the state highway department. A revised check-up of the distribution of the $10,656,000 given Minnesota for the 1933-34 season shows 47 miles paved with concrete at a cost of $1,594,000. Of this, about 7 miles was 40 feet wide instead of having the standard 20-foot width.

The department laid 13 miles of asphalt paving in the Twin Cities at a cost of $731,000. All of this was 40 feet or more in width. Bituminous treatment of various types was placed on 132 miles of roads at a cost of $450,000.

IDEAL TIME TO DIP SHEEP IS WHEN WOOL IS SHORT

Dip the sheep right now, while the wool is short and the weather warm urges P. A. Anderson, sheep specialist of the University Farm division of animal husbandry. Dipping is especially important in flocks where ticks were found at shearing time. Even if no ticks can be seen now on the shorn sheep, they are undoubtedly present on the lambs from which they will spread to the entire flock before winter. Furthermore, if badly infested, the lambs will not make proper gains.

The dipping of sheep to avoid unthriftiness ond the loss of wool by the constant irritation of the sheep tick and louse should be an annual event, and would be if the loss of wool and feed were considered in dollars and cents. There are many types of sheep dips on the market. Only the best should be purchased. Unless one of the standard dips is used, a trial solution should be made up to show the strength of the dip needed.

Important points to consider about dipping sheep include: (1) Keep sheep in yard the night before; (2) Select a bright day and start dipping early so sheep will dry off before evening; (3) Use soft water or a water softener with hard water as the dip dissolves more completely in soft water; (4) Heat the water to take off the chill. Many losses have resulted from cold water. (5) Keep the dipping solution well stirred and leave sheep in long enough to destroy the ticks and lice; (6) Give the sheep a few hours' rest before driving them to pasture; (7) Handle all sheep carefully when dipping, avoiding all rough handling.

Sheep known to be heavily infested should be dipped again in 12 days, unless a sheep dip of high quality is used and the manufacturer maintains a second dipping is not necessary, says Mr. Anderson.

STATE TESTS NEW TYPE ROAD SURFACE PRODUCT

Experiments are being conducted by the Minnesota Highway department and similar agencies in other states which may bring about the widespread use of a new type of low-cost surface for secondary roads.

Soil stabilization is what the engineers call this most recent development in road building. By scientific mixing of gravel or sand with clay, and the addition of calcium chloride or a similar chemical agent, the engineers have succeeded in producing smooth, dustless, semi-hard surfaces suitable for moderate traffic. Improved gravel surfaces have also been obtained without the use of chemicals.

The cost of stablization being comparatively low, it may open a new era of improved country roads here if the process works out at successfully in Minnesota as it has in some other states, highway engineers asserted. Stabilization work has been retarded this summer by the drouth, which resulted in unfavorable conditions.

"The first experimental soil stabilization project of the Minnesota Highway department is on trunk highway No. 22 between Wells and Minnesota Lake in Fairbault county," said Commissioner N. W. Elsberg.

"This project is nearly eight miles long and is now nearing completion. Its performance under traffic will be carefully studied and its maintenance cost will be checked closely. Other stabilization experiments in various parts of the state are under consideration."

Engineers have long known that a gravel surface is efficient in wet waether, while clay surfaces compact into hard, smooth roads when there is not too much water. By combining the gravel with the clay and adding calcium chloride to help maintain the proper moisture content under all conditions, a road surface is obtained which should remain smooth and firm in both wet and dry weather. This would eliminate from gravel roads the dust nuisance and the heavy loss of material thrown out by cars and blown or washed away. It would also tend to decrease maintenance expense, as the frequent blading or smoothing required by gravel roads would not be necessary.

Any mechanical device which does the work of a human being may be styled a robot although it is more often applied to automatons or mechanical men, says Pathfinder Magazine. This word came into use after the publication in the United States in 1923 of a play entitled "Rossum's Universal Robots." The characters of this play were mechanical men and women. It is pronounced, according to most dictionaries, as "ro-but"—accent on the first syllable and first o long although the New York Theater guild, which produced the play, pronounced it as "rob-ut" with first o short and accent also on the first

ITALIAN GIRLS HUNT MATES IN GONDOLAS

Twelve weddings will be the result of a score of girls, bent on finding husbands, riding the canals of Venice in heavily beflowered gondolas, reviving a traditional Venetian marriage custom.

In days of old, the doges of the city believed in matrimony and "more babies." just as Mussolini does today. To encourage marriages, the doges used to assign a dowry to 12 girls chosen from among many candidates. The fortunate young women were then paraded in a richly decorated boat through the city canals to attract the attention of all eligible young men. The ceremony unfailingly occurred on the feast of the Purification of the Virgin.

The marriage hunt was commemorated every year uninterruptedly from 944 A. D. until the Fourteenth century, when Venetian girls became self-conscious and shy and refused to submit to the "humiliating" public search for a husband. It was then thought to replace the girls by dummies, but the attempt proved a failure.

Flowers Bloom in Cold on Coast

During the height of the winter's cold waves, temperatures on the North Sea island of Foehr fell only a few degrees below the freezing point, and broom (genista) bloomed. Wild pansies and other plants also betray no effects of cold weather. The influence of the Gulf Stream is so strong that temperatures on the coast are regularly two or three degrees higher than even a few hundred yards farther inland. It shows itself also on the islands of Norderney and Heligoland, where roses frequently bloom in winter.

JOHN DILLINGER SLAIN BY AGENTS

Outlaw Is Killed as He Leaves Small Chicago Movie House.

Chicago—John Dillinger, 32, arch criminal, was shot dead by a group of department of justice operatives as he walked out of a Chicago movie treater. He whipped an automatic revolver out of his pocket and had it half raised when the operatives loosed a withering blast of revolver fire that dropped him. He died a few minutes after.

Fifteen operatives had surrounded the theater, after information had reached M. H. Purvis, Chicago agent for the department of justice, that Dillinger would attend the theater. Not a word was spoken as the outlaw ran into the cordon of officers. Dillinger knew what was coming. He gave a hunted look, reached quickly into his pocket, and the guns roared. The end of the greatest manhunt in contemporary crimnal annals came in the swift tempo in which the notorious outlaw had lived

The federal men watched him buy his ticket, and then for more than two hours, the longest two hours ever spent, according to Purvis, they kept the theater surrounded.

It was late Saturday when undercover information was received that Dillinger would attend the movie, "Manhattan Melodrama", at the Biograph theater Purvis hurriedly made arrangements to surround the theater with picked men from among investigators. They were armed only with pistols. No shotguns or machine guns were issued, for he wished no general firing that might endanger passersby

Dillinger was shot through the back of the neck, the bullet coming out under the right eye, and another bullet crashed through his left breast The latter would not have killed him. The bullet through the neck being fatal. At the Cook county morgue, attempts were made to identify Dillinger by his fingerprint, but the ends of his fingers were scarred apparently having been treated with acid. Purvis had definitely identified him before the body was taken to the morgue. Dillinger's hair was dyed coal black and cut very short. His eyebrows appeared to have been plucked to a fine line. He had a small black moustache, and the scar on the left side of his face had been removed without a trace by a clever bit of plastic surgery.

U. S. Pushes Plan In Tree Planting

Washington — Government forest service officials are pushing ahead with plans to carry out President Roosevelt's program for bisecting the country with a 100-mile-wide swath of trees from Canada to the gulf in an effort to modify climatic and other agricultural conditions in the drouth area. FAT CATTLE PRICES HOLD UP DESPITE REDORD SLAUGHTER

In face of record bovine slaughtering, fat cattle prices are holding up unusually well the weekly market bulletin issued by the Central Cooperative Association of South St. Paul. Fed steers are selling at prices from $1.50 to $2.00 per cwt. above a year ago. Yet an unparalled slaughtering of cattle has taken place, during the last six months and particularly during the past month.

June slaughter of cattle in the United States was the largest on record, totaling 931,970, or 180,855 head more than a year ago, according to reports from all federally inspected packing plants of the country.

For the first six months this year, 4,880,463 cattle were slaughtered in the United States, this being the largest slaughter on record for that period except in 1918. The corresponding total for 1918 was 4,991,287 head. Last year the six-month total slaughter was 3,882,770 and the five-year average slaughter for the period was 3,868,015.

Calf slaughter in June also established new all time record at 601,332 head, or 160,151 head more than slaughtered in June last year. Likewise, the six month calf slaughter at 3,169,620 head set a new record for the period.

Heavy slaughter is attributed in part to government purchases in drouth areas, but it must be remembered that the cattle population of the country has been at its peak during the past year and that consequently slaughtering naturally has been large.

DISILLUSIONED VOTERS REGRET NEW WET LAW

The repeal wave swept over the nation in 1933 like a king tide. It carried dominantly dry states like Michigan, Ohio and Oregon with almost the same certainity as welter-wet Wisconsin, New York and Connecticut. Prominent personages who had been outstanding dry champions were washed from their morrings like skiffs in a typhoon. The nation went wet—soaking, sopping, swimming wet.

But, before repeal was six weeks old oustanding wet leaders who had honestly hoped that repeal would reduce, if not eliminate, the evils of drinking and drunkenness publicly denounces the measure as hopeless and intolerable failure.

Local option elections followed in April. Villages and small cities which had voted overwhelmingly for repeal only a few months before had, by that time been so disillusioned and disgusted by the results of repeal that they reversed themselves and voted two, four, and in some cases, ten to one for local prohibition.

And now two state-wide votes have been taken. The first was in North Dakota. On June 27, six months and 22 days after repeal, the Flickertail state gave prohibition more than 25,000 majority—a signal victory in a primary election with a small total vote. On July 10 Mississippi gave John Barleycorn a two-to-one knock-out.

Though there may be nothing in these rather startling facts upon which to base a valid conclusion that the people of the United States demand a return of the 18th Amendment, there is sound basis for the belief that the tide of public sentiment is swinging sharply, rapidly and preponderantly back to the support of some measure to outlaw the liquor traffic.

If the wets ignore that conclusion it will be to their sorrow. If the drys fail to act immediately upon their advantage, it will be to their loss.

PUBLIC MUCH CONFUSED ABOUT FISH TAPEWORMS

Though it is true that fish may transmit tapeworms to human beings, there is no connection whatever between this risk and the ringed, ribbon-like tapeworms so commonly found in the intestines of bass, crappies and other game fish, says Dr. W. The Frazier-Lemke Act

A Radio Address by

Harry H. Peterson

Attorney General of Minnesota

This remarkably clear and able address on the Fraziier-Lemke amendment to the U. S. Bankruptcy law, was given by Harry H. Peterson, attorney general of Minnesota, over radio station WCCO, July 5 1934, from 7:45 until 8:00 p. m.

The Attorney General Said:

"The Frazier-Lemke amendment to the bankruptcy law which was passed by Congress on June 16th last, and approved by the President, has been hailed throughout the nation as a measure designed to deal with the problem of farm mortgage indebtedness in such a manner as to give real and substantial relief to the American farmer. The purpose of this law is to grant under the Bankruptcy power of Congress extensions of time to distressed farmers, for payment of their debts and mortgages and to permit them to remain in possession of their property during the period of such extension while payments are being made under the terms and conditions of the law. It attempts to deal with the problem of farm mortgage indebtedness in such a way as to save for the American farmer his home and his property, and in such a way as to give to his creditors the full and unfair value of his indebtedness and the benefit of any security given to secure the payment thereof.

The last Congress was compelled by the force of facts and circumstances to realize that the indebtedness of the nation is so large in amount that a very large part thereof will never be paid. We have been laboring under a staggering indebtedness. It has been found necessary to make the provisions of the bankrupcy law available to many to whom it has heretofore been denied. It has been found necessary to make this law available to railroads, then to municipalities, and then to private corporations to effect reorganizations and re-arrangements of their financial structures and finally it was found that it was imperative that the law be extended to the American farmer so as to meet his needs and deal with his problems.

The problem of the American farmer is not a new one. It has been with us since 1921. Since that time the American farmer has been engaged in a life and death struggle for his very existence. He has fought on many fronts. He fought for farm relief measures like the McNary-Haugen bill and other similar bills to protect agriculture. He has fought for mortgage refinancing bills, like the Frazier-Lemke Farm Mortage Refinancing bill, to lift part of the farm mortgage indebtedness from the back of the American farmer. In all these fights he has been unsuccessful because Congress and the President have turned a deaf ear to his pleas. In line with the idea of extending the provisions of the bankruptcy law to those who are now in special need thereof, the Congress at its last session passed the Frazier-Lemke amendment to the bankruptcy law. It marks a distinct departure from the traditional manner of dealing with this question as to the other laws extending the provisions of the bankruptcy law to railroads, municipalities, and private corporations.

The amendment in effect provides that any farmer who is unable to pay its debts and who has failed to obtain a composition or extension of his debts under the exsisting law providing for such composition and extension of debts, or if he feels aggrieved by any composition or extension, may apply to the Bankrupcy court to be adjudged a bankrupt and obtain the benefits of the Frazier-Lemke amendment.

The first step in the proceedings is the appraisal of the property of the farmer. In order to secure such appraisal the application must be made at the time of the first hearing. It is important to bear in mind that the application must be made at the time of the first hearing. The statute provides that appraisers shall be appointed to appraise all the property of the debtor. One of the features of the law is the provisions that such appraisal need not necessarily be the market value of the property which heretofore has been regarded as the only crittrion for determining value. The language of the statute is:

> "Such appraisers shall appraise all the property of the debtor at its then fair and reasonable value, not necessarily the market value at the time of such appraisal."

Provision is made for objections, exceptions and appeals from the appraisals under the jurisdiction of the court.

After the appraisal has been made in the manner as indicated, the next step is the disposition of the property. The act provides first for a voluntary agreement between the farmer and his creditors by which the farmer can repurchase his property from the trustee for the appraised value thereof, and secandly, if such voluntary agreement is not entered into, the farmer shall have a five-year moratorium during which the creditors' remedies are staying upon conditions that the farmer pay a reasonable rental to the trustee, pay the taxes and comply with other reasonable conditions to be imposed by the court for the continued use and occupation of his property during the period of the five year moratorium the farmer shall have the privilege of paying into the court the appraised value of the propery and that thereupon the court shall award him full title and possession thereto.

The law provides not only for a moratorium, but also for the abolition of deficieny judgments as a practical proposition. President Roosevelt referred to this feature of the law when he signed it.

I will refer to the language which he used a little later.

After the appraisal has been made the referee shall, pursuant to the petition of the farmer made at the first hearing, set aside to him the exemptions to which he is entitled under the state law, "subject to any exsisting mortgages or liens upon such exempt property to an amount equal to the value as fixed by the appraisal."

In Minnesota a farmer has 80 acres exempt as his homestead. This would be the amount so set aside in Minnesota. In North Dakota, I am informed that the exemption is 160 acres. It varies in different states. A further order is made at the same time that the possession, under the control of the court, of any part or all of the debtor's property shall remain in the debtor subject to the general lien of the trustee for the benefit of the creditors and subject to all prior liens, pledges and encumbrances up to the actual value of such property as fixed by the appraisal. In other words, the property is held subject to prior liens, pledges and encumbrances up to the appraised value thereof. Such liens, pledges and encumbrances are scaled down to the appraised value of the property.

Then the law provides that the farmer, with the consent of the lienholder or holders may enter into an agreement with the trustee to repurchase the non-exempt property upon the terms and conditions following:

a. Payment of 1 per cent interest up-,year from the date of said agreeon the appraised price within 1 ment.
year from the date of said agreement
b. Payment of 2½ per cent of the appraised price within 2 years from the date of said agreement.
c. Payment of an additional 2½ per cent of the appraised price within 3 years from the date of said agreement.
d. Payment of an additional 5 per cent of the appraised price within 4 years from the days of said agreement
e. Payment of an additional 5 per cent of the appraised price within 5 years from the date of said agreement.
f. Payment of the remaining unpaid balance of the appraised price within 6 years from the date of said agreement.

If the debtor will not enter into such agreement or consent thereto, then the law gives the farmer a five year moratorium. The provision of the law applicable reads as follows:

> "If any secured creditor of the debtor, affected thereby, shall file written objections to the manner of payments and distribution of debtor's property as herein provided for, then the court, after having set aside the debtor's exemptions as prescribed by the State law, shall stay all proceedings for a period of 5 years, during which 5 years the debtor shall retain possession of all or any of his property, under the control of the court, provided he pays a reasonable rental annually for that part of the property of which he retains possession; the first payment of such rental to be made within 6 months of the date of the order staying proceedings, such rental to be distributed among the secured and unsecured creditors, as their interests may appear, under the provisions of this act.
> "At the end of 5 years, or prior thereto, the debtor may pay into court the appraised price of the property of which he retains possession: Provided, That upon request of any lien holder on real estate the court shall cause a reappraisal of such real estate and the debtor may then pay the reappraised price, if acceptable to the ilen holder, into the court, and thereupon the court shall, by an order, turn over full possession and title of said property to the debtor and he may apply for his discharge as provided for by this act.
> "If the debtor fails to comply with the provisions of this subsection the court may order the trustee to sell the property as provided in this act."

The Act affects the contractural rights of a farmer's mortgage in two important aspects. It substitutes for the original amount of the secured debt the present value of the land as appraised; and postpones for a period of six years in the event of the purchase of the land by the farmer from the trustee, or for a period of five years in the event of the farmer's retention of possession on payment of reasonable rental, the mortgagee's right to enforce payment of the amount of the mortgage debt as changed by the appraisal.

This law is the result of one of the most spirited contests carried on during the last Congress . A nation-wide crusade has been carried on to obtain the enactment of this and other laws for the relief of the American farmer. The entire farming population of America has demanded the enactment of such laws, and have rallied ot their organizations and to their leaders in demanding such laws. Outstanding in this fight have been such men as Congressman Lemke of North Dakota, Mr. Iverson, the National President of the Farmers' Union, and Mr. Kennedy, the National Secretary of that organization, Mr. John Erp, the President of the State Branch of that organization, the Minnesota Farm Holiday association, and Mr. John Bosch, its President, and many others to numerous to mention. The judiciary committee of the House of Representatives in Congress held protracted hearings and gave a great deal of time and consideration to this bill. I was invited to attend those hearings, as the Attorney General of Minnesota, and I did attend them and gave such assistance as I could.

A bitter cinflict developed between opposing groups. Certain large investors in farm mortgages, consisting principally of certain investment companies, insurance companies, and other corporations opposed the bill upon the ground that it would take their property without due process of law and impair the obligations of their contracts by reason of the provisions of the law for the scaling down of ethir indebtedness. They claimed that the law would result in large losses of capital which they would be compelled to sustain. President Roosevelt discussed this feature of the law when he approved it and said:

> "In the actual operation of the law, I do not believe that losses of capital will greatly exceed, if they exceed at all, the losses that would be sustained if this measure were not signed.
> "On the other side of the picture, it is worth remembering that this act will stop foreclosures and prevent occasional instances of injustice to worthy borrows.
> "The mere threat of a use of this machinery will speed voluntary conciliation of debts and the refinancing program of the farm credit administration. It will prevent deficiency judgments—a form of liability which, in the judgement of many thinking men, ought to be abolished entirely."

The Frazier-Lemke amendment, on the whole is a good step forward on the road which we must travel to give relief to the American farmer. It is but partial relief at the very best; other legislation is needed and some measures must be provided for the refinancing of farm mortgages. I believe that there will be a very determined effort made during the next Congress to enact such legislation and the same probably will center about the Frazier-Lemke Farm Mortgage Refinancing Bill. The farmers must have full relief. Until that relief has been given and given in full measure, until full justice has been done to our farming population, the rest of us cannot have normal prosperity.

During the past years the farmers, as a group, have suffered a greater injustice than any other portion of our population.

Take away from the farmer his purchasing power, and the factories which produce the goods he buys must close their doors and discharge their men; the merchants who sell goods to the farmers and the city working men must look in vain for payment and face bankruptcy; the professional men who provide their respective services to the farmers and the city laborers and the merchants cannot collect their bills. Every class of our vast population is dependent on every other class. But more than all and most fundamentally are we dependent on our farming population.

Let me point out in closing that while the Frazier-Lemke bill is a step forward it is but one step. Not more thon half of our farm population can take advantrge of it. This, to be sure, is the group that is carrying the heaviest burden of debt and therefore most needs assistance. But until all of our farmers can be given a fair price for wheat they produce other sources of relief can give them temporary assistance, but never afford a final and complete relief. Therefore, I say, the Frazier-Lemke Amendment is a good step forward, but it is only one step.

WCCO has kindly given this period so that the farmers in the northwest may hear the Frazier- Lemke amendment discussed and so that they may have such information as can be given concerning it during this brief-discourse.

I thank WCCO for the courtesy of discussing this law.

Petroleum Jelly From Mine

One may perhaps be pardoned for accepting with some reservation the story of an oil well that produces pure petroleum jelly; it sounds too much like a brass mine. However, Edward H. Roble, in Mining and Metallurgy, recently reported that there is at least one such well, at Lamar, Okla. It was drilled in on January 26, 1923, at a depth of 3,710 feet, and has been producing about 350 barrels of almost pure petroleum jelly every day since. The almost solid fuel is dark green when it leaves the well, but changes to a brilliant golden yellow on contact with the air. An equally surprising phenomenon was reported a short time ago by Industrial and Engineering Chemistry—a deep oil well at Krynica, Poland, from which carbon dioxide gas issues at great pressure, shoots high in the air, solidifies, and falls to the ground in the form of carbon dioxide snow, identical with commercial "dry ice."—Literary Digest.

THE ASS IN TRAVAIL BROUGHT FORTH A GNAT

The Minnesota Democrats held a convention at St. Cloud July 17th and besides viewing the Farmer-Labor platform "with alarm" and dwelling on the accomplishments of the national administration with all the love and devotion of a young mother on her first-born, adopted a state democratic platform. And what a platform! Concern for the overburdened taxpayers and the down-trodden farmers stick out all over it like the quills of a porcupine. It fairly oozes with statesmanship. We marvel that such an oustanding instrument could be brought into the world by a mere handfull of two or three thousand democrats. (The St. Cloud Daily Times states that is all that were expected to attend.)

After having stated that they will demand strict economy in government and abolition of unnecessary commissions and bureaus, they advocate a new conservation program which would necessitate three or four new bureaus, some tax revisions which would need one or two more, and unemployment and old age pension systems requiring some more study by sundry commissions.

Getting down to real fundamentals they declare that the "old Capitol" building should "be suitably remodeled and used for state purposes." To house some of the commissions and bureaus which they want to abolish, we would surmise. The fact that the public buildings committees of the House and the Senate at the last session of the Legislature investigated the matter and found that all interior walls in the old building are "bearings walls" which makes remodeling impossible and infeasable since it would require the complete wrecking of the dome, the tower and the roof, bringing the cost far beyond the value of the property, does not enter into the question with the democrats. What matter such bagatelle was there are "principles" at stake? We might suggest that there is another "burning issue" which the democrats should have given attention and declaration in their platform. We refer to the dire need of a footbridge over Mud Creek between the John Jones and Ole Johnson farms.

But it is on the question of public ownership that the Minnesota democrats rise to their greatest height. Spurred on by the accomplishments of the national administration in the Boulder Dam, the Mississippi canalization, the Tennessee Valley development and other large projects they grasp the cow's huband by his cranial appendages and with one mighty heave declare "That all bridges and other crossings of water ways and rivers, such as toll bridges and ferries should belong to and be owned by the public thru the instrumentality of either the federal government or of the state."

The St. Cloud Times reports Mr. Regan, the democratic candidate for governor to be well satisfied with the platform. We would expect him to be. However, the elections returns will probably show that Mr. Regan is much more easily satisfied than the voters.

CAN'T SCARE THE FARMERS

(Mille Lac County Times)

It is going to be difficult for the old reactionaries to frighten the farmers and workers by shouting "Cooperative Commonwealth." The farmers, for instance, have found that the only means with which they could at all meet the conditions in this country is through cooperation. Their cooperative enterprises are the only things that have given them a decent chance to gain a competence or livelihood on the farm. The time is not so long past when attempts were made to discourage their cooperative enterprises. We can remember of state officials refusing to issue a permit for farmers to sell stock in a cooperative and the farmers went ahead and sold it anyway without a permit and established a successful cooperative enterprise. We can remember when warrants were issued for the arrest of farmers who were planning to organize a cooperative enterprise, just because they had not been familiar with the law and had not observed all of the necessary details. But they discovered the plan to upset the enterprise in time to meet the requirements of the law and their cooperative is still operating and benefitting them.

There are few farmers who have anything to do with farmers cooperative enterprises who do not know that they would not have such enterprises today if the same reactionary opposition that is opposing state cooperation had been able to stop them. So we do not believe that farmers and workers are going to be scared over the idea of a cooperative commonwealth, especially when they have such a courageous and intelligent leader as Governor Floyd B. Olson.

THE "MODERN" G. O. P.

(Farmer-Labor Leader)

The best evidence of moral decay of the Republican party of Minnesota shows in a comparison of the ideals of present-day Republicans with those of the Republican State legislature of 1878. Among outstanding acts of that body were passing of the Corporate Excess Tax law, and a bill for textbooks to be printed on contract for the state and furnished free to pupils.

That was 56 years ago. The gaunt, martyred Rail Splitter had been in his grave but 13 years. The Republican party of 1878 was still the party of Lincoln, warmed by his honesty, inspired by his ideals.

In 1934 Republicans of Minnesota try to block enforcement of the Corporate Excess Tax measure. It is the law of the state but commercial cutthroats, giving hypocritical lip service to Lincoln, defy that law, and their newspapers defame and denounce it.

In 1934 Republicans of Minnesota repudiate and brand as vicious the check placed upon the School Book Trust by their Republican fathers and grandfathers of 1878. Said the Minnesota Younger Republicans on April 2, 1934:

> The provisions of the Farmer-Labor platform, or any other platform, for state publication of textbooks, is a most serious menace to the freedom of both public and private education. It predicts curtailment of freedom of thought, of speech and of press.

(Compare that statement with Tory editorials of 101 years ago denouncing the proposal for public schools.) And the regular Republican party of Minnesota in its platform adopted Friday, April 13, 1934, said practically the same thing.

When the G. O. P. of Minnesota was clean, wholesome and reflected the will of the people its sturdy pioneers passed the very laws that are denounced by so-called Republicans of today.

Nor is the wrecking of the party confined to this state. On July 6 and 7 at Jackson, Mich., was held a celebration of the birth of the organization 80 years ago. As the high spot in that celebration, Henry P. Flettcher, Republican National chairman, assaulted Democrats of state and nation with this attack on the Democratic administration and upon the President of the United States:

> Clothed with unprecedented authority the President has delegated control of the livelihood, business and property of the individual American citizen to a vast maze of theorizing, meddling, directing, spending, lending and borrowing agencies, lettered on the Russian model.

Bankrupt in morals, without a program, and reduced to a few threadbare "names" to call those it cannot corrupt, the Republican party of Minnesota and of the United States is a warning spectacle to honest men and women. It shows what happens to an organization scuttled and betrayed by self-appointed leaders and by them sold body and soul to the camp of Special Privilege. It is truer today than ever before that progress by the people of this state must be made in spite of and over the remains of what was once a great political party.

DRUNKENESS ON THE INCREASE STATISTICS SHOW

For some years prior to the adoption of the national prohibition amendment the city of Washington had local prohibition under congressional statute. Dunkenness and the evils inseparable from drinking declined sharply immediatly upon the adoption of the measure.

After the repeal of the prohibition amendment the wet members of the congress almost franticly urged the repeal of the old prohibition statute in the interest of "true temperance." Great concern about and abhorrence of the drinking and drunkenness that prevailed in the city at that time was expressed by the opponents of prohibition in congress. The Crusaders, which was the youth division of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, sponsored a law for the city which, it claimed, would reduce these evils to a minimum. So congress repealed the old prohibition law.

The results were appalling. Even the wet papers expressed amazement and alarm. The new high records of arests for drunkenness and tis associated evils were disquieting. The arrests for drunkenness and its asfour months of 1934 show an increase of nearly 67 per cent over the same months in 1933, after the return of beer, and more than 80 per cent over dry 1932.

The tabulation is revealing:

Arrests for Dunkenness	1932 Dry	1933 Beer	1934 Repeal
January	1142	1340	1934
February	1204	1147	1546
March	1144	1371	2194
April	1424	1529	2307
Totals	4914	5387	8981

The congressmen who repealed the local prohibitory law insisted that they were acting in the interest of temperance. They were seeming to reduce the evils of drinking and drunkeness. The record shows that they applied the wrong remedy, and that conditions were greatly aggravated. Their sincerity must, of necessity, be judged largely by the promptness with which they retrace their steps and rectify their error by restoring rigid prohibition in the district.

UNCLE SAM BEHIND THE PLOW

The following digest is printed to give our readers an opportunity to read the arguments advanced by the Secretary of Agriculture in behalf of the crop curtailment program of the administration. It does not necessarily imply that we agree with the arguments advanced.

You have probably wondered why the Government shows farmers how to breed better hogs and grow more wheat and at the same time asks them to kill the hogs and plow the wheat under because we have a surplus of both. Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, clears up this mystery among others in The American Magazine for July, Mr. Wallace takes the stand as a witness for the Government and is quizzed by henry F. Pringle, counsel for a bewildered public.

It is not as odd as you might think for agriculture to curtail its output by reducing acreage. "Whenever industry cuts production it does the exact equivalent." Mr. Wallace declares. "Industry started cutting production when the depression started: throwing people out of work, making them unable to buy, and making it more necesssary for the farmer to cut production."

By the same token efficiency has as legitimate a place in agriculture as in industry. Herein lies the wisdom of destroying crops while teaching farmers improved methods of scientific agriculture. "It is common sense for us to work as efficiently as possible," the Secretary says. "To spend more hours than necessary to get a given result is silly. We need to control the total but we need to produce each crop as efficiently as we can." It is the aim of the experimental banch of the Department of agriculture to make farm production efficient;: it is the job of the administrative branch of the Department to hold production down to levels consonant with the welfare of the farmer and the country at large.

The citizen may understand this and still be puzzled to know why farmers should cut short the production of food at the very time when Americans are going hungry. The answer to this simply is that people are not going hungry because farmers failed to produce enough food. "As a matter of fact," Mr. Wallace observes, "the pigs that were killed last year and the cotton that was plowed under—much as these things go against the grain— have made it possible ofr more people to eat in the United States that if those pigs had not been killed and that cotton and not that cotton had not been plowed under. We are still producing more than enough food, not only for those who can afford to buy it, but for those on the relief rolls." Even at the height of prosperity in 1929 we lacked 200,000,000 bushels of consuming our wheat crop. Actually the more money people have the less they care for wheat. Recovery would mean that we would turn to more expensive foods.

Apart from drastic crop reduction the only way to avoid a perilous surplus of foodstuffs is to ship our farm products abroad. This, in the judgment of the Secretary, would be infinitely preferable to the present artificial method of restriction. But to ship our goods abroad we should have first to lower tariffs and admit foreign goods so that foreign countries might in turn buy our surplus farm commodities. This is obiviously the path of intelligence, but tariffs cannot be lowered too quickly, and until the adjustment between export and import is better we must continue to hold down farm production. Mr. Wallace believes that unless we can reduce our tariffs and ship surplus products abroad, we may have to retire permanently 40,000,000 to 60,000,000 acres of productive land.

Sharp inquiry into the finances of the AAA reveals that about $278,000,000 has been paid farmers in the [illegible] of acreage rentals and be[illegible] payments. Of this amount, $2[illegible],606 has already been returned to the Government—and, more will be received—through the processing taxes levied by Congress to carry on the special agriculture program. It is true that these processing taxes are ultimately paid by the consumer (the farmer, for instance, paying 8c more a pair for overalls than he otherwise would), but at least the agricultural work of the Government is paying its way and not immeasurably increasing the public debt. Moreover, reports from tax collectors, merchants and banks show that the farmer is not hoarding his newly found money but is using it to pay debts and buy necessities.

As a concrete result of the program the farmers found themselves with a 24% higher gross income in 1933 than they had in 1932—an increase from $5,143,000,000 to $6,383,000,000. In stark contrast with this notable increase are the conditions which would have prevailed without regulation of production: we should have had 17,000,000 bales of cotton which, added to the holdover from the previous year, would probably have brought the price as low as 5c a pound. Wheat, rice, and tobacco growers, and other farmers would have suffered likewise.

Obviously the plight of the farmer has been much more serious in this depression than in former ones. This is not only because he is more dependent than ever upon remote citizens who must be able to buy his products if he is to survive, but also because "he is much less self-sufficient in the old pioneer sense of the word." The Secretary denies, however, that farmers are shiftless and lack enterprise. They have risen nobly to the present gesture of the Government. Critics said it would take hundreds of thousands of inspectors to keep tabs on 10,000,000 farmers; yet the actual number engaged in administering the act is only about 4000 and but a few of these do any inspecting. The whole scheme of crop control is carried out for the most part by the farmers themselves through local production control associations. And Mr. Wallace points out that, while there are governmental checks and balances to insure straight dealings, chiseling has been negligible and the farmers have been fair.

THE ASS IN TRAVAIL BROUGHT FORTH A GNAT

The Minnesota Democrats held a convention at St. Cloud July 17th and besides viewing the Farmer-Labor platform "with alarm" and dwelling on the accomplishments of the national administration with all the love and devotion of a young mother on her first-born, adopted a state democratic platform. And what a platform! Concern for the overburdened taxpayers and the down-trodden farmers stick out all over it like the quills of a porcupine. It fairly oozes with statesmanship. We marvel that such an oustanding instrument could be brought into the world by a mere handfull of two or three thousand democrats. (The St. Cloud Daily Times states that is all that were expected to attend.)

After having stated that they will demand strict economy in government and abolition of unnecessary commissions and bureaus, they advocate a new conservation program which would necessitate three or four new bureaus, some tax revisions which would need one or two more, and unemployment and old age pension systems requiring some more study by sundry commissions.

Getting down to real fundamentals they declare that the "old Capitol" building should "be suitably remodeled and used for state purposes." To house some of the commissions and bureaus which they want to abolish, we would surmise. The fact that the public buildings committees of the House and the Senate at the last session of the Legislature investigated the matter and found that all interior walls in the old building are "bearings walls" which makes remodeling impossible and infeasable since it would require the complete wrecking of the dome, the tower and the roof, bringing the cost far beyond the value of the property, does not enter into the question with the democrats. What matter such bagatelle was there are "principles" at stake? We might suggest that there is another "burning issue" which the democrats should have given attention and declaration in their platform. We refer to the dire need of a footbridge over Mud Creek between the John Jones and Ole Johnson farms.

But it is on the question of public ownership that the Minnesota democrats rise to their greatest height. Spurred on by the accomplishments of the national administration in the Boulder Dam, the Mississippi canalization, the Tennessee Valley development and other large projects they grasp the cow's huband by his cranial appendages and with one mighty heave declare "That all bridges and other crossings of water ways and rivers, such as toll bridges and ferries should belong to and be owned by the public thru the instrumentality of either the federal government or of the state."

The St. Cloud Times reports Mr. Regan, the democratic candidate for governor to be well satisfied with the platform. We would expect him to be. However, the elections returns will probably show that Mr. Regan is much more easily satisfied than the voters.

CAN'T SCARE THE FARMERS

(Mille Lac County Times)

It is going to be difficult for the old reactionaries to frighten the farmers and workers by shouting "Cooperative Commonwealth." The farmers, for instance, have found that the only means with which they could at all meet the conditions in this country is through cooperation. Their cooperative enterprises are the only things that have given them a decent chance to gain a competence or livelihood on the farm. The time is not so long past when attempts were made to discourage their cooperative enterprises. We can remember of state officials refusing to issue a permit for farmers to sell stock in a cooperative and the farmers went ahead and sold it anyway without a permit and established a successful cooperative enterprise. We can remember when warrants were issued for the arrest of farmers who were planning to organize a cooperative enterprise, just because they had not been familiar with the law and had not observed all of the necessary details. But they discovered the plan to upset the enterprise in time to meet the requirements of the law and their cooperative is still operating and benefitting them.

There are few farmers who have anything to do with farmers cooperative enterprises who do not know that they would not have such enterprises today if the same reactionary opposition that is opposing state cooperation had been able to stop them. So we do not believe that farmers and workers are going to be scared over the idea of a cooperative commonwealth, especially when they have such a courageous and intelligent leader as Governor Floyd B. Olson.

THE "MODERN" G. O. P.

(Farmer-Labor Leader)

The best evidence of moral decay of the Republican party of Minnesota shows in a comparison of the ideals of present-day Republicans with those of the Republican State legislature of 1878. Among outstanding acts of that body were passing of the Corporate Excess Tax law, and a bill for textbooks to be printed on contract for the state and furnished free to pupils.

That was 56 years ago. The gaunt, martyred Rail Splitter had been in his grave but 13 years. The Republican party of 1878 was still the party of Lincoln, warmed by his honesty, inspired by his ideals.

In 1934 Republicans of Minnesota try to block enforcement of the Corporate Excess Tax measure. It is the law of the state but commercial cutthroats, giving hypocritical lip service to Lincoln, defy that law, and their newspapers defame and denounce it.

In 1934 Republicans of Minnesota repudiate and brand as vicious the check placed upon the School Book Trust by their Republican fathers and grandfathers of 1878. Said the Minnesota Younger Republicans on April 2, 1934:

> The provisions of the Farmer-Labor platform, or any other platform, for state publication of textbooks, is a most serious menace to the freedom of both public and private education. It predicts curtailment of freedom of thought, of speech and of press.

(Compare that statement with Tory editorials of 101 years ago denouncing the proposal for public schools.) And the regular Republican party of Minnesota in its platform adopted Friday, April 13, 1934, said practically the same thing.

When the G. O. P. of Minnesota was clean, wholesome and reflected the will of the people its sturdy pioneers passed the very laws that are denounced by so-called Republicans of today.

Nor is the wrecking of the party confined to this state. On July 6 and 7 at Jackson, Mich., was held a celebration of the birth of the organization 80 years ago. As the high spot in that celebration, Henry P. Flettcher, Republican National chairman, assaulted Democrats of state and nation with this attack on the Democratic administration and upon the President of the United States:

> Clothed with unprecedented authority the President has delegated control of the livelihood, business and property of the individual American citizen to a vast maze of theorizing, meddling, directing, spending, lending and borrowing agencies, lettered on the Russian model.

Bankrupt in morals, without a program, and reduced to a few threadbare "names" to call those it cannot corrupt, the Republican party of Minnesota and of the United States is a warning spectacle to honest men and women. It shows what happens to an organization [illegible] by self-appointed leaders and by them sold body and soul to the camp of Special Privilege. It is truer today than ever before that progress by the people of this state must be made in spite of and over the remains of what was once a great political party.

DRUNKENESS ON THE INCREASE STATISTICS SHOW

For some years prior to the adoption of the national prohibition amendment the city of Washington had local prohibition under congressional statute. Dunkenness and the evils inseparable from drinking declired sharply immediatly upon the adoption of the measure.

After the repeal of the prohibition amendment the wet members of the congress almost franticly urged the repeal of the old prohibition statute in the interest of "true temperance." Great concern about and abhorrence of the drinking and drunkenness that prevailed in the city at that time was expressed by the opponents of prohibition in congress. The Crusaders, which was the youth division of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, sponsored a law for the city which, it claimed, would reduce these evils to a minimum. So congress repealed the old prohibition law.

The results were appalling. Even the wet papers expressed amazement and alarm. The new high records of arests for drunkenness and tis associated evils were disquieting. The arrests for drunkenness and its as- four months of 1934 show an increase of nearly 67 per cent over the same months in 1933, after the return of beer, and more than 80 per cent over dry 1932.

The tabulation is revealing:

Arrests for Dunkenness	1932 Dry	1933 Beer	1934 Repeal
January	1142	1340	1934
February	1204	1147	1546
March	1144	1371	2194
April	1424	1529	2307
Totals	4914	5387	8981

The congressmen who repealed the local prohibitory law insisted that they were acting in the interest of temperance. They were seeming to reduce the evils of drinking and drunkeness. The record shows that they applied the wrong remedy, and that conditions were greatly aggravated. Their sincerity must, of necessity, be judged largely by the promptness with which they retrace their steps and rectify their error by restoring rigid prohibition in the district.

Also for payment of $8,000.00 to School District for back apportionment due them by reason of the penalties on Delinquent Taxes for year 1922 to 1928 being distributed to County Revenue Fund instead of 60 percent to School Districts. Of the foregoing budget $13,500.00 is to be used in payment of interest on old debts.

These Little Pigs Went to Market, And Net 3c Each

Cortland, Ill.,—Mrs. A. Mosback, struggling to make a living from the farm her husband left her, wondered today if it wouldn't have been just as well if her 20 little pigs had stayed at home.

The little pigs went to market and she receive a check for 68 cents, about 3 cents apiece.

The pigs sold at the height of the drouth when the hog market was being flooded, actually sold for $12.22 at the rate of 75 cents a hundredweight.

The packing company had to pay the government $2.25 a hundred pounds, three times what it allowed Mrs. Mosback.

The stockyards in Chicago took $2.80 for use of its pens, scales and runways and 55 cents for the corn the pigs ate.

An insurance company collected $1.45 to insure them against injury, and fire insurance and truckers got $3.67.

The commission house claimed $3 for the sale and the meat board got 7 cents.

The rest—68 cents—went to Mrs. Mosback.

MARVIN BENSON RETAINS TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

Defending City Champion Wins Hardfought Games to Cinch Medal

The final match of the city men's singles tennis tournament was played on Wednesday evening with Marvin Benson winning and retaining the city championship.

A strong placement game was fought out between opponents in the final match, Marvin Benson and Lincoln Arnold the runner-up, both playing a steady, heady game. The two men were conceded to be the two most consistent entered in the tournament and very closely matched. Benson however, had an edge and won by the scores: 6-4; 7-9; 6-3. A small gold medal was presented as a trophy.

Splendid tennis was evident in the semi-finals, in which Benson defeated Tom Rowan 6-3; 8-6, and Lincoln Arnold won from George Aanstad 6-2; 6-3.

Much heretofore unknown local tennis talent has become evident thru this tournament and manager Arthur Johnson states that our players could easily hold their own in inter-city games. He announces that there may be a possibility of such games between surrounding towns being arranged. A men's doubles tennis tournament is contemplated.

HIGHWAY WORK EMPLOYS 18,000

State Road Work Hits Peak Season, Commission of Highway Says.

Employment is now being provided for approximately 18,000 men by the Minnesota highway department, according to N. W. Elsberg, commissioner.

25,000 ATTEND THE RITES FOR MINNEAPOLIS STRIKE VICTIM; WAS WAR VETERAN

Laid to rest in a casket draped with American flags, the body of Henry Ness, 40 year-old Minneapolis truck driver shot in the back and killed during a police attack on unarmed strikers Friday, July 20, was lowered to its grave on Tuesday,July 24, in the presence of 25,000 who attended the largest funeral ever held in Minneapolis. Lieut. Claude E. Ireland, national chaplain of the Veterans of Foreign wars, officiated.

Branded Him "Communist"

Ness, father of four children, citizen of Minneapolis, an overseas veteran honorably discharged from his country's service, had been branded a "communist" by newspaper seeking to inflame public sentiment against strikers. Previous to the funeral a guard of honor was detailed to patrol the location in Minneapolis where his murder took place. A squad of U. S. regulars from Fort Snelling fired the military three volleys above his grave.

ILLINOIS TOWN BARS SOCIALIST SPEAKERS

WEST FRANKFORT, ILL.—Douglas B. Anderson, Socialist candidate for Congress, and William Cox, candidate for state representative, were denied the privileges of free speech here Friday by Chief of Police Nipper.

The two had previously spoken in Carterville, Herrin, Marion, Buckner, DuQuoin, Ziegler and Johnson, all in Franklin county.

After conferrisg with the sheriff Browning Robinson, who agreed to talk with the police chief here, the two announced they would return to West Frankfort later to speak.

Anderson, who is chairman of the Socialist party in Illinois, gained nation-wide publicity recently when he and Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for prsident in 1928, were denied the right to speak in Taylorville.

Chief Nipper evaded a direct answer when the two asked him if Republicans and Democrats were to be allowed to speak before the fall campaign. They represented the third largest political represented the third largest political party in the United States, they said. They were warned not to speak when they inquired about the place in which political speeches were usually held.

Finally Anderson said. "Suppose we go and see the mayor about this."

"You can see the mayor and the state's tatorney and the sheriff and if they give you a permit, I'll stay at home, but you see the undertaker before the meeting because you'll never make no more speeches."

Anderson—"What if I get a permit from the attorney general?"

Chief Nipper—"I don't care if you get permits from 25 attorney generals You won't speak here and that's al' I've got to say."

THE DRY TIDE SWEEPS ON

Disillusioned by the indescribable evils of repeal, the newspapers of the nation in increasing numbers, are against the conditions that have followed beer and regulation. The Republican-Tribune of Charlotte, Mich, in a recent editorial emphatically and effectively expresses the changed sentisentiments of that publication.

"We were one of the men," reads the editorial. "who honestly beleived that controlled liquor would be preferable to a decade of discouraging prohibition. We were wrong. The control of the sale of beer, wine and liquor does not seem to be as easy as many of the advocates of repeal of the 18th Amendment hoped t would be. The boast that the saloon would not return has proved to be a dead letter.

In many respects the old saloon was a paragon of virtue compared to the modern beergarden. At any rate, young girls are not tolerated in the old saloon. Today they furnish a definite percentage of the beer garden patronage. The writer from this time henceforth is publicly and politically dry and shall at every opportunity vote against the liquor traffic. We are convinced after a year's trial in Michigan, that you can't by a 'liberal' when it comes to the liquor business. There is no middle ground. We're 'dry' in box-car type from now on."

The tide against beer and regulation is rising to flood. This is proven by the vigorous dry statements of many prominent people who were strong repealists: by the dry votes of communities which a year ago overwhelmingly supported repeal; by the dry majorities in North Dakota and Mississippi, and such strong editorial declarations as that quoted above.

Antelope Is Speedy

The antelope delights in running. Speedier than even the greyhound, it has few enemies to fear on the open range. However, as its safety lies chiefly in its speed rather than its combativeness, the antelope takes flight at the slightest provocation. It takes no chances. It is away at the first threat of danger. The coyote, in some areas the golden eagle, [illegible] ways in winter the deep snow, are the major enemies of the antelope.

MINNESOTA DIAMOND JUBILEE STATE FAIR BOOKS EXCELLENT FEATURES FOR THE EXPOSITION

Approval of a prize list totaling more than $70,000, arranging of special educational exhibits, and booking of two outstanding entertainment features for Minnesota's Diamond Jubilee State Fair, September 1 to 8, were announced today by Raymond A. Lee, Secretary.

The 1934 exposition, climaxing 75 years of agricultural and industrial progress, will be 100 times bigger than the first fair staged at Fort Snelling. Scattered displays of grains and grasses and a few enteries marked the first fair. This year's mammoth Exposition will feature 6,000 head of cattle, horses, sheep and swine; bounteous displays of farm crops, and demonstrations of 1,300 boys and girls enrolled in club work; the handiwork of women, the 80 acre display of moving machinery, and a thousand and one other educational displays.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture will join with Minnesota in celebrating its Diamond Jubilee. Word has been received from Washington that 15 booth exhibits, requiring more than 50,000 square feet, will be prepared especally for Minnesota. Joseph Hiscox is working out the details for the display to be announced later.

The entertainment features definitely booked are the $10,000 Horse Show to be staged five nights in the Hippodrome and the evening grandstand spectacle, "Diamond Jubilee," to be produced especially to commemorate the 75th anniversary the founding of the "World's Greatest state fair."

"The 1934 State Fair, like its many predecessors, will serve to introduce many new features to the citizens to the Northwest," said Mr. Lee. "At the first State Fair a combined reaper and mower was shown for the first time. It cut grass and hazel brush on the race track. Great was the astonishment and admiration. And again this year the latest developments in farm machinery, household equipment and labor-saving devices will be displayed for inspection and examination by the throngs who visit the Jubilee Exposition."

POLIO EPIDEMIC UNLIKELY IN MINNESOTA SAYS DOCTOR

The epidemic of Infantile Paralysis which has overtaken California is not likely to affect Minnesota according to a statement on the subject issued by the Minnesota State Medical Association today.

Only one authenticated case of the disease was reported by the State Department of Health in June. Although August and September are usually the peak months for the disease in this part of the country, the low figure for June is regarded as a pretty good sign that this will not be an epidemic year in Minnesota.

There are sure to be a few cases, however, according to the bulletin and the physicians advise watchfulness in case of any acute illness, particularly if it is accompanied by headache or a stiff neck.

The child of adult, as the case may be, should be put to bed promptly and kept there until the possibility that it is really serious has been entirely ruled out.

Many of the crippling conditions left by infantile paralysis could have been avoided, according to medical opinion, if the child had been kept quiet in bed from the start of his illness.

Infantile paralysis, or "polio," like encephalitis, the dreaded "sleeping sickness," is presumably spread chiefly by person-to-person contact thru one series of cases in Minnesota, the possibility that contamination raw milk, carried the disease was not ruled out.

Scrupulous cleanliness in food and food handling, careful and frequent washing of hands, and keeping from people who are sick are laid in the bulletin as good rules to follow for the avoidance of all of the serious summer diseases including infantile paralysis.

Cat Has Seven Lives Left

Motspur Park, England, boasts a cat which has only seven lives. It lost one by touching the live rail while trying to cross an electric railway track. The shock hurled her, half paralyzed and one life gone, to an embankment several feet away. Two Alastian dogs seized her and began a tug of war, leaving only seven lives. A man rescued her, and she was taken, apparently dying, to a cat hospital. A few days later she surprised attendants by recovering and becoming the mother of three healthy kittens.

Antelope Is Speedy

The antelope delights in running. Speedier than even the greyhound, it has few enemies to fear on the open range. However, as its safety lies chiefly in its speed rather than its combativeness, the antelope takes flight at the slightest provocation. It takes no chances. It is away at the first threat of danger. The coyote, in some areas the golden eagle [illegible] ways in winter the deep snow, are the major enemies of the antelope.

The 1934 exposition, climaxing 75 years of agricultural and industrial progress, will be 100 times bigger than the first fair staged at Fort Snelling. This year's mammoth Exposition will feature 6,000 head of cattle, horses, sheep and swine; bounteous displays of farm crops, and demonstrations of 1,300 boys and girls enrolled in club work; the handiwork of women, the 80 acre display of moving machinery, and a thousand and one other educational displays.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture will join with Minnesota in celebrating its Diamond Jubilee. Word has been received from Washington that 15 booth exhibits, requiring more than 50,000 square feet, will be prepared especally for Minnesota. Joseph Hiscox is working out the details for the display to be announced later.

The entertainment features definitely booked are the $10,000 Horse Show to be staged five nights in the Hippodrome and the evening grandstand spectacle, "Diamond Jubilee," to be produced especially to commemorate the 75th annoversary the founding of the "World's Greatest state fair."

"The 1934 State Fair, like its many predecessors, will serve to introduce many new features to the citizens to the Northwest," said Mr. Lee. "At the first State Fair a combined reaper and mower was shown for the first time. It cut grass and hazel brush on the race track. Great was the astonishment and admiration. And again this year the latest developments in farm machinery, household equipment and labor-saving devices will be displayed for inspection and examination by the throngs who visit the Jubilee Exposition."

POLIO EPIDEMIC UNLIKELY IN MINNESOTA SAYS DOCTOR

The epidemic of Infantile Paralysis which has overtaken California is not likely to affect Minnesota according to a statement on the subject issued by the Minnesota State Medical Association today.

Only one authenticated case of the disease was reported by the State Department of Health in June. Although August and September are usually the peak months for the disease in this part of the country, the low figure for June is regarded as a pretty good sign that this will not be an epidemic year in Minnesota.

There are sure to be a few cases, however, according to the bulletin and the physicians advise watchfulness in case of any acute illness, particularly if it is accompanied by headache or a stiff neck.

The child of adult, as the case may be, should be put to bed promptly and kept there until the possibility that it is really serious has been entirely ruled out.

Many of the crippling conditions left by infantile paralysis could have been avoided, according to medical opinion, if the child had been kept quiet in bed from the start of his illness.

Infantile paralysis, or "polio," like encephalitis, the dreaded "sleeping sickness," is presumably spread chiefly by person-to-person contact thru one series of cases in Minnesota, the possibility that contamination raw milk, carried the disease was not ruled out.

Scrupulous cleanliness in food and food handling, careful and frequent washing of hands, and keeping from people who are sick are laid in the bulletin as good rules to follow for the avoidance of all of the serious summer diseases including infantile paralysis.

Cat Has Seven Lives Left

Motspur Park, England, boasts a cat which has only seven lives. It lost one by touching the live rail while trying to cross an electric railway track. The shock hurled her, half paralyzed and one life gone, to an embankment several feet away. Two Alastian dogs seized her and began a tug of war, leaving only seven lives. A man rescued her, and she was taken, apparently dying, to a cat hospital. A few days inter she surprised attendants by recovering and becoming the mother of three healthy kittens.

HOW 'A GREAT FINANCIAL EMPIRE' WAS BUILT

Synopsis of Testimony Developed in the Hearings On The Northwest Bancorporation

Conducted by, The Securities Division of the Department of Commerce
Compiled by The Independent Bankers' Association. Sauk Centre, Minn

During the year 1929 the daily press of the twin cities made announcement as "news items" of "A New Financial Empire Being Brought to the Northwest." Front page publicity and a barrage of "news items" on "The Advantages" of the new "Group Banking Plan," upon which this "Financial Empire" was to be founded, planted in the minds of the people of Minnesota and Northwestern states where this group of men were to rule the new Empire, a belief in the money making possibilities which would accure to those who became financially interested in the venture.

The publicity thus obtained as it did when the country was in the throes of an orgy of speculation paved the way for the promotion, sale and distribution of securities in the form of common stock of Northwest Bancorporation in an amount greater than any previous distribution of securities in the Northwest with the possible excepton of the United States Liberty Loan, floated during the war fever. The total amount sold and exchanged exceeded one million six hundred thousand shares of the par value of over eighty million dollars! More than eighteen thousand people became stockholders. Of this number in excess of eleven thousand resided in the state of Minnesota. The average holding of these stockholders was 93 shares each. based on these figures taken from the company's files and records, the eleven thousand residents of Minnesota who became stockholders contributed money or other assets to the extent of approximately fifty million dollars. This is an average investment of seventeen dollars for each man, woman and child in the state of Mnnesota, or putting it another way for an average family of four it would mean that the average investment per family in the state of Minnesota was sixty-eight dollars.

Governor Orders Investigation

Honorable Floyd B. Olson, governor of the state of Minnesota, had heard rumors of the manner in which the stock had been sold to Minnesota residents and had made a careful survey of the situation, finally deciding, that certain features of the law regulating the sale of securities shoud be amended before definite action was taken. Accordingly, amendment to the exsisting law were drawn and presented to the legislature, which was then in session. These amendments gave additional power to the Securities Division of the Department of Commerce in connection with possible investigations.

Before the law was passed, however Governor Olson became convinced that the facts presented to him required immediate action, and ordered a thorough investigation into all the facts connected with the sale of the company's stock within the state of Minnesota. To conduct and carry on the investigation, he appointed W. E. G. Watson, a practicing attorney of Mineapolis, Minnesota.

Governor Olsons' actions were apparently contrary to the best traditions of the "New Empire." Who had ever heard of a Governor investigating an Emperor and his cohorts? The halo of virtue that surrounded the heads of these men was in and itself sufficient to prove innocence to their opinion. Had they not for years basked in the sunshine of the slogan "Consult your bankers before investing?" Not only had the public followed this slogan, but more, the investment was one which they, the big chain bankers, had originated. This was sacrilege! It should be immediately stopped.

Committees waited on the governor. The error of his ways was pointed out, first quietly then with much vigor. The confidence of the people in these individuals and their institutions was being undermined, he was told. Governor Olson was not convinced, however, that confidence in these individuals was essential to the welfare of the state, especially if they had done anything wrong.

Banks Want To Choose Investigators

A new line of attack developed and a list of "high-class attorneys" was submitted to Governor Olson from amongst whom he might select any one to conduct the investigation. If the governor would do this, they, the bankers, were quite willing to be investigated. Even this brilliant tho't, however, brought no paens of praise from the administrative head of the state. and the order for investigation and order for investigation and for the same investigator remained in force.

One almost becomes convinced that in the building of a New Empire things happen in the same manner that they do in fairy stories, because at this juncture a srange coincidence occured.

The Appropriation Committee of the House of Representatives, of which one Albert Pfaender, of New Ulm, was chairman, suddenly held a meeting at which about six of the 37 members were present, and decided that the Securities Division, which is the body that has authority to investigate fraudulent stock sales, had completed its period of usefulness to the state. These six members voted no appropriation for securities Commission for the coming bi-ennium the report was supported by Albert Pfaender of New Ulm, R. W. Hitchock of Hibbing, Ray Quinlivan of St. Cloud, and others. If the commission had no funds, it was self-evident there would be no investigation of the Northwest Bancorporation.

Governor Olson, however, was not to be thus thwarted. The report of the appropriations' committee of the house was amended and the amend ment passed. Fate, however, was not so kind to the amendments which had been introduced strengthening the securities law. Before this measure reached a final vote in the senate, the last day of the session had arrived.

Rockne Concerned About Amendments

Senator A. J. Rockne, of Zumbrota, Minn., and one Charles R. Fowler, attorney, whose firm appeared later in the investigation of the Northwest Bancorporation as counsel, and whose firm is also legal adviser to the Minnesota Bankers' Association (not the Independent Bankers' Association). became much exercised as to certain features of the proposed amendments to the law, and it was not until the closing hours of the session that the law was passed and then only after certain amendments to it were first adopted.

Mr. Watson applied to and obtained from Honorable Elmer A. Benson, then securities commissioner of the state of Minnesota and the present commissioner of banks and chairman of the department of commerce of state of Minnesota, for authority to conduct the investigation under the provisions of the State Blue Sky Law (a law designed to prevent the fraudulent sale of securities within the state). Commissioner Benson gave the full cooperation of his department and assigned Kenneth C. Hay craft, chief investigation of his department, to assist Mr. Watson in the investigation.

In April, 1933, demand was made upon E. W. Decker, chairman of the board of directors of Northwest Bancorporation, and J. Cameron Thomson, general manager, for permission to examine the company's books, files and records. A few books of minor importance were produced, but the company refused to permit a general examination of its affairs in connection with the sale of its stock.

Investigation by Mr. Watson and Mr. Haycraft continued along other lines and on November 21, 1933, (during this period of time Honorable S. Paul Skahen had been appointed commissioner of securities to succeed E. A. Benson, who had become commissioner of banks) a formal order prepared by Mr. Watson, Counsel for the department, was authorized by Commissioners Elmer A. Benson, Commissioner of banks, G. W. Brown, commissioner of insurance, and S. Paul Skahen, commissioner of securities, directing and ordering the Northwest Bankcorporation to submit its books, records and papers for examination. This order was based upon information that had been obtained during the summer of 1933.

RATTLING OUR FAMILY SKELETONS

The Red Lake Falls Gazette says in its issue of the 26th that"——Solberg has been in bad with the state administration and in order to shelve him, he was endorsed for the nomination for secretary of state——If the miraculous should happen and Solberg should win, the administration will wish they had left him alone as Lieutenant Governor,—"

Ah! the perspicuity of these republican editors. How rich they must be in the knowledge of the double cross; how broad their experience in the gentle art of political duplicity. No sooner have we made what we think is a smart political move than their lightning-quick intellect sees right to the heart of the whole ghastly plot, and with brutal frankness they subject our conspiracy to pitiless publicity, holding our musty skeletons up for all the world to behold and abhor.

Of course our methods in the Solberg deal were crude and amateurish, we should have known that when we take a man out of the Lieutenant Governor's chair where he wields the power of the mighty gavel, sans vote voice and appointive powers, and endorse him for an office which carries with it only the routine work of taking care of the state motor registration, sitting as a member of the state executive council and other sundry and pusillanimous duties of the Secretary of State, we gave ourselves away. If that was not enough, then the fact that we take him out of a job that pays the munificent salary of $2000 per term and endorse him for an office that pays only a measly $5.700 per year, certainly is a clinching argument that we are trying to shelve him.

Of course there is the possibility that he may be elected. Perish the thought! Remote as the possibility is, we are taking no chances on that. Two hundred or more farmer-labor speakers will tour the state urging his election, and if that doesn't defeat him, we might get the governor to say a few words in his behalf at some time or other. That aught to finish him.

Anyway it's a bad mess all around now. But we are still inclined to believe that except for the marvelous insight and analytical mind of the editor of the Gazette, we might have got away with it.

WHEN THE PROFIT IS ELIMINATED IT IS POSSIBLE TO GET TOGETHER

With insurections, blood baths, plots and counterplots rending the United States as well as Europe asunder, and war clouds hanging so ominously over the civilized world, it must become more and more apparent to the human race that there is something wrong in the makeup of our society. Certainly one would not wish to believe that the white race is deliberately committing suicide. Yet it cannot be denied that such is the trend, whether it be deliberate or not.

It seems to us, that if we will give serious thought to the situation that civilization finds itself in, we must come to the conclusion that our trouble is not one of hatreds and jealousies among the peoples, but rather a giant struggle between powerful armament, financial and industrial groups, for the upper hand in markets that are fast dwindling away thru the avarice of these same groups. They are in a twofold struggle; first against each other, and second against an outraged populace, driven to desperation and insurection by the exploitation of these powerful groups. So far as "Rugged Individualism" as a tenable philosophy of human conduct is concerned, it can not continue to exist. It is on its way out and it may be that the present unrest is it's deaththroes. For Rugged Individualism is the philosophy of exploitation, and knows no bounds. It kills it's victims. Either the peoples will perish from exploitation, and the exploiters with them from sheer inability to find anyone or anything further to prey upon,or the people will thru mass action, sane, and rational or otherwise rid themselves of their exploiters. We believe that it can be done in a sane manner and in a legal manner thru cooperation. It is therefore quite encouraging at this time when financial empires and huge industrial enterprises are locked in a death struggle with labor; when nation is poiced against nation, ready to fly at each other's throat that there is one bright spot in the whole picture. That is the cooperatives. Cooperatives have no labor troubles; cooperatives assure the producers of all there is to be gotten from dwindling and unfriendly markets. Made unfriendly by the greed of rugged individualism.

One great international cooperative stands as a flaming beacon, to prove that even nations can get together in sane, peaceful action for mutual benefit if profit is eliminated. We refer to the Universal Postal Union, the story of which will be found in the "Liberal Digest" in an adjoining column. The story of the Universal Postal Union should convince the most fatalistic rugged individualist that sane cooperation between nations is possible if armament rings, tariff walls and secret diplomacy is eliminated. In other words, if the profit derived from mass murder and exploitation is taken away, the people of the earth may yet live as an Almighty Creator intended, in comfort, enjoying the fruits of the bountiful earth and at peace with each other and with their Maker.

ANOTHER MAN WITH AN UNNECESSARY PAIN IN THE NECK

Jim Dalglish, a contributor to the St. Paul Daily News' "Knocks and Boosts" column, has a terrible pain in the neck because the Minnesota state prison is selling twine and machinery at a loss. He bewails the fact(?) that the taxpayers must pay this loss.

This is another instance of someone crying before he is hurt. The taxpayers do not have to stand the loss sustained by the prison in the sale of its products. The prison has been self-sustaining for a great many years, and has not only been self-sustaining, but has built up a surplus of well over a million dollars in years past from which the loss is being paid the last two years when it has operated at a loss. This surplus has been built up by the farmers who have bought Minnesota prison-made twine and machinery. They have paid the profit which made the piling up of this surplus possible. At this time when the farmers are in such dire circumstances as they are, it seems that it is only the part of a just return to the patrons if this surplus is returned to the farmers, in the only way it can be returned, thru lower prices on twine and machinery.

We are not friendly to prison labor in any form. But inasmuch as we must have it, we know of no better method of solving the problem than is being used in Minnesota. We heard a wag say the other day that the only way an honest man can get a job is to commit a crime and go to prison.

OUR CRAZY ECONOMIC SYSTEM

(Labor)

The wheat crop of the Middle West has been shrinking under hot suns and drying winds at the rate of more than a million bushels a day for nearly three weeks. The greatest single food resource of a land where millions of people have not enough, food is being burned and blown away. And in the Chicago wheat pit, trading booms, prices rise, and word is passed that nature has solved the farm problem.

This is the kind of social economics that Alice must have found on the other side of the looking glass; inside out, upside down and hindside afore.

How long will mankind continue to wait on natural calamity or civic explosion to remedy conditions which any civilized society should be able to remedy or prevent?

The promise that man shall have dominion over the earth will come true when man learns to use his powers for the common good.

HONESTY OF THE FARMER

St. Paul Daily News

President Roosevelt, signing the Frazier-Lemke bill to avert farm forclosures, said:

I have sufficient faith in the honesty of the overwhelming majority of farmers to believe that they will not evade the payment of just debts."

The President's judgment is given substantial support in a statement just issued by W. I. Meyers, governor of the farm credit administration. Says Mr. Meyers:

"More than 86 per cent of the installments on land bank commissioner loans, which generally have been made to the most heavily indebted farmers, which matured prior to June 1 were paid on or before they were due. Of those which are delinquent, two-thirds are for less than 30 days.

"This shows that even the most heavily indebted farmers are acting in the highest good faith."

You cannot play with the skunk without getting all skunked up, nor can you turn a weasel loose in your chicken house without getting your little chickens all weaseled up, nor can you send your children to a wet church or wet club or wet anything else without getting them halter-wise to whisky. On your death bed it is too late to recall that you read this somewhere.

This story went the rounds thirty-five years ago. "A miner stopped in the butcher shop Saturday night and saw a saloon keeper buy a $2.50 roast, while he had to get along with some liver. He went home and threw the liver on the table and shouted "NO MORE LIVER." His frightened wife supposed he meant they would henceforth not be able to even get liver for their Sunday dinner. The miner formed a local union among the miners of that town and agreed to buy no more liver for 90 days. Next Saturday the miners bought roast beef, and the saloon man got a chunk of liver. Formerly the miners spent their earnings for whisky.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST CO-OPERATIVE

(A review of Francis Rufus Bellamy's 'When you Write Abroad.')

When you send a letter to a foreign country you take part in what is probably the greatest co-operative in the world and incidently in the most civilized activity of your lifetime. A german, Heinrich von Stephan is responsible.

Stephan was Director of the Posts of the North German Confederation, and when he took his job in 1866, sending letters to foreign countries resembled playing flamingo croquet in Alice in Wonderland, it was impossible to ascertain the rules. Letters going abroad might take any of to a dozen or more routes all of which probably imposed widely varying charges. Six routes to Australia required postage that varied from a few cent up to a dollar.

Stephan called an international conference to consider his proposals. The congress met in 1874, in Berne, Switzerland and at the end of 24 days had adopted every one of his proposals. The Universal Postal Union came into being as a result of the most amazing one-man international agreement ever achieved. Today, the same basic agreement which Stephan wrote for Europe and the United States serves every country in the world.

Now, wherever you may happen to be, you can address a letter to any foreign country and be sure that it will receive the same courteous treatment and care that was formerly accorded to the epistles of Caeser. The proceedure is th same everywhere affix a five cents stamp, or its eqivalent, blue in color. (The only exception concerns the three rate between the Americas and Spain explained later.) Who gets the five cents? Without exception the office where you buy the stamp. The transaction is not recorded. Every nation delivers free and uncounted within its own borders all the mail received direct from other country.

No matter where your letter is addressed to, there is a directory showing the location of every one of the world's 265,000 post offices; and another bulky volume prescribes exactly the route, by train and steamer, to each of them. Tho your letter may pass thru the postal service of a dozen countries, it is handled unquestionably by each and passed on swiftly to its destination.

Only once every three years does the subject of money enter into this cooprative paradise. It happens then because of the necessity of mail from from one country into another passing through a third country. This is not strictly mutual service and therefore to compensate the third nation for handling the mail "in transit" money must change hands. Four specified weeks are set aside every three years during which time all mail passing thru it to another country.

This checking is done by sender, forwarder and receiver. The record of these transactions are forwarded to the Postal Unions central office at Berne.

After the computations are all in, the annual charges are fixed by the Berne office. Four weeks the statistics period—multiplied by thirteen gives the annual charge which each country must pay during the next three years to every other country that handles its transit mail. Everything is computed in gold francs is computed in gold francs and weighing by the metric system. French is the official language.

The last annual international figures showed Germany as the biggest debtor all around: 1,600,000 gold franks. Her foreign mail goes thru many countries and on many foreign steamship lines. France was the biggest creditor: nearly 2,000,000 gold francs. She carried more transit mail for the rest of the world than the world carried for her in the same period. Other countries paid us around $800,000 for our part of the work.

As a result of the uniform five cent stamp, all the people of the world exchange a billion and a half first class letters every year. Cheaply and without red tape.

One thing is noteworthy—the industrially developed countries send much more mail— counting printed matter— than they get. The undeveloped lands and colonies get more than they send.

The Berne office hos been in existence over 50 years. Its cost is around $100,000 per year, of which we pay about $2,000. Eight Postal Congresses have been held during these fifty odd years. The present colors of our one, two and five cent stamps are the outcome of the Washington conference in 1897 when these colors were made uniform in every country in the world. Other lesser agreements have been made within the Union, one of which is the signing of the Pan-American and Americo-Spanish agreements between the United States, the countries of the Western Hemisphere and Spain so that the domestic rate now obtains on this whole continent and transit charges are abolished. There is no statistical period between the two Americas and Spain.

Except in the airmail service, where accounts are kept on a business basis no money changes hands at all. Letters are free as birds. Next time you write a letter to Latin America, remember that. The abolishment of transit charges came about thru the complaint of Argentina. No country lies beyond her— except the South Pole— and Argentina delivers twice as much mail for us as we deliver for her.

The Universal Postal Union is mankind's first complete success in international co-operation. Stephan died in 1896, but the human race appears considerable less crazy because he once lived.

Editor of the Forum:

Many do not believe in deathbed confessions, as such conversions come too late to have any influence on a person's own life.

If such a person is sincere, he will regret that he remained blind so long.

I am not afraid that we will have countless deathbed conversions, politically speaking, as it will require clear insight and deep thinking in order to choose correctly between remaining "ragged" individuals serving "rugged individualism", and protecting ourselves in a governmental commonwealth of true democracy. The farmer-labor platform has made it clear that if our people don't fall for the shrewd propaganda of the "rugged individualists" there should be no excuse for a deathbed conversion by ragged individuals. Why should we not be more satisfied with a full share of what we produce rather than a very scant share that the "rugged individualists" grant us?

Farmer-Labor Press Service

by Senator Henry G. Teigan

The truck drivers strike in Minneapolis is at this writing still in progress. No settlement of the strike has yet been arrived at notwithstanding the efforts of the federal conciliators and of Governor Floyd B. Olson to bring about such settlement.

To begin with, it must be apparent to all that the truck drivers did not strike merely because they wanted to stir up trouble for the "bosses." It was not merely a principle that was involved but an economic issue. The truck men wanted an increase in wages and also desired to establish their right to bargain collectively with the employers.

Several weeks ago when the strike was called a temporary agreement was entered into by the employers and employees. It was agreed to by the employers that the truck drivers should be permitted to select their own representatives to meet with representatives of the employers in future psidutes. In other words, the workers under the agreement entered into would have the right to be represented through the union and its officials if they so desired.

Employers Object

The employers, however, when the show-down came, declined to live up to the agreement. As a result another strike was called. Immediately thereafter federal conciliators, or mediators, appeared upon the scene. These federal representatives are Rev. J. Haas and E. H. Dunnigan. Both of these men have had a wide experience in matters this sort, and it should be taken for granted that they are without bias their efforts to conciliate the contending parties.

Father Haas and Mr. Dunnigan made a proposal of settlement on the following basis: a 42½c per hour for helpers and inside workers, and a 52½c per hour scale for truck drivers. This proposal of settlement was approved by the union membership by a vote of 1,866 to 147. The employers, on the other hand, rejected the proposal.

Gov. Olson Speaks

In a radio address, Monday evening, Governor Floyd B. Olson reviewed the situation and pointed out that the present difficulty now rests with the employers who objected to dealing with the "present leadership of Union 547." This objection on the part of the truck owners cannot be accepted as being justified inasmuch as the membership of the union itself had voted upon the proposed agreement of the federal mediators. In other words, decision on the part of the employees did not rest with the "leadership" in the union but with the employees theselves.

Objection has been raised by the newspapers and employers to the establishment of military rule by the Governor in the strike area. The reason for this is that the militia which was so much desired by these elements in the early stages of the strike has not been used for the purpose of breaking the strike but merely to preserve order and to protect the citizens of Minneapolis.

Military Rule Necessary

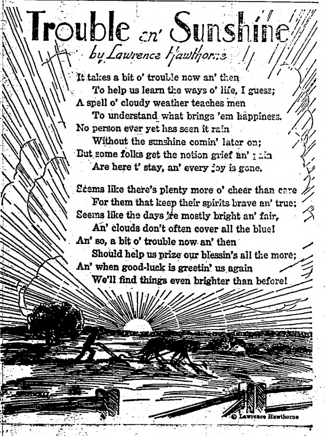
That the Governor found it necessary to establish military rule is no fault of his. Few govenors of this state found themselves more reluctant to call in the militia in a strike controversy than did Governor Olson in this case. As chief executive of the state, it is, however, the duty of Governor Olson to preserve order and to protect citizens against loss of life in a crisis of this sort. Surely there can be no argument on that point.

In his address Governor Olson pointed out that several of the employers are paying wages as low as $12.00 per week. This is, of course, a wage far below that necessary for a family man to provide food and shelter for the members of his household.

Holiday Folks Co-Operate

Under the military rule now enforced in Minneapolis, farmers are permitted to enter the city freely with their food stuffs and sell them direct to the consumers. Moreover, it is of interest to know how the Farmers Holiday Association has co-operated with the strikers in the latters attempt to win the strike.

It must be becoming increasingly obvious to the people of this state that the employing class has no desire to yield an inch in its legal right to exploit the workers to the fullest extent. It merely goes to illustrate how futile all attempts are to patch up the capitalist system and make it function in a manner that will provide plenty for all.



Trouble an' Sunshine

by Lawrence Hawthorne

It takes a bit o' trouble now an' then
To help us learn the ways o' life, I guess;
A spell o' cloudy weather teaches men
To understand what brings 'em happiness.
No person ever yet has seen it rain
Without the sunshine comin' later on;
But some folks get the notion grief an' pain
Are here t' stay, an' every joy is gone.

Seems like there's plenty more o' cheer than care
For them that keep their spirits brave an' true;
Seems like the days 're mostly bright an' fair,
An' clouds don't often cover all the blue!
An' so, a bit o' trouble now an' then
Should help us prize our blessin's all the more;
An' when good-luck is greetin' us again
We'll find things even brighter than before!

Our Community Builders

MARTIN ROCKSTAD RECALLS THE DAYS WHEN INDIANS WERE HIS ONLY NEIGHBORS

Martin C. Rockstad, a pioneer of this community for fifty-four year was born November 7, 1847 in Kongsberg, Norway. When five years of age, he came to America with his parents, and his eight brothers and settled in Pierce County, Wisconsin where he made his residence for many years.

His father died when he was but a small lad, and, the family being large money scarce, the children were forced to "shift for themselves." Stephen Nye, uncle to Edger Nye, the famous humorist of the early days took the eight-year-old Martin into his home and raised him to young manhood as if he were his own boy. His schooling extended through the sixth grade.

In 1872, Rockstad was married to Caroline Elizabeth Morgan in River Falls, Wisconsin, after which they made their home at Roberts Station, Wisconsin for about six years.

Rockstad moved his family to this region in 1880, and filed a homestead south of town, located to the west of the site now occupied by the Oakland Park Sanitorium. A little log shack was the first family abode on the homestead At that time there was only one little shanty on the present site of Thief River Falls which belonged to Frank Russell. The population was comprised of Indians, but the land was pretty well taken up by the white men within a year after Rockstad's arrival. In those days, he says, this country was abundant with game such as otters, beaver, foxes, and wolves.

Mr. Rockstad was a good friend of the Indians, and tells many interesting anecdotes in regard to their customs and behavior. They named him "Squabamack," which translated into English means "Kinnikinick," after the weed that grew along the river on Rockstad's homestead. This weed served as tobacco for the Indians.

The Indians were peaceable enough," Mr. Rockstad says, "but no matter how true a friendship they had for you, it seemed that their fingers could not resist the temptation of picking up various articles in sight which were owned by you. But if one ever did them a favor, it was never forgotten, and vice versa: they could be crueel enemies and not entirely harmless."

Mrs. Rockstad was in the Indians' favor, as she sewed shirts and clothing for them, in return for which they showed their gratitude by supplying her with fish and trapped game. Nevertheless, they were to be feared on their return trips from Crookston, when slightly inebriated from too much "fire water" obtained at that trading center, they passed the Rockstad house, which was perhaps fifteen or twenty feet from the Indian Trail the only trail at that time. At such times as these, Mrs. Rockstad would gather up the children and flee for refuge in the rushes near the river.

Many and varied other stories regarding the hardships and trials of the pioneer settler can be told by Rockstad. He relates of the severe trips with oxen through extreme snow storms and rains, uncertain perils and risks which the sturdy and dauntless pioneers had to endure to obtain groceries and necessities for themselves and their families at the Crookston trading post. The spirit of determination, grit, and never yielding resolution in danger or suffering seems evident in the early settlers like Martin Rockstad, who has faced all of life's trails with an open, courageous heart; never losing faith or hope even in the face of disaster or adversity.

Rockstad's brother, Charles Rockstad, maintained the first postoffice between Thief River Falls and Crookston which was located in his dwelling house on the land where Rasmus Oen now has his farm.

The land around the vicinity of Rockstad's farm was named Rockstad Township after him, but the Crookston council later saw fit to change it to Rocksbury Township, by which name that community is known at the present day.

Rockstad's wife died August 3, 1932. Nine children have also passed on; four having died in infancy. Those living are Charles of Springfield, Minnesota; Frank of Big Falls, Minnesota; Ella of Caando, North Dakota Fred and Evangeline of Thief River Falls.

At the age of 87 years, Mr. Rockstad is content and satisfied. He enjoys chopping wood and daily walks for exercise, and is especially fond of listening to the radio. His home is at 413 Markley Avenue South.

STRATOSPHERE BALLOON CRASHES

Pilots Make Escape Via Chutes When Bag Rips and Gondola Falls.

Holdredge, Neb—A trio of daring army aviators, ther exploraton of the statosphere cut short at approxmately 60,000 feet by a damaged balloon. ended a perilous descent on a prairie near here. The three courageous airmen saved themselves by leaping overboard as the mammoth craft, its three-acre bag ripped end to end and fluttering in the wind, its gondola swaying crazily, plummeted toward the earth. They floated to earth in their parachutes and were anscathed.

After a perfect take-off from Rapid City, So. Dak., the balloon soared to 60,000 feet and drifted over Nebraska. Major William E. Kepner noticed the bag tearing apart at that height and attempted to bring the balloon down safely. He was in constant communication with the ground at all times. After bringing the globe to within 20,000 feet of the earth, the bag ripped so much the occupants realized they would never be able to land it safely without the aid of parachutes. The trio endeavored to loosen the giant parachute attached to the metal ball and it refused to open. They tied up the most delicate instruments and threw them overboard with individual chutes.

After another attempt to free the giant parachute ended in failure, the trio decided to save themselves. By this time the balloon was falling rapidly and was within 2,000 feet of the ground. Capt. A. W. Stevens was followed by Capt. Orvil A. Anderson over the side with Major William Kepner just leaping in time for his chute to open at 500 feet.

The gondola crashed to earth amid the torn gas bag and completely crumpled up. The instruments thrown overboard were also smashed. This flight, after months of preparation failed to reach a new height, falling short by several thousand feet. They covered 300 miles over the ground and ascended 11 1-3 miles. The cost of the stratosphere attempt was around a million dollars.

FAIR PLANS BIG FARM PROGRAM

Barn Dance, Rural Events Featured at Chicago Aug. 11 to 18.

Chicago.—Four million persons have entered the gates of the new World's Fair since it opened here May 26. Most of the throngs that have thrilled to the new spectacle, the new "foreign villages," which offer in themselves a "tour of the world," the new shows and the new free entertainment projects, are city dwellers. Chicagoans, visitors from other cities all over the United States and visitors from foreign countries have poured in, in large numbers.

But the real farmer-visitors' invasion of A Century of Progress has not yet begun. It will reach its peak when the Fair celebrates Farm Week, from August 11 to August 18, inclusive.

Last year Farm Week accounted for the largest single week's attendance of the entire Fair. Plans to make the celebration interesting and important to farmers are even more elaborate now than last year, according to the events division of the exposition.

WLS Barn Dance at Fair.

Saturday, August 11, will lead off the program with a massive farm parade, including bands, farm implements, machinery and equipment and farm animals. Depicting the modernization of agriculture, it will be one of the longest and most comprehensive pageants of the entire exposition.

Sunday, August 12, will see special music and farm programs interlinked with the observance of Chicago Incorporation day, with Chicago acting as host to the out-of-town multitudes.

Rexford Tugwell, assistant secretary of agriculture, has been invited to be the principal speaker of the Farm Organization day program Monday. Tuesday will be Farm Radio day, with the entire WLS "Barn Dance" presenting a program in the Court of States; 40,000 persons saw this event in 1933.

Aerial Sham Battle Planned.

The farmer's wife will have her day Wednesday, August 15, which has been named Farm Women's day, with special programs arranged to pay tribute to the women who battled to carve a nation out of the wilderness. Farm Youth day, Thursday, will be full of recognition of the future farmers of the land, with emphasis on 4-H club work.

Programs of interest to rural newspapers and magazines will feature Farm Press day, Friday. Saturday, August 18, will be farm music day, with its high spot the gigantic Chicagoland Music festival in Soldier Field, adjoining the Fair grounds. This annual event has attracted more than a half million persons in the four years of its existence. This day will also see many special contests, such as milkmaid husband-calling and hog-calling contests.

Saturday is also Illinois day. There will be a review of 10,000 troops and demonstrations by anti-aircraft artillery units, shooting with tracer bullets at balloon targets towed by airplanes.

Farm Exhibits Are Many.

During Farm Week parties of farmers will be taken on free guided tours of the Fair grounds. Farm visitors, with only a limited time to spend, will in this way be able to see everything of vital interest to them.

Henry Ford's industrialized barn, where he shows how the farmer may, at low cost, raise soy beans, obtain the residue and process it himself, making industrial products for which he can obtain a profitable revenue, is one of the new exhibits. Another is the International Harvester company's radio-controlled tractor, which demonstrates how farming may be done from an easy chair on the veranda. Model farm homes will attract many rural sightseers, as will the exhibits of the great packing plants and the automobile manufacturers.

The Brook Hill Dairy farm, with its model farm of 1950, shows the last word in modern milk production, from cow to bottle. The International Egg Laying contest is a huge laboratory where the farmer may study the latest egg-production methods first-hand. Scores of commercial exhibitors will have displays of prime interest to Farm-Week visitors.

Special Rates Lower Cost.

Special railroad and bus rates will make it easier for the farmer to get to the Fair this summer. Automobile agencies and oil stations will give him assistance in highway travel. At the Fair, he will find costs surprisingly low. Restaurants are cheaper, transportation is cheaper, there is plentiful free entertainment and eighty per cent of all the comfort stations are free.

Probably one of the leading attractions for rural visitors will be the foreign villages, so faithful in reproductions of life and scenes in fifteen countries that they offer the equivalent of a tour of the world, right on the Fair grounds.

FAIR PLANS BIG FARM PROGRAM

Barn Dance, Rural Events Featured at Chicago Aug. 11 to 18.

Chicago.—Four million persons have entered the gates of the new World's Fair since it opened here May 26. Most of the throngs that have thrilled to the new spectacle, the new "foreign villages," which offer in themselves a "tour of the world," the new shows and the new free entertainment projects, are city dwellers. Chicagoans, visitors from other cities all over the United States and visitors from foreign countries have poured in, in large numbers.

But the real farmer-visitors' invasion of A Century of Progress has not yet begun. It will reach its peak when the Fair celebrates Farm Week, from August 11 to August 18, inclusive.

Last year Farm Week accounted for the largest single week's attendance of the entire Fair. Plans to make the celebration interesting and important to farmers are even more elaborate now than last year, according to the events division of the exposition.

WLS Barn Dance at Fair.

Saturday, August 11, will lead off the program with a massive farm parade, including bands, farm implements, machinery and equipment and farm animals. Depicting the modernization of agriculture, it will be one of the longest and most comprehensive pageants of the entire exposition.

Sunday, August 12, will see special music and farm programs interlinked with the observance of Chicago Incorporation day, with Chicago acting as host to the out-of-town multitudes.

Rexford Tugwell, assistant secretary of agriculture, has been invited to be the principal speaker of the Farm Organization day program Monday. Tuesday will be Farm Radio day, with the entire WLS "Barn Dance" presenting a program in the Court of States; 40,000 persons saw this event in 1933.

Aerial Sham Battle Planned.

The farmer's wife will have her day Wednesday, August 15, which has been named Farm Women's day, with special programs arranged to pay tribute to the women who battled to carve a nation out of the wilderness. Farm Youth day, Thursday, will be full of recognition of the future farmers of the land, with emphasis on 4-H club work.

Programs of interest to rural newspapers and magazines, will feature Farm Press day, Friday. Saturday, August 18, will be farm music day, with its high spot the gigantic Chicagoland Music festival in Soldier Field, adjoining the Fair grounds. This annual event has attracted more than a half million persons in the four years of its existence. This day will also see many special contests, such as milkmaid husband-calling and hog-calling contests.

Saturday is also Illinois day. There will be a review of 10,000 troops and demonstrations by anti-aircraft artillery units, shooting with tracer bullets at balloon targets towed by airplanes.

Farm Exhibits Are Many.

During Farm Week parties of farmers will be taken on free guided tours of the Fair grounds. Farm visitors, with only a limited time to spend, will in this way be able to see everything of vital interest to them.

Henry Ford's industrialized barn, where he shows how the farmer may, at low cost, raise soy beans, obtain the residue and process it himself, making industrial products for which he can obtain a profitable revenue, is one of the new exhibits. Another is the International Harvester company's radio-controlled tractor, which demonstrates how farming may be done from an easy chair on the veranda. Model farm homes will attract many rural sightseers, as will the exhibits of the great packing plants and the automobile manufacturers.

The Brook Hill Dairy farm, with its model farm of 1950, shows the last word in modern milk production, from cow to bottle. The International Egg Laying contest is a huge laboratory where the farmer may study the latest egg-production methods first-hand. Scores of commercial exhibitors will have displays of prime interest to Farm-Week visitors.

Special Rates Lower Cost.

Special railroad and bus rates will make it easier for the farmer to get to the Fair this summer. Automobile agencies and oil stations will give him assistance in highway travel. At the Fair, he will find costs surprisingly low. Restaurants are cheaper, transportation is cheaper, there is plentiful free entertainment and eighty per cent of all the comfort stations are free.

Probably one of the leading attractions for rural visitors will be the foreign villages, so faithful in reproductions of life and scenes in fifteen countries that they offer the equivalent of a tour of the world, right on the Fair grounds.

Rabbit or Rarebit?

Many argumentative wars have been waged on the question of whether "rabbit" or "rarebit" is the correct word. Modern dictionaries give the preference to the former, but "rarebit" has energetic defenders. The term is probably a jocular hit at the Welsh, as in New England a salt cod is styled a poor man's "turkey" and in Old England a "Norfolk capon" is a red herring.

STATE FAIR NIGHT SHOW BEST EVER

Diamond Jubilee Spectacle Climaxes Seventy-five Years of Entertainment Excellence.

Climaxing 75 years of entertainment excellence, the Minnesota State Fair will observe its Diamond Jubilee, September 1 to 8, with a $100,000 program that will combine new and greater thrillers, more costly attractions and unexcelled showmanship.

Variety is the keystone of the program that commemorates the 75th birthday of the World's greatest State Fair. A colossal night show, swirling automobile events, gorgeous fireworks, stirring horse races, superaeronautical thrillers, America's premier horse show, a championship trapshooting tournament, band music, a midway boasting 40 rides and attractions are only the high spots of this sterling amusement symposium.

Fitting recognition of the Exposition that marks three-quarters of a century of progress is the spectacular night show—Diamond Jubilee—the finest in the Fair's history. Produced especially for this occasion, the night show spectacle reaches a new high in outdoor entertainment.

Stirring Scenes Included

The audience, literally transported by magic carpet, will be treated to scene after scene of super-entertainment, all blending into the mighty Diamond Jubilee Revue, from which the production takes its name. Crowded into the spectacle will be a realistic battle between Scouts and Soldiers, reminiscent of frontier days. Reenacting the Days of Jenny Lind, the Swedish Nightingale, whose marvelous voice and artistry made her the most famous diva of her day, Madam Signe Stromwall, will be assisted by the renowned Alanoff Ballet and the sterling Odeon Octet.

And the Gay Nineties. A flash-back to the days of the brown derby, bustle skirts and the Bowery, with its comedians and chorines and those world-famous crazy carpenters—the Willie West and McGinty troupe—will provide a riot of laughs.

Aquatic Fantasy in Finale

All the glory and splendor of Minnesota's own out-of-doors will be presented in Land O' Lakes, an aquatic fantasy, in which a bevy of beautiful water nymphs, gorgeously costumed, disappear in a sunken garden built into the stage.

In the feature scene the Diamond Jubilee Revue, Glorified American Beauties—48 of them—will participate in the finale in which Miss Minnesota emerges from a gorgeous, diamond-jewelled setting to reign supreme over the spectacle of pomp and ceremony. It will be most inspiring.

The race track, as usual, will provide thrills—and maybe spills. The world's greatest auto racers will compete on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, September 3, 5 and 8. Horse racing, including both harness events and runners, will be featured Saturday, Tuesday and Thursday, September 1, 4 and 6.

Thrill Day Set for Friday

Friday will be Thrill Day. The "Spread-Rail" head-on locomotive collision, the first of its kind in the show world, will be the super-event. Motorcycle racing, balloon ascensions and parachute jumps from both balloons and airplanes and a board-wall automobile crash are a few of the hair-raisers that will thrill the audience.

America's premier horse show, a $10,000 competition, scheduled for five nights, September 3 to 7, will bring together the finest riders and show horses of the nation.

On the midway will be the Royal American Shows, featuring 40 new rides and attractions, including many world's fair features.

Warroad—With nearly 12 miles of illegal fish nets seized this season in international waters, the state game and fish division is waging a campaign against commercial fishermen who persists in using unlicensed and untagged gill nets. Six fishermen who ply their trade in the international waters of Lake of the Woods have been arrested. Three of them pleaded guilty at Baudette and were fined $25 and costs to be paid within 10 days. The three others arrested who work out of Warroad have not had their cases disposed of yet.

STATE FAIR NIGHT SHOW BEST EVER

Climaxing 75 years of entertainment excellence, the Minnesota State Fair will observe its Diamond Jubilee, September 1 to 8, with a $100,000 program that will combine new and greater thrillers, more costly attractions and unexcelled showmanship.

Variety is the keystone of the program that commemorates the 75th birthday of the World's greatest State Fair. A colossal night show, swirling automobile events, gorgeous fireworks, stirring horse races, superaeronautical thrillers, America's premier horse show, a championship trapshooting tournament, band music, a midway boasting 40 rides and attractions are only the high spots of this sterling amusement symposium.

Fitting recognition of the Exposition that marks three-quarters of a century of progress is the spectacular night show—Diamond Jubilee—the finest in the Fair's history. Produced especially for this occasion, the night show spectacle reaches a new high in outdoor entertainment.

Stirring Scenes Included

The audience, literally transported by magic carpet, will be treated to scene after scene of super-entertainment, all blending into the mighty Diamond Jubilee Revue, from which the production takes its name. Crowded into the spectacle will be a realistic battle between Scouts and Soldiers, reminiscent of frontier days. Reenacting the Days of Jenny Lind, the Swedish Nightingale, whose marvelous voice and artistry made her the most famous diva of her day, Madam Signe Stromwall, will be assisted by the renowned Alanoff Ballet and the sterling Odeon Octet.

And the Gay Nineties. A flash-back to the days of the brown derby, bustle skirts and the Bowery, with its comedians and chorines and those world-famous crazy carpenters—the Willie West and McGinty troupe—will provide a riot of laughs.

Aquatic Fantasy in Finale

All the glory and splendor of Minnesota's own out-of-doors will be presented in Land O' Lakes, an aquatic fantasy, in which a bevy of beautiful water nymphs, gorgeously costumed, disappear in a sunken garden built into the stage.

In the feature scene the Diamond Jubilee Revue, Glorified American Beauties—48 of them—will participate in the finale in which Miss Minnesota emerges from a gorgeous, diamond-jewelled setting to reign supreme over the spectacle of pomp and ceremony. It will be most inspiring.

The race track, as usual, will provide thrills—and maybe spills. The world's greatest auto racers will compete on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, September 3, 5 and 8. Horse racing, including both harness events and runners, will be featured Saturday, Tuesday and Thursday, September 1, 4 and 6.

Thrill Day Set for Friday

Friday will be Thrill Day. The "Spread-Rail" head-on locomotive collision, the first of its kind in the show world, will be the super-event. Motorcycle racing, balloon ascensions and parachute jumps from both balloons and airplanes and a board-wall automobile crash are a few of the hair-raisers that will thrill the audience.

America's premier horse show, a $10,000 competition, scheduled for five nights, September 3 to 7, will bring together the finest riders and show horses of the nation.

On the midway will be the Royal American Shows, featuring 40 new rides and attractions, including many world's fair features.

FIRE C[illegible]KS PUBLIC TO ASSIST BY COOPERATING

Scores Curiosity Seekers Who Scramble to Fires and Obstruct Firemen

Chief Leonard Hanson of the fire department called attention to the serious interference with the functions of the department caused by the curious who insist on being present at every fire, this week. The department does not desire to use harsh measures, the chief continues, but if the practice is not discontinued some measure to stop it will have to be taken, The chief called attention to the fact that it is unlawful to drive thru an intersection after a firehose has been thrung and that a stiff fine may be result.

The chief requested that the next time the fire alarm sounds that the citizens who are prone to rush madly to the scene of the conflagation curb their excitement and stay out of the department's way.

Consider Hook-up for 5 Years With Interstate Power Co. For Stand-by Power.

The highline running east of the city was hooked in with the city light and power circuits last week. this action was taken to assure uninterrupted service during the fair, Mr. Myhrom, president of the council stated on Saturday. No contract was entered into with the power company, he said, the entire deal being conducted over the telephone with the power company officials at Crookston. The connection will be continued until the Macintosh-Seymour engine can be given a thorough overhaul, Mr. Myhrom stated, so that it will be in condition to assume the heavy load that is anticipated when the cold weather sets in.

On Tuesday evening the council held an informal meeting at the council chambers with representatives of the power company and discussed with them propositions for permanent stand-by power. Plans are as follows: The power company will hook in as stand-by and will assume the night load, that is, the complete load from 12 midnight until 8 a. m. This proposition will cost the city $100 per month for stand-by and 1½ cents per kwh for all energy used. The company demands a five year contract.

The power company officials estimated that the city would have to make an innitial outlay for lines, substation etc., at a cost of about $6,000. A blank switchboard in the power house would be be used to make the connections so as to avoid having to go out to the city limits to cut in and out.

STRIKE STILL ON IN MINNEAPOLIS

Employers and Strikers Fail to Get Together on Plans to Resume Work.

Minneapolis—The striking truck drivers entered their third week of idleness as plans are going forward which everyone hopes will settle all disputes. Rev. Francis T. Haas and E. H. Dunnigan, federal mediators, are still in the city endeavoring to get the employers and employes together.

Three thousand national guardsmen are still on duty, preserving law and order. After being threatened by Union headquarters and told to get the troops off the streets, Gen. Walsh ordered his men to raid strike headquarters and arrest the leaders. The raid came off at 4 a. m. before strikers had started their threatened picketing. William S. Brown, V. R. Dunne and Miles Dunne, officials of the general drivers union, were placed under arrest and taken to the military stockade. They were released two days later and their headquarters returned upon their promise to obey martial law . Governor Olson also ordered the national guard to raid the Citizens Alliance and confiscate their records and books.

The employers of the city served complaints on Governor Olson and General Walsh, asking them to show a good reason why martial law should not be withdrawn from Minneapolis. Striking taxi drivers have gone back to work.

Only one shot has been fired since troops took over the city, that was in the air to frighten a carload of picketers to surrender.

Military permits were issued to over half the trucks in the city and they were operating normally until the strike dragged out so far that Governor Olson ordered all permits revoked and trucks off the streets. Only milk and ice were moved. The governor's order read that any employer from now on who would sign a pledge to abide by the provisions of the peace plan proposed July 25 by the Rev. Haas and E. H. Dunnigan could operate their trucks. Several concerns have signed pledges to comply with that proposal. According to the governor, this plan will expose the "chiselers" and show the public who is holding up the strike settlement.

Meanwhile General Walsh is taking steps to ease restrictions which have hedged loop shoppers since the declaration of martial law. He lifted the parking ban on loop streets; except those in the market district. While peace plans are under way, guardsmen are still active in rounding up roaming pickets who were tipping over trucks and beating drivers, in outlying sections of the city.

ENFORCEMENT OF PROHIBITION COST 23 LIVES PER YEAR

By W. G. Calderwood

During the campaign for the repeal of prohibition there was much heated denunciation of the law because of the killings of officers and civilians in its enforcement. The more radical of the repealists did not hesitate to brand federal enforcement officers as murderers, nor to assert that congressmen who voted for prohibition were also guilty of manslaughter.

The World Almanac for 1934 states that during twelve years of prohibition there were 91 officers and 180 civilians killed. Most of these civilians were moonshiners, smugglers, highjackers and bootleggers, many of whom were desperate criminals and killers. That was an average of slightly less than 23 enforcement deaths per year, counting both officers and civilians.

The menace of the drunken driver has been recognized from the introduction of the auto. When a drunkard drives horses, the horses are sober. But an auto is always just as drunk as the driver.

Immediatly after there was a sharp increase of arrests for drunkenness and a natural accompanying increase of auto fatalities that were associated with drunkenness. Chicago registers an increase of 367% in deaths from drunken driving. The Census department issues reports covering the auto fatalities in 86 leading cities of the nation. For the 52 weeks ending June 9, 1934 under beer and repeal, auto deaths in these cities aggregated 8660 as against 7746 for the corresponding 52 weeks of 1933, mostly under prohibition. This was an increase of 914 during the wet year.

It certainly was a tragic and deplorable record that an annual average of 23 persons were killed in the enforcement of the law thruout the nation. But it is more tragic and more deplorable that, largely at least as the result of repeal of prohibition, there is and increase of 914 traffic deaths in one year in only 86 of the cities of the nation.

There is something fantastical, if not fanatical, about the mind that is shocked at the death of 23 persons in the enforcement of law, but is un moved by the reath of 914 thru the violation of law.

CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE UNCOVERS NAZI PROPAGANDA

NEW YORK (TIS)— Disclosing that the well-known New York publicity promotor, Ivy L. Lee, receives $25,000 a year from Nazi Germany for his advice and other services, the Congressional Committee investigating Nazi and other un-American activities moved one step farther in its startling revelations of a well-organized and highly paid Nazi propaganda system in the United States. Mr. Lee's statements were preceded by the testimony of Geo. S. Viereck, high-pressure German propagandist during the war days, who confirmed that he received $1,750 a month in return for his propaganda services to the Nazi cause. He also received $500 a month for the period of four months from the then German Consul General in New York, Dr. Otto Kiep. The latter sums were not entered in his books.

According to Mr. Lee, the money is paid to him by the German dye trust which in turn hands all advice and data received to the German authorities. Lee was retained in spring 1933, shortly after a brief visit to Berlin where he had opportunity to "size up Adolph Hitler" and to impress the leading men with the necessity of retaining his services for the guidance of the German government. The testimony brought out that Lee supplied information and advice on questions of German rearmament, debts and other matters of national policy. Lee also suggested to Berlin that Hitler's personal armament representative, Joachim von Ribbentrop should visit the United States for the purpose of explaining German policies to President Roosevelt and to the American public. Mr. Lee's contact man in Berlin is his son, James W. Lee, who receives an annual salary of $33,000.

Mr. Ivy Lee stated, however, that his arrangements with the German dye trust call for no dissemination whatsoever of Nazi propaganda in the United States and that he considers Nazi propaganda abroad and especially its anti-Semetic policy harmful.

The inquiry of the committee is proceeding. In the meantime the Nazi display considerable activity in gaining new adherents and training them for their own ends. A new Nazi drilling camp has been opened near Mountain Lakes, New Jersey. More than seventy persons are drilling there in the best Nazi fashion. Swastika and German nationalist designs are apparent everywhere.

CATTLE AND SHEEP LOANS AVAILABLE

Minnesota Stockmen Given Chance to get purchase Funds on new plan

Minnesota farmers and feedlot operators may avail themselves of a new type of feeder loans just announced by the Production Credit Corporation of St. Paul, which makes it possible under certain circumstances for the farmer or stockman to obtain the full purchase price of feeder cattle and feeder lambs.

Loans secured by first mortgage on the livestock bought and on a sufficient amount of feed to finish the stock for market may now be obtained by the farmer who furnishes a sound financial statement, has experience in feeding, and is in a good location and equipped with adequate facilities. He must be known to be a good moral risk also and it is necessary that the price to be paid for the stock shall not be out of line with reasonable expectations as to the price at the time the stock is marketed.

Borrowers who are not experienced will not be granted more than 75 per cent of the purchase price, providing the application is approved, and in cases where feeder prices are relatively high some margin in the shape of cash or a chattel mortgage will be required. The plan is also available in the other states of the 7th district.

Liquor Tax Will Bring State About $3,000,000

It is estimated that the new Minnesota liquor tax will yield about three million dollars this year. In the first six months' period, starting Jan. 4, and ending June 30, there have been collected by the State a total of $1,340,049.94. A great part of this money is being used for relief work, and the balance is then turned into the general revenue fund of the state, according to a report of the Minnesota Tax commission.

Damage Suit Reveals Nazi Gangster Methods

DORTMUND (TIS)—A legal suit of utmost political and moral significance is at present being tried before the supreme court at Dortmund. No word of it is permitted to reach the public, lest the Germans begin to understand the kind of racketeering and gangsterism to which they are exposed under the Nazi regime.

The suit asks for damages to the extent of 8 million mark from the present owners of the important daily Westfaelische Landeszeitung formerly known as "Dortmunder Generalanzeiger." The complainants are the former owners who base their claims on the peculiar methods used by the Nazis in "purchasing" the paper. The main controlling interest is in the hands of the Prussian Prime Minister, General Goering.

In early summer, 1933, the paper was suppressed by the Nazis on account of an allegedly uncomplimentary picture of the "Fuehrer." A few days later the owners were ordered to appear before the Nazi high command at Dortmund where they were informed that no guarantee for their personal security could be given as long as they retained the ownership of the paper. After other threats and the special remark that the concentration camp was waiting for them if they did not accede to the Nazi wishes, the owners finally accepted the ridiculously low offer of 570,000 Mark (about $140,000).

To add insult to injury, the purchase money was taken out of the treasury of the sequestered paper thus paying the owners with their own money. The suit states that the purchase was accomplished by fraudulent means, violence and undue pressure. Speculation is rife over the future fate of the complainants who have incurred the special ire of the Prussian czar Goering.

FARM BUREAU ASKS FAIR HOG QUOTAS FROM AAA

An appeal to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and his aids to adopt a more liberal and reasonable attitude on hog quotas under the AAA crop control plan has been made by the executive board of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation. In a resolution adopted at a recent meeting in St. Paul the Farm Bureau asserted that administrators of the corn-hog reduction program have not given sufficient consideration to farmers' evidence of previous hog production, and a liberalization of procedure is urged.

Recommendation is made that a committee composed of all groups concerned in the corn-hog program be delegated to formulate quotas based upon the statistics obtained by the local allotment committees.

FRENCH SOCIALISTS ENTER INTO THE UNITED FRONT

PARIS—The national council of the Socialist party has accepted a proposal of the Communists to join in a united front against fascist moves in France. M. Blum, Paul Faure and other socialist leaders held that the progress of fascism had become too serious for the party to refuse cooperation. It is proposed that the two parties stage a joint demonstration on the twentieth anniversary of the outbreak of the World War.

Minnesota PWA Grant To Boost Employment

Employment in Minnesota will get a big boost through fifteen public works projects made possible by recent PWA loans aand grants. These projects, it is estimated, will furnish 24,261 man-months of employment. Total estimated cost of construction is $5,017,$96.

The largest loan and grant is $2,750,000 to St. Louis ocunty for improving 282 miles of roads; grading, draining, culverts, surfacing with concrete and steel bridges. The program will give work to 800 men for two years. The second largest loan and grant is $1,229,000 for an electric generating and distributing system at St. Cloud. Other large projects include St. Paul waterworks improvements, $264,000; Hibbing memorial building. $475,400, (grant of $136,000 balance from insurance of old building); Worthington power plant, $100,-706; sewer and waterworks improvements at Byron, Russell and Lakeville, $92,890; school at Goodhue, $64,000.

U.S. Regulations Require Roadside Developement

Occasionally there is some criticism of the expenditure of money on roadside development projects by the state highway department. However says a department bulletin, the federal government makes it mandatory to spend not less than 1 per cent of the state's federal allotment for landscaping and similar roadside improvement.

Thus the state department has no alternative but to carry on the projects as required by the national government. Most of the comments received by highway officials have been favorable to the extension of this type of work, according to N. W. Elsberg, state highway com- W. Elsberg, state highway commissioner.

FINDS SCHOOL BUILDINGS REFUSED LEFT GROUPS

NEW YORK—Discrimination "dictated by local prejudice or by influential reactionary groups" in the use of public school buildings for generel meetings is reported by the American Civil Liberties Union in a pamphlet "School Buildings as Public Forums" sent this week to school boards throuot the country, to representatives of minority political parties, and to A. C. L. U., correspondents.

Assistance in fighting discrimination against minority groups "thru public hearings before the local boards of education, and if necessary by appeals to the courts" is promised by the A. C. L. U.

Michigan and California state laws are recommended by the Union as "satisfactory working models" to be copied by other states in regulating the use of school buildings. However, difficulties experienced by the Socialist party and the Civil Liberties Union at Bakersfield, Cal., in trying to hold a meeting in a school building during the San Joanquin cotton strike are cited to show the need of an effective guarantee in the California statute against discrimination.

Germans in Palastine Refuse Rooms to Jews

A strange tale from the Palestinian village of Sarona, near Tel-Aviv, has been published in the anti-Nazi daily "Deutsche Freheit." According to a correspondent, the village is almost exclusively inhabited by German gentile settlers who refuse to rent rooms to jewish visitors. Only lately, two Jews came to Sarona to attend a widely advertised lecture, were forced to leave the village. The correspondent explains that the villageers are enjoying considerable prosperity due to their proximity to Tel-Aviv. The paper voices its surprise that the Jews in Tel-Aviv are permitting a reign of Hitler terror in their immediate vicinity.

Germany Builds High Speed Express Roads

Speeds up to 125 miles an hour will be possible on the express highways which Germany has started building. These roads will connect the principal cities, avoiding smaller towns. They will be as straight as possible, without any sharp curves or grade crossings. Each road will have two 25-foot concrete pavements, seperated by a strip of grass 10 to 16 feet wide, providing two 12½ foot traffic lanes in each direction. A system of 7,500 miles is planned, to be built in ten years. From 500,000 to 600,000 will be employed building these roads and producing and transporting the materials.

German highway administration formerly was divided between 26 state and county and 500 township highway departments. Lack of central authority prevented development of a highway system adequate for modern traffic. Centralization of control is provided by the eact of March 1934, creating a chief engineer of all German roads, to whom all state and county highway departments are subordinated. Besides express highways, there will be federal, state and secondary roads. Improvement of all classes will be hastened under the new program.

STRIKE STILL ON IN MINNEAPOLIS

Employers and Strikers Fail to Get Together on Plans to Resume Work.

Minneapolis—The striking truck drivers entered their third week of idleness as plans are going forward which everyone hopes will settle all disputes. Rev. Francis T. Haas and E. H. Dunnigan, federal mediators, are still in the city endeavoring to get the employers and employes together.

Three thousand national guardsmen are still on duty, preserving law and order. After being threatened by Union headquarters and told to get the troops off the streets, Gen. Walsh ordered his men to raid strike headquarters and arrest the leaders. The raid came off at 4 a. m. before strikers had started their threatened picketing. William S. Brown, V. R. Dunne and Miles Dunne, officials of the general drivers union, were placed under arrest and taken to the military stockade. They were released two days later and their headquarters returned upon their promise to obey martial law . Governor Olson also ordered the national guard to raid the Citizens Alliance and confiscate their records and books.

The employers of the city served complaints on Governor Olson and General Walsh, asking them to show a good reason why martial law should not be withdrawn from Minneapolis. Striking taxi drivers have gone back to work.

Only one shot has been fired since troops took over the city, that was in the air to frighten a carload of picketers to surrender.

Military permits were issued to over half the trucks in the city and they were operating normally until the strike dragged out so far that Governor Olson ordered all permits revoked and trucks off the streets. Only milk and ice were moved. The governor's order read that any employer from now on who would sign a pledge to abide by the provisions of the peace plan proposed July 25 by the Rev. Haas and E. H. Dunnigan could operate their trucks. Several concerns have signed pledges to comply with that proposal. According to the governor, this plan will expose the "chiselers" and show the public who is holding up the strike settlement.

Meanwhile General Walsh is taking steps to ease restrictions which have hedged loop shoppers since the declaration of martial law. He lifted the parking ban on loop streets, except those in the market district. While peace plans are under way, guardsmen are still active in rounding up roaming pickets who were tipping over trucks and beating drivers in outlying sections of the city.

Langer's Wife to Make Race for Office

Bismarck, N. D.—Mrs. William Langer, wife of North Dakota's deposed governor, stepped into his shoes as nominee for governor as the Republican state central committee threw its support behind her. She will head the ticket which Langer, two days before he was sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment led to a smashing victory. The central committee, by a vote of 36 to 9, voted to support Mrs. Langer who will be offered as a vindication candidate by the Langer faction which charges the ousted governor is a victim of persecution.

All persons who wish to camp are invited to use the grounds and all facilities such as the cooking privileges of the camp kitchen, the reading room and other features.

The grounds are lighted at night and are patrolled by fair policemen. Running water is available at standpipes throughout the grounds.

Those who wish to use the camp are urged to bring their own camping equipment, including tent and bedding, so that housing will cost them nothing.

Lack of central authority prevented development of a highway system adequate for modern traffic. Centralization of control is provided by the eact of March 1934, creating a chief engineer of all German roads, to whom all state and county highway departments are subordinated. Besides express highways, there will be federal, state and secondary roads. Improvement of all classes will be hastened under the new program.

STRIKE STILL ON IN MINNEAPOLIS

Employers and Strikers Fail to Get Together on Plans to Resume Work.

Minneapolis—The striking truck drivers entered their third week of idleness as plans are going forward which everyone hopes will settle all disputes. Rev. Francis T. Haas and E. H. Dunnigan, federal mediators, are still in the city endeavoring to get the employers and employes together.

Three thousand national guardsmen are still on duty, preserving law and order. After being threatened by Union headquarters and told to get the troops off the streets, Gen. Walsh ordered his men to raid strike headquarters and arrest the leaders. The raid came off at 4 a. m. before strikers had started their threatened picketing. William S. Brown, V. R. Dunne and Miles Dunne, officials of the general drivers union, were placed under arrest and taken to the military stockade. They were released two days later and their headquarters returned upon their promise to obey martial law. Governor Olson also ordered the national guard to raid the Citizens Alliance and confiscate their records and books.

The employers of the city served complaints on Governor Olson and General Walsh, asking them to show a good reason why martial law should not be withdrawn from Minneapolis. Striking taxi drivers have gone back to work.

Only one shot has been fired since troops took over the city, that was in the air to frighten a carload of picketers to surrender.

Military permits were issued to over half the trucks in the city and they were operating normally until the strike dragged out so far that Governor Olson ordered all permits revoked and trucks off the streets. Only milk and ice were moved. The governor's order read that any employer from now on who would sign a pledge to abide by the provisions of the peace plan proposed July 25 by the Rev. Haas and E. H. Dunnigan could operate their trucks. Several concerns have signed pledges to comply with that proposal. According to the governor, this plan will expose the "chiselers" and show the public who is holding up the strike settlement.

Meanwhile General Walsh is taking steps to ease restrictions which have hedged loop shoppers since the declaration of martial law. He lifted the parking ban on loop streets, except those in the market district. While peace plans are under way, guardsmen are still active in rounding up roaming pickets who were tipping over trucks and beating drivers in outlying sections of the city.

Langer's Wife to Make Race for Office

Bismarck, N. D.—Mrs. William Langer, wife of North Dakota's deposed governor, stepped into his shoes as nominee for governor as the Republican state central committee threw its support behind her. She will head the ticket which Langer, two days before he was sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment led to a smashing victory. The central committee, by a vote of 36 to 9, voted to support Mrs. Langer who will be offered as a vindication candidate by the Langer faction which charges the ousted governor is a victim of persecution.

Thousands Go Back to Work on Coast

San Francisco—Twenty thousand maritime workers, whose hands had not swung a longshore men's hook nor swabbed a deck in three months, returned to work on the Pacific coast, with their long and costly strike ended. Farm Bureau Federation To Conduct Camp for State Fair Visitors

As in past years, the Minnesota Farm Bureau will conduct a free camp for fair visitors during the Minnesota State Fair, which opens this year on September 1st. Since the Farm Bureau took over the camp five years ago more than ten thousand fair visitors have used the camp during fair week, and made it their temporary home while attending the big exposition.

All persons who wish to camp are invited to use the grounds and all facilities such as the cooking privileges of the camp kitchen, the reading room and other features.

The grounds are lighted at night and are patrolled by fair policemen. Running water is available at standpipes throughout the grounds.

Those who wish to use the camp are urged to bring their own camping equipment, including tent and bedding, so that housing will cost them nothing.

ENFORCEMENT OF PROHIBITION COST 23 LIVES PER YEAR

By W. G. Calderwood

During the campaign for the repeal of prohibition there was much heated denunciation of the law because of the killings of officers and civilians in its enforcement. The more radical of the repealists did not hesitate to brand federal enforcement officers as murderers, nor to assert that congressmen who voted for prohibition were also guilty of manslaughter.

The World Almanac for 1934 states that during twelve years of prohibition there were 91 officers and 180 civilians killed. Most of these civilians were moonshiners, smugglers, highjackers and bootleggers, many of whom were desperate criminals and killers. That was an average of slightly less than 23 enforcement deaths per year, counting both officers and civilians.

The menace of the drunken driver has been recognized from the introduction of the auto. When a drunkard drives horses, the horses are sober. But an auto is always just as drunk as the driver.

Immediatly after there was a sharp increase of arrests for drunkenness and a natural accompanying increase of auto fatalities that were associated with drunkenness. Chicago registers an increase of 367% in deaths from drunken driving. The Census department issues reports covering the auto fatalities in 86 leading cities of the nation. For the 52 weeks ending June 9, 1934 under beer and repeal, auto deaths in these cities aggregated 8660 as against 7746 for the corresponding 52 weeks of 1933, mostly under prohibition. This was an increase of 914 during the wet year.

It certainly was a tragic and deplorable record that an annual average of 23 persons were killed in the enforcement of the law thruout the nation. But it is more tragic and more deplorable that, largely at least as the result of repeal of prohibition, there is and increase of 914 traffic deaths in one year in only 86 of the cities of the nation.

There is something fantastical, if not fanatical, about the mind that is shocked at the death of 23 persons in the enforcement of law, but is unmoved by the reath of 914 thru the violation of law.

CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE UNCOVERS NAZI PROPAGANDA

NEW YORK (TIS)— Disclosing that the well-known New York publicity promotor, Ivy L. Lee receives $25,000 a year from Nazi Germany for his advice and other services, the Congressional Committee investigating Nazi and other un-American activities moved one step farther in its startling revelations of a well-organized and highly paid Nazi propaganda system in the United States. Mr. Lee's statements were preceded by the testimony of Geo. S. Viereck, high-pressure German propagandist during the war days, who confirmed that he received $1,750 a month in return for his propaganda services to the Nazi cause. He also received $500 a month for the period of four months from the then German Consul General in New York, Dr. Otto Kiep. The latter sums were not entered in his books.

According to Mr. Lee, the money is paid to him by the German dye trust which in turn hands all advice and data received to the German authorities. Lee was retained in spring 1933, shortly after a brief visit to Berlin where he had opportunity to "size up Adolph Hitler" and to impress the leading men with the necessity of retaining his services for the guidance of the German government. The testimony brought out that Lee supplied information and advice on questions of German rearmament, debts and other matters of national policy. Lee also suggested to Berlin that Hitler's personal armament representative, Joachim von Ribbentrop should visit the United States for the purpose of explaining German policies to President Roosevelt and to the American public. Mr. Lee's contact man in Berlin is his son, James W. Lee, who receives an annual salary of $33,000.

Mr. Ivy Lee stated, however, that his arrangements with the German dye trust call for no dissemination whatsoever of Nazi propaganda in the United States and that he considers Nazi propaganda abroad and especially its anti-Semetic policy harmful.

The inquiry of the committee is proceeding. In the meantime the Nazi display considerable activity in gaining new adherents and training them for their own ends. A new Nazi drilling camp has been opened near Mountain Lakes, New Jersey. More than seventy persons are drilling there in the best Nazi fashion. Swastika and German nationalist designs are apparent everywhere.

CATTLE AND SHEEP LOANS AVAILABLE

Minnesota Stockmen Given Chance to get purchase Funds on new plan

Minnesota farmers and feedlot operators may avail themselves of a new type of feeder loans just announced by the Production Credit Corporation of St. Paul, which makes it possible under certain circumstances for the farmer or stockman to obtain the full purchase price of feeder cattle and feeder lambs.

Loans secured by first mortgage on the livestock bought and on a sufficient amount of feed to finish the stock for market may now be obtained by the farmer who furnishes a sound financial statement, has experience in feeding, and is in a good location and equipped with adequate facilities. He must be known to be a good moral risk also and it is necessary that the price to be paid for the stock shall not be out of line with reasonable expectations as to the price at the time the stock is marketed.

Borrowers who are not experienced will not be granted more than 75 per cent of the purchase price, providing the application is approved, and in cases where feeder prices are relatively high some margin in the shape of cash or a chattel mortgage will be required. The plan is also available in the other states of the 7th district.

Liquor Tax Will Bring State About $3,000,000

It is estimated that the new Minnesota liquor tax will yield about three million dollars this year. In the first six months' period, starting Jan. 4, and ending June 30, there have been collected by the State a total of $1,340,049.94. A great part of this money is being used for relief work, and the balance is then turned into the general revenue fund of the state, according to a report of the Minnesota Tax commission.

Damage Suit Reveals Nazi Gangster Methods

DORTMUND (TIS)—A legal suit of utmost political and moral significance is at present being tried before the supreme court at Dortmund. No word of it is permitted to reach the public, lest the Germans begin to understand the kind of racketeering and gangsterism to which they are exposed under the Nazi regime.

The suit asks for damages to the extent of 8 million mark from the present owners of the important daily Westfaelische Landeszeitung formerly known as "Dortmunder Generalanzeiger." The complainants are the former owners who base their claims on the peculiar methods used by the Nazis in "purchasing" the paper. The main controlling interest is in the hands of the Prussian Prime Minister, General Goering.

In early summer, 1933, the paper was suppressed by the Nazis on account of an allegedly uncomplimentary picture of the "Fuehrer." A few days later the owners were ordered to appear before the Nazi high command at Dortmund where they were informed that no guarantee for their personal security could be given as long as they retained the ownership of the paper. After other threats and the suicide remark that the concentration camp was waiting for them if they did not accede to the Nazi wishes, the owners finally accepted the ridiculously low offer of 510,000 mark (about $140,000).

To add insult to injury, the purchase money was taken out of the treasury of the sequestered paper thus paying the owners with their own money. The suit states that the purchase was accomplished by fraudulent means, violence and undue pressure. Speculation is rife over the future fate of the complainants who have incurred the special ire of the Prussian czar Goering.

FARM BUREAU ASKS FAIR HOG QUOTAS FROM AAA

An appeal to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and his aids to adopt a more liberal and reasonable attitude on hog quotas under the AAA crop control plan has been made by the executive board of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation. In a resolution adopted at a recent meeting at St. Paul the Farm Bureau asserted thaat administrators of the corn-hog reduction program have not given sufficient consideration to farmers' evidence of previous hog production, and a liberalization of procedure is urged.

Recommendation is made that a committee composed of all groups concerned in the corn-hog program be delegated to formulate quotas based upon the statistics obtained by the local allotment committees.

FRENCH SOCIALISTS ENTER INTO THE UNITED FRONT

PARIS—The national council of the Socialist party has accepted a proposal of the Communists to join in a united front against fascist moves in France. M. Blum, Paul Faure and other socialist leaders held that the progress of fascism had become too serious for the party to refuse cooperation. It is proposed that the two parties stage a joint demonstration on the twentieth anniversary of the outbreak of the World War.

Minnesota PWA Grant To Boost Employment

Employment in Minnesota will get a big boost through fifteen public works projects made possible by recent PWA loans sand grants. These projects, it is estimated, will furnish 24,261 man-months of employment. Total estimated cost of construction is $5,017,$96.

The largest loan and grant is $2,750,000 to St. Louis ocunty for improving 282 miles of roads; grading, draining, culverts, surfacing with concrete and steel bridges. The program will give work to 800 men for two years. The second largest loan and grant is $1,229,000 for an electric generating and distributing system at St. Cloud. Other large projects include St. Paul waterworks improvements, $264,000; Hibbing memorial building. $475,400, (grant of $136,000 balance from insurance of old building); Worthington power plant, $100,-750; sewer and waterworks improvements at Byron, Russell and Lakeville, $92,890; school at Goodhue, $64,000.

U.S. Regulations Require Roadside Developement

Occasionally there is some criticism of the expenditure of money on roadside development projects by the state highway department. However says a department bulletin, the federal government makes it mandatory to spend not less than 1 per cent of the state's federal allotment for landscaping and similar roadside improvement.

Thus the state department has no alternative but to carry on the projects as required by the national government. Most of the comments received by highway officials have been favorable to the extension of this type of work, according to N. W. Elsberg, state highway commissioner.

FINDS SCHOOL BUILDINGS REFUSED LEFT GROUPS

NEW YORK—Discrimination "dictated by local prejudice or by influential reactionary groups" in the use of public school buildings for generel meetings is reported by the American Civil Liberties Union in a pamphlet "School Buildings as Public Forums" sent this week to school boards throut the country, to representatives of minority political parties, and to A. C. L. U., correspondents.

Assistance in fighting discrimination against minority groups "thru public hearings before the local boards of education, and if necessary by appeals to the courts" is promised by the A. C. L. U.

Michigan and California state laws are recommended by the Union as "satisfactory working models" to be copied by other states in regulating the use of school buildings. However, difficulties experienced by the Socialist party and the Civil Liberties Union at Bakersfield, Cal., in trying to hold a meeting in a school building during the San Joanquin cotton strike are cited to show the need of an effective guarantee in the California statute against discrimination.

Germans in Palastine Refuse Rooms to Jews

A strange tale from the Palestinian village of Sarona, near Tel-Aviv, has been published in the anti-Nazi daily "Deutsche Freheit." According to a correspondent, the village is almost exclusively inhabited by German gentile settlers who refuse to rent rooms to jewish visitors. Only lately, two Jews came to Sarona to attend a widely advertised lecture, were forced to leave the village. The correspondent explains that the villageers are enjoying considerable prosperity due to their proximity to Tel-Aviv. The paper voices its surprise that the Jews in Tel-Aviv are permitting a reign of Hitler terror in their immediate vicinity.

Germany Builds High Speed Express Roads

Speeds up to 125 miles an hour will be possible on the express highways which Germany has started building. These roads will connect the principal cities, avoiding smaller towns. They will be as straight as possible, without any sharp curves or grade crossings. Each road will have two 25-foot concrete pavements, seperated by a strip of grass 10 to 16 feet wide, providing two 12½ foot traffic lanes in each direction. A system of 7,500 miles is planned, to be built in ten years. From 500,000 to 600,000 will be employed building these roads and producing and transporting the materials.

German highway administration formerly was divided between 26 state and county and 500 township highway departments. Lack of central authority prevented development of a highway system adequate for modern traffic. Centralization of control is provided by the eact of March 1934, creating a chief engineer of all German roads, to whom all state and county highway departments are subordinated. Besides express highways, there will be federal, state and secondary roads. Improvement of all classes will be hastened under the new program.

HOW 'A GREAT FINANCIAL EMPIRE' WAS BUILT

Synopsis of Testimony Developed in the Hearings On The Northwest Bancorporation

Conducted by, The Securities Division of the Department of Commerce
Compiled by The Independent Bankers' Association. Sauk Centre, Minn.

Order Cites Reasons for Investigation

In order in substance recited: "The department of commerce of the state of Minnesota from information in its possession has reasonable ground to believe that Northwest Bancorporation has within three years last past sold securities issued by it, to-wit: Common capital stock of said Northwest Bancorporation and that said securities so sold were sold in a fraudulent manner—and that such sale has worked or will work a fraud upon purchasers thereof and—that said Northwest Bancorporation has violated the provisions of the statutes of the state of Minnesota with respect to the sale of securities in said state and—that said Northwest Bancorporation, or other persons acting on and in its behalf are selling and intend in the future to sell and dispose of common capital stock of said Northwest Bancorporaation, and that such future and intended sales of said stock will work a fraud upon the purchasers thereof: ——that said Northwest Bancorporation did heretofore list said common stock upon the Chicago Stock Exchange for the purpose of bringing the sale of such common stock of the corporation within the express exemption of the securities law of the state of Minnesota and for the purpose of depriving the department of commerce, and, specifically the division of securities, of control and supervision in any manner over the sale of such common stock within the state of Minnesota and that said Northwest Bancorporation caused such common capital stock above referred to be listed upon the Minneapolis–St. Paul Stock Exchange for the purpose of establishing and maintaining fictitious market quotations upon which sales of said common capital stock of said corporation could and would be manipulated and * * * that said Northwest Bancorporation did establish, maintain and conduct a campaign for the purpose of public sales of such stocks, commonly known as customer ownership campaign; that in the sale of said common capital stock, as aforesaid, the department of commerce from information in its possession has the same was sold in a fraudulent manner and that the sale in the manner aforesaid has and will work a fraud upon the purchaser."

Plan Was to Deceive

The order also charged that "The Northwest Bancorporation acting in conjunction with others, has within three years last past sold or caused to be sold shares of its common capital ostck within the state of Minnesota pursuant to a fraudulent plan or scheme, which plan of scheme was, among other things that Northwest Bancorporation and those acting with it, would mislead and deceive such persons as might purchase said shares as to the true value thereof and as to the bona fide market price of said shares; * * * that said scheme or plan was to be carried out in part by means of the organization of one or more pools or syndicates which were to and did so manipulate the ostensible market price of such shares as to mislead those who might purchase the same and deceive them as to the public demand therefor, and as to the bona fide market quotations thereof and as to the true value. Said scheme provided further that Northwest Bancorporation would furnish money to those engaging with it in said scheme and that those to whom the money for such purpose was furnished would not repay the same; * * * that Northwest Bancorporation would pay dividends representing that such dividends were paid out of earnings on said shares when in truth and in fact said Northwest Bancorporation had no earnings out of which to pay the same."

The order required the Northwest Bancorporation to permit an examination, investigation and audit to be made of its books, papers, records and accounts, in order to determine the facts thereof.

Minute books containing minutes of the meetings of the board of directors and executive committee were obtained, together with certain other records at this time, and the hearings on the order of investigation were opened on the 4th day of December, 1933 before the full department of commerce, consisting of Honorable Elmer A. Benson, commissioner of banks, Honorable Garfield W. Brown, commissioner of insurance, and the Honorable S. Paul Skahen, commissioner of securities, W. E. G. Watson acting as special counsel for the department.

E. W. Decker was the first witness called for examination. At that time he was asked:

"Q. I notice, Mr. Decker, that you gave a statement to the press, in connection with this investigation, that you and your institution welcomed an investigation into the sale of your company's stock, and I take it that is the attitude of yourself and your organization?

"A. Yes."

The welcome ended shortly afterward, however, when the company and its officials applied to the U. S. district court to stop the investigation. The applicaion was promptly denied, however, by the court.

Decker and Jaffray Borrow Fifty Million

Mr. Decker then identified himself as being chairman of the board of directors of Northwest Bancorporation formerly the president of the company, and a director since it was first organized. Mr. Decker testified that the first discussion relative to organizing Northwest Bancorporation was in the winter or early spring of 1928 and that the organization of the Northwest Bancorporation was a matter that originated with the officers and directors of the Northwestern National Bank, who were the first ones to discuss it. He also stated that the organization of the Northwest Bancorporation took shape within a period of sixty or ninety days thereafter, and named the parties who first discussed the organization and were officers of the Northwestern National Bank, as being Theodore Wold, now president of the Northwestern National Bank; W. A. Durst, president of the Minnesota Loan & Trust Co. an affiliate of the Northwestern National Bank; J. Cameron Thomson, a vice president of the Northwestern National Bank, and now president of the Northwest Bancorporation; R. E MacGregor, a vice president of the Northwestern National Bank; H. D Thrall and D. R. West, the latter two being officers and directors of the Minnesota Company, a security affiliate of the Northwestern National Bank. These gentlemen who were named were all active officers in charge of the business and affairs of their respective companies. The purpose of the Northwest Bancorporation was to act as a holding company holding the stock of various banks which it might acquire. At this time no actual negotiations had gone forward to acquire the capital stock of any financial institutions. Everything was merely theoretical up to that point, as Mr. Decker testified.

Mr. Decker stated that no corporate action was ever taken by the Northwestern National Bank to turn over the stock to the Northwest Bancorpor tion, and that the discussions were entirely with individuals who were on the board of directors of the Northwestern National Bank. When asken as to the purpose of organizing this company, Mr. Decker stated that he and Mr. Jaffray in 1920 and 1921 borrowed fifty million dollars for the purpose of loaning to country banks and that at about the some time they "took in several" of the important banks in the outlying districts of Minneapolis. He stated that they operated some of these as branches. He also stated that the purpose was to absorb by ownership the capital stocks of Northwestern banks and when asked if it was for no other purpose, he stated "that was the reason."

FEEDERS DISPLAY EARLY INTEREST IN STOCK CATTLE

In anticipation of an early run of stocked and feeder cattle to markets, and lighter supplies later in the fall, many corn belt cattle finishers who have feed on hand, are already planning to make their selections, says the weekly market bulletin issued by the Central Cooperative Association of St. Paul. A factor of no small importance in stimulating early purchasing of thin cattle, is that prices at near the lower levels in many years.

Because of the shortage of grass in the grazing areas, the marketward movement of thin cattle has started unseasonably early this year, and with stocker and feeder purchases thus far this year being comparatively small, prices have sagged. The June average price for stocker and feeder steers at South Saint Paul was $3.65. Last week the average price dropped to $3.25, that figure being nearly $1.00 below a year ago. Fat cattle prices recently have been as much as $2.00 per cwt above a year ago. An extremely wide price range prevails now contracted to an extremely narrow range a year ago.

October and November normally are the big months for stocker and feeder supplies, but because of the early marketing this year and the purchasing of many thousands of thin cattle in drouth stricken areas by the government, many in the trade feel that the peak of the fall run will be reached much earlier.

Shipments of stocker and feeder cattle from fourteen markets to country points has dropped from 767,859 head for the first of 1933 to 789,597 head for the same period this year.

Uncertainty of the corn crop outlook and the known shortage of hay and small grains, present a perplexing situation before cattle feeders, but those who have feed in hand or who have promise of a crop have an attractive market in which to buy feeding material.

The future fat cattle market cannot be forseen, but available figures indicate more promise for the future on fed cattle than for many months. If the fall pig crop drops 38 per cent as indicated by the government estimates, and production of other competing foods fall off as reported, beef should meet with a favorable market next year.

Silent Boycott of German Workers Destroy Nazi Controlled Co-ops.

The determined manner in which the German workers are resisting all attempts to convert them to the Nazi cause, is described in a letter to the TIS from Frankfurt a|M. The correspondent points to the decay of the powerful cooperatives and consumers societies whose capital and resources formerly totaled more than 250 million mark ($100,000,000 at present of course.)

Shortly after the seizure of control by the Nazis, the Socialists and trade unionists decided to boycott their former organizations with the result that the latter are now completely wrecked. All Nazi attempts to ward off the impending disaster, including even the recall of the ousted managers and sales representatives, have been unsuccessful. The workers in Frankfurt a|M. are buying ostentatiously in the Jewish-owned food store chain Schade & Fullgrabe which has fifty branches in the city alone.

Indicative of the spirit prevailing in the workers ranks was a recent meeting of consumers representatives which was addressed by the Nazi commissioner. At the end of his speech the commissioner called for a "Heil Hitler" to which only six out of 300 present responded. The chairman of the meeting was arrested but later freed.

DOCTORS ISSUE RULES FOR HOT WEATHER HEALTH

Here are a half a dozen does and donts issued today by the Public Health Education Committee of the Minnesota State Medical Association to help Minnesotans comfortably through the hot weather.

1. Take it easy. Let all but the absolutely essential tasks go until the temperature goes down a bit. Keep calm. Fretting merely causes more heat and trouble.

2. Wear light clothes, white preferable. Make them as few and as loose as possible.

3. Eat less meat and fat foods and more vegetables and fruits during hot weather. Housewives should plan meals that require a minimum of cooking both for their own sakes and to avoid extra heat of cooking in the house. Care should be taken, however, to wash raw vegetables and fruits well, since the season of summer intestinal troubles, most of which can probably be traced to contamination of food, is at hand.

4. Drink lots of water but avoid gulping down iced drinks when you are over-heated.

5. Keep out of the sun in the hottest part of the day. Old people are especially warned to stay quietly at home aand avoid all unnecessary exertion. Many of the the collapses reported daily in the papers occur among elderly or sick people and would never have happened if these people stayed sensibly under cover a home.

6. If there is a baby in the family strip him to his diapers; give him frequent baths, several a day if necessary. Be very careful to see that his food is kept fresh and uncontaminated. Babies are often the worst sufferers in hot weathers. They are hotter than their adult relatives when it is hot. Yet some anxious parents insist upon bundling them up for fear it might be cool later. Dress baby according to the weather as the weather changes. moment no mater how often the

Citizens State Bank Building, Thief River Falls, Minnesota

Subscription $1.00 per year in the United States.

"Entered as second class matter, April 27, 1932, at the post office at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, under Act of March 3, 1897."

The Boss of the Citizens Alliance of Minneapolis says that Governor Olson is wrong when he states that the alliance has hired stool pigeons to ferret on the labor unions. "We have hired no stool pigeons, we have hire special investigators" he said.

We'd say that a sewer rat would look just as scabby even if you were to call it by some other name.

President Von Hindenburg of Germany is dead. He was an old man and was probably ready to die anyway, but the circumstances under which he has been guarded by Hitler gunmen and the fact that press correspondents have been refused admission and theatened with arrest when they have approached the Von Hindenburg estate, leads one to believe that his death may have been hastened.

The war did things to Germany as well as to the other countries of the world. Something seems to have snapped somewhere. It is hard to reconcile the present Germany, ruled by a mad murderer with the Germany of a few years ago that led the world in arts, sciences and inventions.

When Governor Olson raided the strikers' headquarters, the Twin City dailies uttered a hearty "yea" and "amen" but when he raided the headquarters of the Citizens Alliance, the organization that has prevented a settlement of the strike, aafter the unions have accepted the proposals of the federal mediators, it is aall wrong. It makes a lot of difference with the Journal and Tribune boys whose calf is being butchered.

INTELLECTUAL PROSTITUTES

(Grand Forks Herald)

General Hugh S. Johnson likes to call people harsh names. He holds to the attitude of the tough traffic policeman feeling his power and his privilege to abuse the public. He wears the big, bright star; he carries the club, and he wants the world to know it.

In Chicago the other night, according to the Associated Press account of his talk, he called press critics of theNRA "the scum of intellectual prostitutes—the academic mercenaries who write for a controlled and dominated press."

This newspaper, along with the majority of the United States press, has held to the belief that the NRA program was entitled to a fair chance; that President Roosevelt was devoting all his energy and all his genius to the task of pulling this country out of its economic rut, and in the interest of fair play he should be given the fullest co-operation.

But that did not include the surrender of the right to suggest changes in the program; it did not mean that the press of the country should become a rubber stamp in General Johnson's hands.

There has betn criticism of the NRA program and General Johnson, but nowhere have we seen published anything so bitterly denunciatory of the vociferous general or the recovery program as was his Chicago criticism of his critics.

Apparently, in the language of the streets, he "can give it but he can't take it." Certaily honest, tempered criticism of a constructive nature is proper and desirable. We are not Hitlerized; we are not the press of Italy. But the general's army training bars criticism; a general is a high and lofty individual that should be above criticism.

Thus it is that when citizens of this country—just as loyal citizens as any government payroller ever was—finds cause to criticize part or all of the NRA through the common medium of public expression— the press— they become "the scum of intellectual prostitutes," and should be drawn and quartered.

General Johnson's "bully" attitude may have some merit in herding sheep-minded people into line, but until he tempers his criticism of those who would criticize him he falls short of demonstrating a capacity to carry out the job set for him in a truly American manner.

The following article appeared in the August 1st edition of the Minnesota Farm Bureau News:

> "Farm Bureau members are intelligent enough to realize that farmers cannot be legislated back into prosperity. They know that their business is too complex to depend for its existence on the legislative whims of politicians and they realize that if lawmakers could bring farmers security and riches merely by passing a few laws, they also could take his wealth away by legislative decree. Farm Bureau member know that they must grow good crops and produce good livestock if they are to succeed."

This article rings with incincerity, and should invoke the displeasure of every farmer member of the Farm Bureau. Mr. Farmer has done his part: He has tilled the virgin soil, has reaped harvests great enough to feed the nation and half the world, and because of his inability to organize to control legislation, he is not only selling his labor and produce at less than cost of production, but is being driven off his farm by organized capital! Does the editor of the Farm Bureau News think that legislation can not help a situation that exists through lack of distribution of the medium of exchange, when the law makers of our country are wholly responsible for the financial system under which we are being oppressed today? Change the monetary system to serve the people and many of our farm problems will be solved! For many years the Bureau leadership has taught the farmers how to increase production, now the organization is the channel thru which the federal government cuts down the "surplus" crop production. In the face of those facts can the leaders tell the farmer members of the bureau why legislation will not do them any good?—Russell anchor.

RACKETEER'S DESCENDENT MARRIES

(Minneapolis Labor Review)

One of America's largest slave beneficiaries was married recently. He is the descendent of one of America's first racketeers. We refer to J. J. Astor III.

It must have made young falks who have been compelled to postpone and postpone their marriages because they had no money or they had no job feel delighted to learn that Astor gave his bride a Cadillac automobile a diamond engagement ring worth $75,000, a $50,000 bracelet of diamonds and rubies, a deed to the half million dollar Astor estate known as Chetwode and in addition a cash settlement of half a million dollars.

Young Astor thinks the capitalistic system is the greatest system ever contrived. He is said to be opposed to trade unions.

Probaby he looks down on those bold business men who some call racketeers. He ought not for get that his ancestor John Jacob was one of the first to operate in the norhwest. He was a fur racketeer. If you were a trapper and you did not sell your furs to Astor you were bumped off.

Capitalism eventually makes anyone or their descendents respectable who gets the money regardless of how they get it.

When we thought of those wedding presents Astor gave his bride we thought of the millions of couples who want to marry and can't because they haven't the price, of the millions of children with poor teeth who will go through life with poor teeth because they haven't the price to get them fixed. Of millions sweltering in Astor owned tenements.

Dosen't is make you feel like singing "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

W. C. T. U. NOTES

TOO MUCH IS TOO MUCH!

In facetious vein a writer in the Literary Digest calls attention to the statement of the president of the Tavern Keepers' Association of Milwaukee, that there are too many taverns in that metropolis—nearly 2,500—and none of them making any money, since competition is so keen that some of the places are "selling eighteen-ounce glasses of draught beer for five cents each. Every time a customer asks for a nickel glass of Milwaukee beer," says the writer, "he is obliged to drink eighteen ounces of it, or, alternatively, to leave some of it, which is unthinkable. A dreadful situation. Time-tables and road maps for those who wish to sympathize with Milwaukee in person may be had at the usual places."

Those who know the result of cheap beer and plenty of it may be pardoned for wondering whether the above free advertisement is going to to be helpful for that city, which for some years has become nationally known for its civic planning and freedom from some of the ills to which other cities seem heir. There are many who under other conditions would be glad to visit that community, but who, if they are to be surrounded with throngs of those "sympathizers," might think it wiser and safer to use their "time-tables and road maps" to find their way elsewhere.

The Liberal Digest

MY ACCOUNT WITH THE UNKNOWN SOLDIER

—Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick—

(Originally condensed by the "Readers Digest" from "The Christion Century." The article below is a recondensation from the former.)

It was an inspired idea to deposit the body of an unrecognized soldier in the National Memorial of the Great War, and yet how strange it is! So this is the outcome of western civilization, which for nearly 2000 years has had Christ and in which democracy and scien cehave had their widest opportunity, that the whole nation pauses, its colorful pageantry centers, its patriotic oratory flourishes, around the unrecognizable body of a soldier blown to bits on the battlefield. That is strange.

It was the war lords themselves who picked him out as the symbol of war. So be it! As a symbol of war we accept him from their hands.

You may think that I, a Christian minister, did not know him. I knew him well! From the north of Scotland where they planted the sea with mines, to trenches of France, I lived with him and his fellows in dugouts, trenches, and on destroyers. They sent men like me to explain to the army the high meanings of war. I have an account to settle between my soul and the Unknown Soldier. I deceived myself, and then I deceived him, assuring him that good consequence could come out of the war. As a matter of hard-headed biological fact, what good can come out of war? Mad civilization, you cannot sacrifice on bloody alters the best of your breed and expect anything to compensate for that.

O. Unknown Soldier, Somtimes I think I hear you asking me: Where is this great, new era that the war was to create? They blew out my eyes in the Argonne. Is it because of that now from Arlington I strain them vainly to see the prosperity, plenty and peace of my children for which this mangled body was laid down?

Do I not have an account to settle between my soul and him? They sent men like me into the camps to touch those secret, holy springs within him so that with loyalty and self-sacrifice he might go out to war.

O war, I hate you most of all for this, that you lay your hands on the noblest elements in human character, with which we might make a heaven on earth, and you use them to make a hell on earth instead. You take our science, our loyalty, our unselfishness with which we might make the earth beautiful, and, using these our finest qualities, you make death fall from the sky and burst up from the sea and hurtle from unseen ambuscades 60 miles away; you blast fathers in trenches while you aare starving their children at home with blockades; and you so bedevil the world that 15 years after the armistice we cannot be sure who won the War, so sunk in the same disaster are victors and vanquished alike.

I will do the best I can to settle my account with the Unknown Soldier. I renounce war. I renounce war because of what it does to our own men. I have seen the long, long hospital trains filled with their mutilated bodies; I remember the maimed men for whom the War is not yet over. I renounce war because of what it compels us to do to our enemies, bombing their mothers in villages, starving their children, laughing over our coffee about every damnable thing we have been able to do to them. I renounce war for the undying hatreds it arouses, for the dictatorships it puts in the place of democracy, for the starvation that stalks after it.

I renounces war and never again, directly or indirectly, will I support another! O Unknown Soldier, in penitent reparation I make you that pledge.

Bronze Age Relics

That the urn and human bones found near Jedburgh, Scotland, belong to the late Bronze age, or about 1000 B. C., is the opinion of officials of the Scottish National Museum of Antiquities. The blackened condition of the bones indicates that the body had been cremated, cremation or incineration being common at that time.

STANLEY WATERLOO ON DOGS

(Contributed)

This poem was written for the erstwhile Chicago Daily Socialist on the occasion of the author's first visit to the editorial rooms shortly after the paper was started—latter part of 1900. It was republished in a December, 1908 issue, of same paper, by request.

What am I who mildly whimper?
What my standing and my creed?
I am a man and dog, my master; that is what I am indeed;
Just a whelp of human nature. I'm the lost one in the fog,
You have kennels and fast living; I am not as good as you,
Though one time flush earth gave living unto all alike—their due.
But the times have changed, my master. There are dogs that have their day,
And the others ah, and others! they may live in any way.
'Tis the difference in the kennels, the surroundings and the food;
You prize-winners were but wolves once—came by accident your good.
Give us kennels; give us breeding, and we'll have our nature's due.
'Tis the same stock we are sprung from; we can be the same as you.
In the tossing of the ages even dogs to foam are whirled.
Were you, are you, any better than we of the underworld?
But the underneath's appearing tho' upon the crest you ride.
Understand it! Don't forget it! It is we who make the tide.
If we come, my lords and masters, and come wildly, with a yelp,
So we come, my lords and masters because you have bred a whelp.
But we found the scent, my masters, and we know what we have found,
We're coming now, my masters, with our noses to the ground.
No white, slender neck of woman will red the guillotine;
And no gibbering, harmless noble in the tumbrel may be seen,
For the world is growing older, tho' its life be more intense,
And we underling, the bondsmen—God has given common sense.
Not with scythe and ax and bludgeon seek that for which we live;
Not with murder and rude vengeance seek what the world should give;
We but come, my moneyed masters, with the little thing you note—
Yes, with ever-growing thousands, we are coming with the vote.

Extravagant Killing

Not only is the cost of a war battle incredible, but often the cost of a "preliminary" is staggering. In the summer of 1917, before the third battle of Ypres had actually started, England staged a preliminary bombardment that used 107,000 tons of shells costing $100,000,000.—Collier's Weekly.

Nazi Megalomania Is Running Hog Wild

Merrily, the old game of circuses goes on in Hitler Germany. Preparations for the coming conventions of the Nazi party, which, according to Hitler's orders, will be held in Nuremberg "for times immemorial to come," are already under way. The authorities have begun the construction of an entirely new railroad station which will cost no less than 13 million Mark. Other improvements are also planned, among them the enlargement of the near-by Nazi exercising ground which is going to be the largest parade ground in the world. Considering that the Nazi party conventions are held only every second year, the waste of government funds by the Nazis in order to divert the grumbling people, is clearly evident.

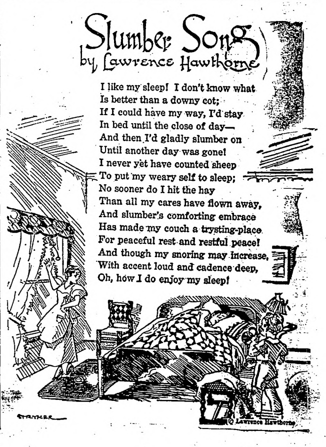
Slumber Song

by Lawrence Hawthorne



I like my sleep! I don't know what
Is better than a downy cot;
If I could have my way, I'd stay
In bed until the close of day—
And then I'd gladly slumber on Until another day was gone!
I never yet have counted sheep
To put my weary self to sleep;
No sooner do I hit the hay
Than all my cares have flown away,
And slumber's comforting embrace
Has made my couch a trysting-place
For peaceful rest and restful peace!
And though my snoring may increase,
With accent loud and cadence deep,
Oh, how I do enjoy my sleep!

SPECIAL EXHIBITS FOR STATE FAIR

Greatest Educational Program In 75 Years to be Presented This Year.

Three-quarters of a century of agricultural and industrial progress will be featured in the thousands of educational exhibits at the Minnesota State Fair Diamond Jubilee celebration, September 1 to 8.

The great 1934 Expositon marks the 75th anniversary of its founding. Since the first exhibition was held at Fort Snelling, displaying the primary tenets of pioneer farming to the wonderment of the populace, the Fair has marked the milestones on the march of agriculture.

Only a few head of livestock and meager exhibits of simple grains and grasses were displayed at the first Fair. This year more than 7,000 individual exhibitors will give a complete cross-section of up-to-the-minute agricultural methods as they are applied to Minnesota conditions.

Admission Again 25 Cents

With the vast expansion of the Fair the admission price remains the same, 25 cents, thus affording every citizen the opportunity of visiting one of State's leading educational institutions.

Premiums totalling nearly $75,000 are being offered as awards of merit in the various departments.

Livestock always has been the keystone of the exhibits and this year 6,000 head of cattle, horses, swine and sheep, the blue-bloods of the nation, will give visual demonstration of the results of long years of scientific and successful breeding.

Thirteen hundred boys and girls, the pick of the thousands active in 4-H Club work, will illustrate the far-reaching results of this laudable program. New projects will be introduced along with those that have been the foundation of the 4-H program for many years. Hundreds of demonstrations will be given daily ranging from canning, sewing and room furnishing to livestock breeding and feeding projects.

Record Displays Expected

In the Agricultural building, record county booth displays arranged in symmetrical beauty, will give visual evidence of the true diversity of farm crops. Hundreds of varieties of grains and grasses, which at early Fairs were thought impossible to grow in this rigorous climate, will be on display as a tribute to the hardy pioneers who developed them.

The Horticultural exhibits will show a score of new strains and varieties of fruits and flowers, exhibited for the first time, illustrative of Minnesota's increasing importance in orchard and garden.

Machinery displays will differ radically from those of the first Fair. In three-quarters of a century, the flail and sickle have become outmoded and have been replaced by power machinery that has revolutionized agriculture.

This year, by way of contrast to old methods, and antiquated equipment, there will be a complete display of modern farm machinery covering more than 60 acres showing the epochal strides that have been made toward a more profitable agriculture.

The host of educational exhibits are designed to be of interest to every member of the family. Handicraft needlework and cookery displays, 5,000 of them, will be featured in the Woman's activities building. There will be a $1,000,000 art show, a display of prime meat cuts, choice butter and cheese, succulent honey and the bees that produce it, home appliances, electrical equipment, an exhibit developed by the school children of the state, and thousands of others.

These exhibits, covering every imaginable field, are what make the Minnesota State Fair the outstanding educational institution for the masses.

Gay Nineties Period Featured In State Fair Night Spectacle

Featured in the "Gay Nineties" episode of the Diamond Jubilee Night Show at the Minnesota State Fair, September 1 to 8, will be the famed Crazy Carpenters, hilarious comedians. Their idiotic antics make these artists of pantomime the most famous comedy troupe in the world.

German Railroad System Undermined by Nazi

The German railroads, considered once the best and mose efficiently organized railway system in the whole world, have greatly suffered during the seventeen months of Nazi regime. A confidential survey conducted among reliable German railroad engineers and workers, underscores the growing number of railroad accidents and the corresponding heavy losses of life and limb. Special attention is called to the circumstances surrounding the recent accidents at Blankenburg, Langdeel, Weissenfels, Hamberg, Pforzheim and Karlsruhe which cost the lives of fifteen men and crippled more than 100 others.

According to old German railroaders, new and conflicting orders are given without consulting the personnel. Consequently, the over worked men are unable to comply with the requirements. The railroad directorate also tries to combat the growing motor car competition by speeding up the run of the trains without regard for actual conditions work and men. Most harmful to the railroads has been the inclusion of the railroad employees and workers into the Nazi military formations. The men are weakened by constant exercises but those who dared to abstrain from drilling activities, have been punished with the loss of work and sent to concentration camps. Matters finally became so serious that the directorate issued peremptory orders against further participation.

SUPPLIES INDICATE HIGH FUTURE PRICES ON FARM COMMODITIES

The supply factor in markets on agricultural commodities indicates a promising future as far as prices are concerned. There is a small grain and feed crop in sight, production of meat animals is being curtailed, and storage holdings of meats are rapidly disappearing, says the weekly market bulletin isued by the Central Co-operative Association of So. St. Paul.

Looking towards the future however it must be remembered that we have 16 million people on relief rolls, a large amount of unemployed capital, and business and industry in a complicated condition. The effectiveness of demand, under these conditions, therefore, cannot be estimated.

This year's crops have been pulled down to probably the lowest level on record. Wheat is estimated at 484 million bushels while the estimated domestic requirements are around 625 million bushels. A good many years have produced over 3,000,000,000 bushels of corn, but this year's crop promises only around 2,113,000,000 bushels. The oats crop is figured at 568,000,000 bushels or less than half the five-year average. Rye at 17,200,000 bushels also is less than half a normal crop.

While beef stocks in storage houses of the country show 10,000,000 lbs increase over a year ago, they are slightly smaller than the five-year average. Pork stocks are 133,000,000 lbs. less than a year ago and approximately that much below the five-year average. Lard stocks are decreasing from the peak of a few months ago, but are 10,000,000 lbs. greater than a year ago. Stocks of frozen lamb and mutton are 20 per cent and 46 per cent smaller respectively than a year ago, and the five-year average.

FOLLOWERS OF HITLER SOCIALISM AWAKENING

Shortly before the Hitler-directed storm of violence against his own leftists adherents broke loose, the organ of the German Labor Front, "Arbeitertum," contained two articles which are characteristic of the real mood prevailing in the ranks of Nazi labor. Both are directed against the employers who are accused of having ruined Hitler's hopes of class conciliation.

The author of the first article, G. Starcke, takes issue with another Nazi, Paul Osthold, who had accused him of making "irresponsible statements" be had said that "the attitude of reaction itself has given an impetus to Marxism." Starcke again repeats his charges against "retrogressives" and "reactionaries" and is so outspoken that one almost understands the sudden fear of Hitler and his industrialist backers.

In the second article, the Nazi labor functionaary, Piontek, reports the success of special circular sent out to several thousand employers, asking them for drafts of their factory rules under the new Nazi labor legislation. The employers enjoy such a good time without any factory rules that, as Piontek says, "at least three quarters of these employers have not even bothered to answer at all;" some have had the impudence to send in wage agreements from the years 1919–1928, reminding Piontek of the "disgusting idiocies" perpetrated under the Weimar Republic. Only one of the drafts received was fit for use. "At the risk of being called a Marxist by unteachable old fossils," Piontek concludes with an appeal to the employers "to come round to the National-Socialist way of thinking. If as a result of years of materialist infection you can no longer grasp idealism and if your hearts are no longer able to recognize the workers as your brothers, then there is nothing to be done. The finer feelings cannot be forced, but you might at least have enough sense to look after your own interests and not sabotage the new law."

No wonder that the Hitler regime found it necessary to liquidate the critics of capitalism in ts own ranks Engel, the Nazi labor leader, who only a few weeks ago had fired a tremendous broadside against German capitalism, was one of the first to be shot by orders of Adolph Hitler.

LEARN SNAKE BITE FIRST AID DOCTORS ADVISE

First aid for snake bite should be investigated by every tourist and vacationist, according to a bulletin of the Public Health Education Committee of the Minnesota State Medical Association issued today.

An encounter with poisonous snakes is a possibility for those who get off the beaten path in many parts of the United States, even in certain parts of Minnesota, according to the doctors, and prompt, intelligent first aid measures will prevent tragedy.

The first thing to do is to apply a tourniquet, that is a tight binder above the bite—if it is on the arm or leg as it usually is. This tourniquet should be loosened for a few seconds every five minutes in order not to interfere too much with the circulation After that the wound should be made to bleed, each fang hold being opened by means of a sharp knife. Suction by mouth can then be applied to draw out as much as possible of the venom. Fortunately snake venom has little, if any effect when it is swallowed.

A week stimulant such as coffee or tea may be given to the victim, pending the doctor's arrival, but no alchol. Alchol is particularly dangerous after snake bites.

The effectiveness of an anti-venom serum against rattle snake, copperhead or water moccasin snake venom has been amply demonstrated in the last few years The doctor will undoubtedly arrange to inject this serum as soon as possible after he arrives. The serum must be administered within 24 hours, at the latest, after the bite.

OLSON LAUDS PROGRESS OF SAFETY MOVEMENT

Gov. Olson announced today that he was highly pleased with the manner in which county commissioners other county officers, city officials and civic leaders have taken hold in the state-wide movement seeking to control traffic fatalities in Minnesota.

"As I have locked over from nearly 100 communities organized in the interests of public safety in Minnesota.," said Gov. Olson, "I have been impressed with the businesslike way the city and county public safety committees have organized and begun activities in all parts of the state to prevent traffic fataliies.

"Many of these committees have bgeun by looking over the territory to note where accidents were happening most frequently and they have not only tried to find the causes, but have taken safety measures to prevent similar accidents from happening in the future.

"In one community, the safety committee passed a resolution in favor of law enforcement with respect to drunken drivers and sent copies of the resolution to all the district judges to show disapproval of the highways being made unsafe by intoxicated drivers. Sentiment is unanimous on this point, but there is room for and need of change of public attraffic regulations in general. Present tendency is to condone too extensively violations of the law as they pertain to the operation of motor vehicles in comparison with violations of other kinds.

"Some committees, I note, are having maps made and spots where accidents occur are being marked for study as to causes for corrections of local conditions contributing to accidents, and any other action that may suggest itself.

"The safety committee of one county discovered there was a laxness about reporting fatal automobile accidents and steps have been taken there, as a result, toward better assurance of traffic fatalities being reported.

"Some counties have erected bulletins in prominent places for displaying of traffic safety posters, particularly those furnished by the safety division of the SERA. One town has erected twenty such display boards."

Governor Olson said he congratulated the chairmen of each local public safety committee that is active and reported the committee's activities, as this is stimulating and encouraging to all.

"We are making good progress towards systematic effort to control traffic fatalities in this state," the governor commented. "It is my opinion that anything started with such serious purpose as this traffic accident control movement, and organized for business with regular meeting dates set, and mapped plan of work, cannot fail to put Minnesota before other states in the way of safety of the highways."

Drouth May Boost Tax Delinquency in State

Fear that the drouth in Minnesota this season, with reduced production, may result in a rise in tax delinquency, unless better prices make up for the shortage, is being expressed in many quarters. The average delinquency in the counties now is almost 20 per cent.

Tax levying boards should use care, especially at a time when unfavorable crop conditions threaten farmer incomes. A serious situation should not be disregarded. We must reckon with conditions as they are, and not as we hope they will be. The wise thing to do is not to make higher levies than can be paid by potential lower incomes, Norman A. Borgen, secretary of the Minnesota Taxpayers Association, stated.

SUPPLIES INDICATE HIGH FUTURE PRICES ON FARM COMMODITIES

The supply factor in markets on agricultural commodities indicates a promising future as far as prices are concerned. There is a small grain and feed crop in sight, production of meat animals is being curtailed, and storage holdings of meats are rapidly disappearing, says the weekly market bulletin isued by the Central Co-operative Association of So. St. Paul.

Looking towards the future however it must be remembered that we have 16 million people on relief rolls, a large amount of unemployed capital, and business and industry in a complicated condition. The effectiveness of demand, under these conditions, therefore, cannot be estimated.

This year's crops have been pulled down to probably the lowest level on record. Wheat is estimated at 484 million bushels while the estimated domestic requirements are around 625 million bushels. A good many years have produced over 3,000,000,000 bushels of corn, but this year's crop promises only around 2,113,000,000 bushels. The oats crop is figured at 568,000,000 bushels or less than half the five-year average. Rye at 17,200,000 bushels also is less than half a normal crop.

While beef stocks in storage houses of the country show 10,000,000 lbs increase over a year ago, they are slightly smaller than the five-year average. Pork stocks are 133,000,000 lbs. less than a year ago and approximately that much below the five-year average. Lard stocks are decreasing from the peak of a few months ago, but are 10,000,000 lbs. greater than a year ago. Stocks of frozen lamb and mutton are 20 per cent and 46 per cent smaller respectively than a year ago, and the five-year average.

FOLLOWERS OF HITLER SOCIALISM AWAKENING

Shortly before the Hitler-directed storm of violence against his own leftists adherents broke loose, the organ of the German Labor Front, "Arbeitertum," contained two articles which are characteristic of the real mood prevailing in the ranks of Nazi labor. Both are directed against the employers who are accused of having ruined Hitler's hopes of class conciliation.

The author of the first article, G. Starcke, takes issue with another Nazi, Paul Osthold, who had accused him of making "irresponsible statements" be had said that "the attitude of reaction itself has given an impetus to Marxism." Starcke again repeats his charges against "retrogressives" and "reactionaries" and is so outspoken that one almost understands the sudden fear of Hitler and his industrialist backers.

In the second article, the Nazi labor functionaary, Piontek, reports the success of special circular sent out to several thousand employers, asking them for drafts of their factory rules under the new Nazi labor legislation. The employers enjoy such a good time without any factory rules that, as Piontek says, "at least three quarters of these employers have not even bothered to answer at all;" some have had the impudence to send in wage agreements from the years 1919–1928, reminding Piontek of the "lisgusting idiocies" perpetrated under the Weimar Republic. Only one of the drafts received was fit for use. "At the risk of being called a Marxist by unteachable old fossils," Piontek concludes with an appeal to the employers "to come round to the National-Socialist way of thinking. If as a result of years of materialist infection you can no longer grasp idealism and if your hearts are no longer able to recognize the workers as your brothers, then there is nothing to be done. The finer feelings cannot be forced, but you might at least have enough sense to look after your own interests and not sabotage the new law."

No wonder that the Hitler regime found it necessary to liquidate the critics of capitalism in ts own ranks. Engel, the Nazi labor leader, who only a few weeks ago had fired a tremendous broadside against German capitalism, was one of the first to be shot by orders of Adolph Hitler.

LEARN SNAKE BITE FIRST AID DOCTORS ADVISE

First aid for snake bite should be investigated by every tourist and vacationist, according to a bulletin of the Public Health Education Commmittee of the Minnesota State Medical Association issued today.

An encounter with poisonous snakes is a possibility for those who get off the beaten path in many parts of the United States, even in certain parts of Minnesota, according to the doctors, and prompt, intelligent first aid measures will prevent tragedy.

The first thing to do is to apply a tourniquet, that is a tight binder above the bite—if it is on the arm or leg as it usually is. This tourniquet should be loosened for a few seconds every five minutes in order not to interfere too much with the circulation. After that the wound should be made to bleed, each fang hold being opened by means of a sharp knife. Suction by mouth can then be applied to draw out as much as possible of the venom. Fortunately snake venom has little, if any effect when it is swallowed.

A week stimulant such as coffee or tea may be given to the victim, pending the doctor's arrival, but no alchol. Alchol is particularly dangerous after snake bites.

The effectiveness of an anti-venom serum against rattle snake, copperhead or water moccasin snake venom has been amply demonstrated in the last few years The doctor will undoubtedly arrange to inject this serum as soon as possible after he arrives. The serum must be administered within 24 hours, at the latest, after the bite.

OLSON LAUDS PROGRESS OF SAFETY MOVEMENT

Gov. Olson announced today that he was highly pleased with the manner in which county commissioners other county officers, city officials and civic leaders have taken hold in the state-wide movement seeking to control traffic fatalities in Minnesota.

"As I have locked over from nearly 100 communities organized in the interests of public safety in Minnesota.," said Gov. Olson, "I have been impressed with the businesslike way the city and county public safety committees have organized and begun activities in all parts of the state to prevent traffic fataliies.

"Many of these committees have bgeun by looking over the territory to note where accidents were happening most frequently and they have not only tried to find the causes, but have taken safety measures to prevent similar accidents from happening in the future.

"In one community, the safety committee passed a resolution in favor of law enforcement with respect to drunken drivers and sent copies of the resolution to all the district judges to show disapproval of the highways being made unsafe by intoxicated drivers. Sentiment is unanimous on this point, but there is room for and need of change of public at traffic regulations in general. Present tendency is to condone too extensively violations of the law as they pertain to the operation of motor vehicles in comparison with violations of other kinds.

"Some committees, I note, are having maps made and spots where accidents occur are being marked for study as to causes for corrections of local conditions contributing to accidents, and any other action that may suggest itself.

"The safety committee of one county discovered there was a laxness about reporting fatal automobile accidents and steps have been taken there, as a result, toward better assurance of traffic fatalities being reported.

"Some counties have erected bulletins in prominent places for displaying of traffic safety posters, particularly those furnished by the safety division of the SERA. One town has erected twenty such display boards."

Governor Olson said he congratulated the chairman of each local public safety committee that is active and reported the committee's activities, as this is stimulating and encouraging to all.

"We are making good progress towards systematic effort to control traffic fatalities in this state," the governor commented. "It is my opinion that anything started with such serious purpose as this traffic accident control movement, and organized for business with regular meeting dates set, and mapped plan of work, cannot fail to put Minnesota before other states in the way of safety of the highways."

Drouth May Boost Tax Delinquency in State

Fear that the drouth in Minnesota this season, with reduced production, may result in a rise in tax delinquency, unless better prices make up for the shortage, is being expressed in many quarters. The average delinquency in the counties now is almost 20 per cent.

Tax levying boards should use care, especially at a time when unfavorable crop conditions threaten farmer incomes. A serious situation should not be disregarded. We must reckon with conditions as they are, and not as we hope they will be. The wise thing to do is not to make higher levies than can be paid by potential lower incomes, Norman A. Borgen, secretary of the Minnesota Taxpayers Association, stated.

KEEP THE FLOCKS CONFINED SAYS TURKEY EXPERT

Dr. W. A. Billings Warns Turkey Raisers Against Germ Dangers

Farmers who have raised their turkeys thus far this season in confinement on clean ground should avoid releasing them now. To release them will be to expose them to blackhead and worms, the scourges of the turkey business," says Dr. W. A. Billings, extension veterinarian, University Farm, St. Paul.

"Black germs and worm eggs lie dormant in the soil where turkeys and other poultry have been allowed to run," Dr. Billings says. "The only way to keep young turkeys from picking up these germs and parasites is to raise them on ground where no turkeys or chickens have been kept for at least two year, and then to change their yards at least once a month. Feeding an drinking utensils also should be kept clean. The flock, of course, should be fed balanced rations kept before them in hoppers. No medicine is necessary—just frequent change of yard on clean ground at least 200 yeads from the farm buildings.

"Farmers who have not practiced these methods and find their turkeys dying from blackhead or worms will do well to confine their birds immediately and change the yards at least once a week for the first three week. after that, once a month will be often enough.

"Tapeworms may be detected by observing the droppings from pieces of the worms expelled and by opening a sick bird or two and examining the contents of the intestines. The tapeworms look like tangled masses of spaghetti. They can be dstinguished from common round worms, frequently found in turkeys, by their shape, which is longer, slimmer and less pointed than that of round worms. Tapeworms may be destroyed by dosing the turkeys internally with Kamala, but this is a dangerous drug to give to turkeys less than half grown. Round worms may be eliminated by dosing each bird with nicotine sulphate capsules."

Chicken Shooting to Be Opened in This County, Half Days

Open season on prairie chickens and grouse were set last Thursday at t meeting of the Minnesota Conservation Commission. The commission, which consists of John R. Foley, Wabasha; Ernest R. Reiff, St. Paul; Richard Bailey, Virginia; William Erickson, Red Wing; and Frank Yetka of Cloquet, wll meet again in two weeks to adopt a fnal schedule on upland game.

It was decided by the commission that all upland game shooting be restricted to half days only, from no n until sunset. The commission decided also to co-ordinate all upland game shooting with the exception of prairie chickens which the law provides may be taken between Sept. 16 and Oct. 1st.

The commission ordered half-dav shooting for nine days on prairie chickens, restricted to 13 nothern counties, starting at noon Sept. 16 and ending at sunset Sept. 24. The bag limit was fixed at 6 per day with 12 in possession. Under the law not more than 18 may be taken during the season. The bag limit is the same as last year and is less than the law permits. Under the law nine daily may be taken with 18 in possession.

Communists Hold Meet at Bemidji. Choose a Candidate for Congress

For the first time in the history of this section of northern Minnesota, a Communist Party Conference and convention of the Ninth Congressional District was held August 11 at Bemidji in the Beltrami County Courthouse. Its purpose was to inaugurate the congressional campaign of the fifteen counties which comprise the Ninth Congressional District, and was attended by 31 delegates representing various counties of the district, according to an announcement by E. W. Hannah of Bemidji.

Ed. C. Baumann, of Bagley, was selected as the party's candidate for congress.

The Communist Party, convinced of the inadequacy of the Farmer-Labor Republican, and the Democratic Party programs, comes forward in this election with a platform of direct demands based upon the needs of the workers and impoverished farmers of this state, the announcement states. Issues include: adopoitn of the Workers Unemployment and Social Insurance Bill, adoption of the Farmer's Emergency Relief Bill, a demand for tax exemptions on the homes of unemployed and part-time workers, for the full payment of the Soliedrs' Bonus, the abolition of the CCC and transient camps, free clothing and hot lunches for the school children of the unemployed and poor farmers.

Experienced Sweet Clover Man Warns of Danger of Losing Seed Thru Shattering

Fred Forsberg, expert on grass seeds, cleaning and hulling, issued a few pointers to the farmers thru the columns of the Forum today, cautioning them on the danger of losing a large part of their crop thru improper handling in the cutting and threshing. "Much grass seed never reaches the granary because the farmer does not realize how easily it shells out, which is especially true of sweet clover," Mr. Forsberg says. He cautiones the farmers not to cut their sweet clover on hot, dry days, but if necessary to cut in the evening or at night. "A box should be attached to the binder," Mr. Forsberg says, "in order to save the vast amount of seed that shells in the cutting operation." Mr. Forsberg also points out that it is unnecessary to shock the sweet clover because the stubble is stiff enough to keep the bundle off the ground until it is picked up for threshing. Unnecessary handling will only result in excessive shelling, he stated.

Mr. Forsberg's letter follows:

Editor of te Fhorum:

I want to take the liberty of offering a few suggestions to the farmers in regard to the handling and harvesting of cloverseed and other grass seeds.

During the past 40 years I have grown all kinds of grass seeds, and by practical experience found some methods that I believe will be helpful to the farmers in assisting them in saving their clover seed.

The greatest loss in harvesting clover seed is thru shattering, either by wind or by careless handling. In some extreme cases as much as 75 percent of the seed is lost before it reaches the farmer's granary. It has been my experience that if the following precautions are observed, it will help to prevent loss.

Avoid cutting on a hot, dry day. Cut when the dew is on, or at night. Do not let the seed get too ripe. Do not shock the clover, as it will dry just as well left on the stubble The stubble is tall and stiff enough to prevent the bundles from making contact with the ground. Bear in mind that you must avoid shattering, and the less the seed is handled, the more seed you will eventually have in the bag.

A long box can be fitted to the binder under the packers; this should save several hundred pounds of seed if you have any quantity to harvest. The box should be made so that it can be easily withdrawn and emptied.

Oiling the canvasses of the binder with linseed oil will be found useful to prevent dampness from damaging the canvasses, and they will wear a great deal longer.

When threshing, always use tight bottom racks and spread a large canvass under the feeder of the threshing machine so that the shattered seed can be picked up, reducing the loss to a minimum.

If the above suggestions are followed out it will make a worthwhile saving of seed that otherwise would be a total loss. Especially worth while this year when seed is a good price.

AAA IS BOON TO LIVESTOCK SAYS CHIEF WALLACE

Secretary of Agricultural Points Out Healthy Shift to Forage Crops

More livestock feed will be produced this year and saved from last year's crop under the Agricultural Adjustment Administration's programs, than would have veen possible if the adjustment had not existed, says Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture.

The adjustment programs, he points out, have brought about an extensive shift from cash crops to forage and pasture plantings. Since these crops on the whole, are more drouth resistant than those they replaced, the result has been a net gain in crop volume produced.

Even the "contracted acres", on which contract signers are receiving adjustable payments from the government, will contribute their full share to the production of forage and pasture crops this year, Setecrary Wallace says, since the administration removed practically all planting and harvesting restrictions on such acres as soon as it became apparent that the drouth would be a serious factor in crop production. Recent surveys have shown that almost 90 percent of the "contracted acres" in all parts of the United States has been planted to forage crops.

"Moreover, much corn has been saved and will be saved this year as a result of the corn loan and corn-hog reduction programs," the secretary says.

"The small pigs slaughtered last fall in the government's emergency pig-buying program, would have consumed at least 50,000,000 bushels of corn if they had been fed to full market weight. The corn loan program by enabling farmers to hold their corn, in all probability resulted in our having at least 50,000,000 more of corn on hand than otherwise would have been the case. The corn-hog reduction program proper, because it has reduced hog production to a great extent than it has reduced corn acreage, will probably save an additional 84,000,000 bushels of corn this year.

"This corn, and the additional tonnage produced this year will enable farmers to save many valuable domestic animals which might otherwise have to be marketed or allowed to starve because of the drouth."

First Road Work From New Funds To Be Let Soon

Highway construction projects to cost more than one million dollars will be advertised by the State Highway department next week if an authorization expected from the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads is received in time, according to a department announcement.

Plans for the work are complete, and the highway department is ready to call for bids on the projects immediately on receipt of the necessary federal approval. The projects will probably include bituminous surfacing, concrete paving, grading and other types of construction. It is hoped that contracts caan be let by the end of August.

This million dollar letting will be the first from the $5,400,000 road appropriation granted Minnesota by the last congress. Work financed by this appropriation will begin about the time that most of the construction under last year's $10,600,000 grant is completed.

H. L. Gunn Joins Local N. R. S. Staff this Week

H. L. Gunn, formerly of the Columbia Heights office of the National Re-Employment Service, has been transferred to this district and will work between the local office and the East Gand Forks office of the NRS. At present, he is opening up the NRS office at East Grand Forks, together with Einar Aakre, who works as farm placement supervisor at Fergus Falls Mr. Gunn will be temporarily located in this district.

TRUCK "CHISLERS" ARE FINED FOR OVERLOADS

Attempts at "chiseling" have proved costly to a number of truck owners using the Y license, says a highway department bulletin. Officers of the Highway patrol are continually checking on the weights carried by Ytrucks, and a dozen truckers who over-loaded their vehicles have been fined in the past few days in various parts of the state.

When truckers are found to be carrying more than the stated amount permitted by their Y license, they not only are taken into court and fined, but are also required to pay heavy license penalties. In a typical case a Minneapolis trucker was hauling 22,900 pounds in a vehicle authorized to acrry only 16,000 pounds. He was fined $50 and had to pay $35 additional in license penalties.

275,000 Persons on State Fun Program

St. Paul, Aug. 15,—Minnesota's relief program is not confined to hard work projects.

It has a recreational and leisure time program, presented virtually in every county of the state, which has been participated in by more than 275,000 persons and which has proved one of the most popular supervised activities of the State Emergency Relief Administration.

In his report to Governor Floyd B. Olson, State relief administrator, G. C. Tuttule, director of the recreational program, stated that of this number of participants 104,938 were boys 83,185 girls and that the "gallery" numbered about 25,000. Music, dramatics and 4-H club activities drew 87,141 persons, mostly adults, and 2,476 group meetings were held thruout the state.

The program has resulted in the approval of projects for the construction of playgrounds, golf courses, athletic fields, skaating rinks, ski slides, etc.

E.R.A. Nutrition Worker Demonstrates Novel Device for Drying of Vegetables

Miss Bena Johnson, local investigating nutritionist for the ERA, has devised an unusual and most satisfactory method of drying products obtained from the community gardens which will be dried and distributed in packages of one and two pounds to poor relief clients during the coming winter.

The tunnel drier is a 2' by 6' rectangular box constructed of wood. It has 12 racks three inches apart, which have a capacity of 15 pounds of the product to be dried. The drying process takes from four to five hours at a temperature of 110 degrees F., with a thermometer placed at the drier to insure temperature correctness. There are metal wings on the sides, and a metal sheet on the top to drive the air current form the fan upward. Two kerosene stoves supply the dry air, which is driven in a direct current through the drier by means of electric fans, which keep up the circulation and remove the moist air.

Previous to being put in the drier, the product is first steamed from 2 to 3 minutes, resulting in the air being driven out of the product, setting the color, checking bacterial growth, making a better finished product which retains its original food value.

Miss Johnson states that there are 1½ acres of navy beans, 4 acres of peas, and 5 acres of corn which will be dried. Vegetables such as greens spinach, and tomatoes are to be preserved by canning, while root vegetables will be stored. Further yield of the community gardens includes beets, carrots, rutabagoes, and 26 acres of potatoes.

Splendid cooperation among the 16 relief workers employed on this project has brought fine results. Work began on Friday morning, aand will undoubtedly continue for the next five weeks. To date, 55 pounds of peas have been dried by this method.

The electric fans used in the work were contributed [illegible] Mr. [illegible] while the kerosene stoves were donated by the Oen Mercantile Company and the Kelly Hardware Company, the latter also contributing the pressure gasoline stove used for demonsrations.

COUNCIL AGAIN CONFERS WITH POWER OFFICIALS

Possibility of Getting Contract With a Cancellation Clause Is Discussed

Afurther discussion of the power situation and possibilities of a hook-up with the highline running east of the city was indulged in by the council and representatives of the Interstate Power company at the regular meeting in the council chambers Tuesday evening.

A strong objection to entering a contract with the power company for a five year hook-up has developed in the city and and the council and administration is somewhat on the spot. Reserve power is apparently necessary in order to meet the demand for current and to guarantee the patrons against cessation in the service, yet this is contrary to the statements and recommendations made during the campaign last fall by the members of the council and Mayor Tungseth. Last week the mayor in a public statement in the Times apparently opposed a five year contract. However, members of the progressive group who received a decided licking in the election last fall point out that the mayor has consistently played for just the kind of a predicament that the city finds itself in. They also point out that he declared himself against the extension of the hours in the beer ordinance, but that the situation was maneuvered to become law anyway. They also point out that he promised to yeto the fire truck resolution but that after an eleventh hour conference with alderman McFarland he signed the instrument. Now they claim that his apparent opposition to the contract is hookum and camouflage.

President of the council Peter Myrom asked Leonard Peterson, Power company representative if it would be possible to secure a contract with a cancellation clause, as it might be possible that the city would be able to use water power or make arrangement for another diesel unit before the five years are expired. Mr. Peterson discounted the chances of getting any water power stating that he has observed the river for a great many years and the chances of getting power from it within the next five years would be pretty small.

He did not know whether a contract

CORN-HOG FUND TO BE PAID SOON

St. Paul—Adjustment payments totaling about $11,000,000 will have been made to Minnesota corn and hog raisers by Sept. 1, Andrew Boss, University Farm, state director of production control for the AAA, reported. Already the corn-hog committees in 40 Minnesota counties have completed their work of adjusting producers' allotment claims to the county quotas, Mr. Boss says, and in other counties this work will be finished within the next 10 days. When this work is done, the commitees will present the contracts to the applicants for their final signatures and then forward them to Washington for payment. Ten counties already have completed this final step.

This procedure pertains only to regular payment contracts, requiring the applicants' acceptance of allotment adjustments before they become valid. These contracts constitute about 70 per cent of all Minnesota contracts. The majority of counties already have forwarded to Washington their early payment contracts, in which the producer waives the formality of approving allotment adjustments. Payments made on these contracts to Aug. 1 tcaled $2,354,203.15. In addition, $65,000 in payments on regular payment contracts—the first of this kind received in Minnesota—are now being distributed to 600 Dakota county contract signers.

KEEP THE FLOCKS CONFINED SAYS TURKEY EXPERT

Dr. W. A. Billings Warns Turkey Raisers Against Germ Dangers

Farmers who have raised their turkeys thus far this season in confinement on clean ground should avoid releasing them now. To release them will be to expose them to blackhead and worms, the scourges of the turkey business," says Dr. W. A. Billings, extension veterinarian, University Farm, St. Paul.

"Black germs and worm eggs lie dormant in the soil where turkeys and other poultry have been allowed to run," Dr. Billings says. "The only way to keep young turkeys from picking up these germs and parasites is to raise them on ground where no turkeys or chickens have been kept for at least two year, and then to change their yards at least once a month. Feeding an drinking utensils also should be kept clean. The flock, of course, should be fed balanced rations kept before them in hoppers. No medicine is necessary—just frequent change of yard on clean ground at least 200 yeads from the farm buildings.

"Farmers who have not practiced these methods and find their turkeys dying from blackhead or worms will do well to confine their birds immediately and change the yards at least once a week for the first three week. after that, once a month will be often enough.

"Tapeworms may be detected by observing the droppings from pieces of the worms expelled and by opening a sick bird or two and examining the contents of the intestines. The tapeworms look like tangled masses of spaghetti. They can be dstinguished from common round worms, frequently found in turkeys, by their shape, which is longer, slimmer and less pointed than that of round worms. Tapeworms may be destroyed by dosing the turkeys internally with Kamala, but this is a dangerous drug to give to turkeys less than half grown. Round worms may be eliminated by dosing each bird with nicotine sulphate capsules."

Chicken Shooting to Be Opened in This County, Half Days

Open season on prairie chickens and grouse were set last Thursday at t meeting of the Minnesota Conservation Commission. The commission, which consists of John R. Foley, Wabasha; Ernest R. Reiff, St. Paul; Richard Bailey, Virginia; William Erickson, Red Wing; and Frank Yetka of Cloquet, wll meet again in two weeks to adopt a fnal schedule on upland game.

It was decided by the commission that all upland game shooting be restricted to half days only, from no n until sunset. The commission decided also to co-ordinate all upland game shooting with the exception of prairie chickens which the law provides may be taken between Sept. 16 and Oct. 1st.

The commission ordered half-dav shooting for nine days on prairie chickens, restricted to 13 nothern counties, starting at noon Sept. 16 and ending at sunset Sept. 24. The bag limit was fixed at 6 per day with 12 in possession. Under the law not more than 18 may be taken during the season. The bag limit is the same as last year and is less than the law permits. Under the law nine daily may be taken with 18 in possession.

Communists Hold Meet at Bemidji. Choose a Candidate for Congress

For the first time in the history of this section of northern Minnesota, a Communist Party Conference and convention of the Ninth Congressional District was held August 11 at Bemidji in the Beltrami County Courthouse. Its purpose was to inaugurate the congressional campaign of the fifteen counties which comprise the Ninth Congressional District, and was attended by 31 delegates representing various counties of the district, according to an announcement by E. W. Hannah of Bemidji.

Ed. C. Baumann, of Bagley, was selected as the party's candidate for congress.

The Communist Party, convinced of the inadequacy of the Farmer-Labor. Republican, and the Democratic Party programs, comes forward in this election with a platform of direct demands based upon the needs of the workers and impoverished farmers of this state, the announcement states.

Issues include: adopoitn of the Workers Unemployment and Social Insurance Bill, adoption of the Farmer's Emergency Relief Bill, a demand for tax exemptions on the homes of unemployed and part-time workers, for the full payment of the Soliedrs' Bonus, the abolition of the CCC and transient camps, free clothing and hot lunches for the school children of the unemployed and poor farmers.

Experienced Sweet Clover Man Warns of Danger of Losing Seed Thru Shattering

Fred Forsberg, expert on grass seeds, cleaning and hulling, issued a few pointers to the farmers thru the columns of the Forum today, cautioning them on the danger of losing a large part of their crop thru improper handling in the cutting and threshing. "Much grass seed never reaches the granary because the farmer does not realize how easily it shells out, which is especially true of sweet clover," Mr. Forsberg says. He cautiones the farmers not to cut their sweet clover on hot, dry days, but if necessary to cut in the evening or at night. "A box should be attached to the binder," Mr. Forsberg says, "in order to save the vast amount of seed that shells in the cutting operation." Mr. Forsberg also points out that it is unnecessary to shock the sweet clover because the stubble is stiff enough to keep the bundle off the ground until it is picked up for threshing. Unnecessary handling will only result in excessive shelling, he stated.

Mr. Forsberg's letter follows:

Editor of te Fhorum:

I want to take the liberty of offering a few suggestions to the farmers in regard to the handling and harvesting of cloverseed and other grass seeds.

During the past 40 years I have grown all kinds of grass seeds, and by practical experience found some methods that I believe will be helpful to the farmers in assisting them in saving their clover seed.

The greatest loss in harvesting clover seed is thru shattering, either by wind or by careless handling. In some extreme cases as much as 75 percent of the seed is lost before it reaches the farmer's granary. It has been my experience that if the following precautions are observed, it will help to prevent loss.

Avoid cutting on a hot, dry day. Cut when the dew is on, or at night. Do not let the seed get too ripe. Do not shock the clover, as it will dry just as well left on the stubble The stubble is tall and stiff enough to prevent the bundles from making contact with the ground. Bear in mind that you must avoid shattering, and the less the seed is handled, the more seed you will eventually have in the bag.

A long box can be fitted to the binder under the packers; this should save several hundred pounds of seed if you have any quantity to harvest. The box should be made so that it can be easily withdrawn and emptied.

Oiling the canvasses of the binder with linseed oil will be found useful to prevent dampness from damaging the canvasses, and they will wear a great deal longer.

When threshing, always use tight bottom racks and spread a large canvass under the feeder of the threshing machine so that the shattered seed can be picked up, reducing the loss to a minimum.

If the above suggestions are followed out it will make a worthwhile saving of seed that otherwise would be a total loss. Especially worth while this year when seed is a good price.

AAA IS BOON TO LIVESTOCK SAYS CHIEF WALLACE

Secretary of Agricultural Points Out Healthy Shift to Forage Crops

More livestock feed will be produced this year and saved from last year's crop under the Agricultural Adjustment Administration's programs, than would have veen possible if the adjustment had not existed, says Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture.

The adjustment programs, he points out, have brought about an extensive shift from cash crops to forage and pasture plantings. Since these crops on the whole, are more drouth resistant than those they replaced, the result has been a net gain in crop volume produced.

Even the "contracted acres", on which contract signers are receiving adjustable payments from the government, will contribute their full share to the production of forage and pasture crops this year, Setecrary Wallace says, since the administration removed practically all planting and harvesting restrictions on such acres as soon as it became apparent that the drouth would be a serious factor in crop production. Recent surveys have shown that almost 90 percent of the "contracted acres" in all parts of the United States has been planted to forage crops.

"Moreover, much corn has been saved and will be saved this year as a result of the corn loan and corn-hog reduction programs," the secretary says.

"The small pigs slaughtered last fall in the government's emergency pig-buying program, would have consumed at least 50,000,000 bushels of corn if they had been fed to full market weight. The corn loan program by enabling farmers to hold their corn, in all probability resulted in our having at least 50,000,000 more of corn on hand than otherwise would have been the case. The corn-hog reduction program proper, because it has reduced hog production to a great extent than it has reduced corn acreage, will probably save an additional 84,000,000 bushels of corn this year.

"This corn, and the additional tonnage produced this year will enable farmers to save many valuable domestic animals which might otherwise have to be marketed or allowed to starve because of the drouth."

First Road Work From New Funds To Be Let Soon

Highway construction projects to cost more than one million dollars will be advertised by the State Highway department next week if an authorization expected from the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads is received in time, according to a department announcement.

Plans for the work are complete, and the highway department is ready to call for bids on the projects immediately on receipt of the necessary federal approval. The projects will probably include bituminous surfacing, concrete paving, grading and other types of construction. It is hoped that contracts caan be let by the end of August.

This million dollar letting will be the first from the $5,400,000 road appropriation granted Minnesota by the last congress. Work financed by this appropriation will begin about the time that most of the construction under last year's $10,600,000 grant is completed.

TRUCK "CHISLERS" ARE FINED FOR OVERLOADS

Attempts at "chiseling" have proved costly to a number of truck owners using the Y license, says a highway department bulletin. Officers of the Highway patrol are continually checking on the weights carried by Ytrucks, and a dozen truckers who over-loaded their vehicles have been fined in the past few days in various parts of the state.

When truckers are found to be carrying more than the stated amount permitted by their Y license, they not only are taken into court and fined, but are also required to pay heavy license penalties. In a typical case a Minneapolis trucker was hauling 22,900 pounds in a vehicle authorized to acrry only 16,000 pounds. He was fined $50 and had to pay $35 additional in license penalties.

275,000 Persons on State Fun Program

St. Paul, Aug. 15,—Minnesota's relief program is not confined to hard work projects.

It has a recreational and leisure time program, presented virtually in every county of the state, which has been participated in by more than 275,000 persons and which has proved one of the most popular supervised activities of the State Emergency Relief Administration.

In his report to Governor Floyd B. Olson, State relief administrator, G. C. Tuttule, director of the recreational program, stated that of this number of participants 104,938 were boys 83,185 girls and that the "gallery" numbered about 25,000. Music, dramatics and 4-H club activities drew 87,141 persons, mostly adults, and 2,476 group meetings were held thruout the state.

The program has resulted in the approval of projects for the construction of playgrounds, golf courses, athletic fields, skaating rinks, ski slides, etc.

E.R.A. Nutrition Worker Demonstrates Novel Device for Drying of Vegetables

Miss Bena Johnson, local investigating nutritionist for the ERA, has devised an unusual and most satisfactory method of drying products obtained from the community gardens which will be dried and distributed in packages of one and two pounds to poor relief clients during the coming winter.

The tunnel drier is a 2' by 6' rectangular box constructed of wood. It has 12 racks three inches apart, which have a capacity of 15 pounds of the product to be dried. The drying process takes from four to five hours at a temperature of 110 degrees F., with a thermometer placed at the drier to insure temperature correctness. There are metal wings on the sides, and a metal sheet on the top to drive the air current form the fan upward. Two kerosene stoves supply the dry air, which is driven in a direct current through the drier by means of electric fans, which keep up the circulation and remove the moist air.

Previous to being put in the drier, the product is first steamed from 2 to 3 minutes, resulting in the air being driven out of the product, setting the color, checking bacterial growth, making a better finished product which retains its original food value.

Miss Johnson states that there are 1½ acres of navy beans, 4 acres of peas, and 5 acres of corn which will be dried. Vegetables such as greens spinach, and tomatoes are to be preserved by canning, while root vegetables will be stored. Further yield of the community gardens includes beets, carrots, rutabagoes, and 26 acres of potatoes.

Splendid cooperation among the 16 relief workers employed on this project has brought fine results. Work began on Friday morning, aand will undoubtedly continue for the next five weeks. To date, 55 pounds of peas have been dried by this method.

A strong objection to entering a contract with the power company for a five year hook-up has developed in the city and and the council and administration is somewhat on the spot. Reserve power is apparently necessary in order to meet the demand for current and to guarantee the patrons against cessation in the service, yet this is contrary to the statements and recommendations made during the campaign last fall by the members of the council and Mayor Tungseth. Last week the mayor in a public statement in the Times apparently opposed a five year contract. However, members of the progressive group who received a decided licking in the election last fall point out that the mayor has consistently played for just the kind of a predicament that the city finds itself in. They also point out that he declared himself against the extension of the hours in the beer ordinance, but that the situation was maneuvered to become law anyway. They also point out that he promised to veto the fire truck resolution but that after an eleventh hour conference with alderman McFarland he signed the instrument. Now they claim that his apparent opposition to the contract is hookum and camouflage.

President of the council Peter Myrom asked Leonard Peterson, Power company representative if it would be possible to secure a contract with a cancellation clause, as it might be possible that the city would be able to use water power or make arrangement for another diesel unit before the five years are expired. Mr. Peterson discounted the chances of getting any water power stating that he has observed the river for a great many years and the chances of getting power from it within the next five years would be pretty small.

He did not know whether a contract

CORN-HOG FUND TO BE PAID SOON

St. Paul—Adjustment payments totaling about $11,000,000 will have been made to Minnesota corn and hog raisers by Sept. 1, Andrew Boss, University Farm, state director of production control for the AAA, reported. Already the corn-hog committees in 40 Minnesota counties have completed their work of adjusting producers' allotment claims to the county quotas, Mr. Boss says, and in other counties this work will be finished within the next 10 days. When this work is done, the commitees will present the contracts to the applicants for their final signatures and then forward them to Washington for payment. Ten counties already have completed this final step.

This procedure pertains only to regular payment contracts, requiring the applicants' acceptance of allotment adjustments before they become valid. These contracts constitute about 70 per cent of all Minnesota contracts. The majority of counties already have forwarded to Washington their early payment contracts, in which the producer waives the formality of approving allotment adjustments. Payments made on these contracts to Aug. 1 toaled $2,354,203.15. In addition, $65,000 in payments on regular payment contracts—the first of this kind received in Minnesota—are now being distribut-d to 600 Dakota county contract signers.

Frazier-Lemke Bill To Speed Recovery

Hastening of voluntary private settlement of farm debts by agreement between creditors and debtors will result from the recently enacted Frazier-Lemke amendment to the federal law on farm bankruptcy, says D. C. Dvoracek, agricultural extension division, University Farm, St. Paul.

In numerous meetings throughout the state in which he is interpreting this amendment to farmers and creditors, Mr. Dvoracek finds that study of the amendment is convincing both sides of the wisdom and advantages of voluntary debt agreements.

"The Frazier-Lemke amendment should not be confused with the Frazier bill, introduced in Congress but not passed, which would have refinanced farm mortgages at reduced interest," Mr. Dvoracek emphasizes.

"To understand the Frazier-Lemke bill," he adds, "it is necessary to recall two amendments approved in 1933. One provided for the appointment of a county conciliation commissioner by the United States District Court upon petition of 15 farmers. The second amendment made the appointment of such a commissioner mandatory in every county having over 500 agricultural population. The duty of this commissioner is to assist debtors in securing an equitable agreement on their debts between themselves and a majority of their creditors (a majority in number and amount due). The Frazier-Lemke supplements these amendments in providing that if a farmer fails to obtain the acceptance of a majority of his creditors to the proposed agreement, or if he is not satisfied with such composition himself, he petitions to be adjudged a bankrupt. The bill then permits him to retain possesion of his property for 5 to 6 years under control of the court and to buy all or part of his property at a fair value during that time."

Traffic Deaths Climb in State

Minnesota had twice as great an increase in traffic accidents in the first six months of 1934, as did the rest of the United states. C. R. Carlgren member of the State Board of Control, says that Minnesota is not gaining a favorable reputation among states, with a traffic accident increase so much greater than the nation's in the first half of this year. This situation is a matter of concern to every citizen in the state, aside from the bad reputation it gives the st te, he thinks.

Mr. Carlgren analyses the situation as follows:

"In twelve cities in the state, that was not a single traffic accident fatality in the first five months of this year, but twenty other cities in Minnesota have a total of 129 fatalities charged against them, in the records compiled by the Safety Division of the State Emergency Relief Administration. In this connection, I cannot help making a comparison between Duluth, with its traffic hazardous hills, which had but four accidents in the first five months of this year, and St. Paul, which had ten times as many. Minneapolis had almost as bad a record as St. Paul.

Duluth's splendid safety program is to be given the credit for its favorable record on prevention of traffic accidents.

"Reports received from 87 counties of the state as to traffic accident fatalities in the first five months this year revealed that 34 counties had no fatalities, while in 53 counties there were 228 lives needlessly sacrificed i traffic accidents between January 1st and June 1st of this year.

"A national authority claims that for every person who is killed accidentally it costs the person's family and the community an average of $50,000. On the assumption that this is true, the 228 deaths in Minnesota the first five months this yeaar represent a loss of $11,400,000.

"It seems as though it would be cheaper for the state to make accident prevention sufficiently effective to avert some of this needless and costly loss of lives.

"Deaths 228 of them in Minnesota in five month's time—due to carelessness, or reckless driving or walking, on the streets and highways of the state, should by this time have given impetus to a widespreaad demand for prevention of wholesale killings in this state.

"There may be a funeral in the block in which you live, this week or next, the result of needless traffic accident, attributable to either carelessness or recklessness. The fatality might for instance, rob a household of the husband and father, in another it might be awife and mother, abrubtly snatched out of life leaving behind young children needing her care, or it might be some curly-headed youngster, beloved by whole neighborhood who was needlessly killed. This traffic problem is not something apart from our daily lives. It comes close.

"Opportunity for concerted action in Minnesota for the prevention of traffic fatalities has been created through the Safety Division SERA, to which Governor Olson, administrator ofthe ERA, delegated the task of carrying on an educational program in the interests of traffic accident prevention.

"More than 100 public safety communities, in cities and counties of the state, their personnel including many city and county officials and civic leaders are making a race competitively to create activities that will reduce traffic accident fatalities.

"As a spur to achievement, awards will be made by Governor Olson, at the end of the year, to the three cities and the three counties of the state that are most active in accident prevention effort.

"Public interest, cooperation and support are essential to success. Furthermore there must be state-wide building up of support of enforcement officers dealing with traffic violations."

New Buildings Being Rushed to Finish for Fair

The new Conservation building and other improvements costing $130,000 are being rushed to completion for the opening of Minnesota's Diamond Jubilee State Fair, which will be observed from September 1 to 8, it was announced this week by Raymond A. Lee, secretary.

Building of a new street car loop entrance, opening of new streets, continuation of the Fair's "white-way", creation of a new park with a sunken pool are improvements that alter the physical appearance of the grounds and change the skyline in the area between the Hippodrome and Horticulture buildings.

The new Conservation building will be one of the show places on the grounds. It occupies the site of the old street car entrance, directly opposite the approach to the grandstand. Built of whole logs with inter-locking corners, the structure is 68 feet olng, being 56 feet at its highest point. It was designed by Paul Wicklund, Minneapolis architect. State and federal funds along with substantial contributions by the State Fair makes possible the improvements.

Exhibits of the fish and game, forestry, tourist bureau and other branches of the State Conservation department will be housed in the new structure. The Minnesota exhibit,, costing $65,000, and which attracted throngs at the world's fair in Chicago will be installed intact, including the panoramas of the agricultural, industrial, cultural and recreational life of the commonwealth.

An extensive aquarium, artistically designed, has been built for the comprehensive display of fish now being gathered by the state fish and game department under the supervision of Rr. Thaddeus Surber. Displays of wild life and a cross-section of timber resources also are planned.

Surrounding the building will be an attractive sunken garden with a spectacular illuminated fountain.

Opening of Judson street from the agricultural building to the livestock section, gives the Fair a much needed highway cast and west. A new street car loop entrance has been provided in the revised ground plan. Six new ticket windows have been constructed. A large steel arch, 80 feet wide, will support the illuminated sign inscribed State Fair.

"With the completion of this year's improvement program the dreams of the State Fair management for the past 20 years becomes a reality," said Mr. Lee, secretary of the fair, "The area improved is the front yard of the fair and visitors to the Diamond Jubilee will be agreeably surprised and pleased with the changes."

Corn-Hog Ruling Help Drouth Aid

Two administrative rulings affecting the 1934 corn-hog contract, of particular interest to cooperating producers in the drouth areas, have been announced by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Corn-hog contract signers may now make unlimited purchases of feeder pigs during the period, August 1, 1934, to November 30, 1934. Originally, under the contract, a producer could not increase the number of feeder pigs bought in 1934 above the adjusted average number bought in 1932-33. But under the new ruling the contract signer must either keep such purchased pigs separate from hogs produced on the farm or mark them for ready identification by ear marks of other reliable means of identification. Within one week following the date of any purchase, the producer also must file with the county allotment committee, a statement showing (1) the date the statement was submitted to the county allotment committee, (2) the date of purchase, (3) the name and aaddress of seller, (4) number and average weight of feeder pigs purchased, (5) the method used for positive indentification of the pigs throughout the feeding period, and (6) the signature of the party from whom such feeder pigs were bought.

Earlier this year, the original concerning feeder pigs purchase had been amended to permit a contract signer to buy animals in excess of the adjusted annual number brought by him in the base period, but provided that all feeder pigs purchased in 1934 were farrowed on a farm located in the same county as the land under contract and were bought only from persons who had executed corn-hog reduction contracts as producer, and who had no feeder pig base.

In view of the limited number of potential sellers from whom contract signers might buy under the earlier interpretation and because some contract signers other wise likely would have to sell part of their own contract allotment of pigs at sacrifice prices on account of feed shortage,producers under contract now are being authorized to make unlimited purchases without restrictions as to status or locationof the seller. Thus contract signers may buy pigs from producers in another county or state and those who have adequate feed supplies may buy pigs from farmers who do not have sufficient food supplies. The earlier interpretation concerning feeder pig purchases will apply, however, to all feeder pigs bought before August 1, 1934.

The second ruling permits the inclusion of wheat or other small grains among crops which may be planted in 1934 without restriction if pastured or harvested for hay on any land covered by corn-hog contracts, including rented or contractor acres. The wheat or other small grains so planted shall be used for pasture or hay only and shall not be harvested as grain.

This broadening of the crop acreage limitations will now permit corn-hog ocntract signers to plant on any land on he farm practically any crop to be used as roughage for livestock feeding purposes, except for certain restrictions necessary to prevent possible use of such drouth rulings to cover up original non-compliance with the terms of the conrast, or defeat the purposes of the contract.

New Tuberculin Aids Fight on White Plague

Minnesota results in tuberculin testing in the future can be more accurately compared with those of other states. This has been made possible, according to the Minnesota Public Health Association, through the development of a new standard testing agent, an outstanding accomplishment of Christmas Seal scientific research work. Announcement of this success in developing this new tuberculin was recently made by Medical Research Committee of the National Tuberculosis Association. It is already in use in Minnesota tuberculin testing surveys.

"For the first time since the discovery of the substance in 1891, an absolutely pure tuberculin has been produced," says the state association bulletin. "The importance of the new tuberculin lies in the fact that now for the first time it is possible to establish a standard test for both humans and animals. Differing from all previous tuberculins, the new product will remain at constant strength for a long period of time and regardless of climatic conditions. This is made possible by preparing it in tablet form in contrast to the liquid solution heretofore used.

Minnesota is conducting tuberculin testing among school children on a scale unequalled in most states in the union, according to the state association. Results of these surveys have been of great significance.

"Statistics from our Christmas Seal surveys in Minnesota schools and colleges show greater freedom from tuberculous infection among our boys and girls than among students in the east," the bulletin points out.

Market Show to Be Held at So. St. Paul Oct. 5

It is the desire of the Saint Paul Union Stockyards Company that the farmers of the Northwest raise and bring to the market better livestock. In order to do this the producers must produce better livestock, using the most business-like methods in doing so. To assist them in this, the Stockyards Company and the market interests are going to hold a Market of cattle, hogs and lambs, in conjunction with a selection sire sale of fifty bulls, twenty-five boars and Twenty-five rams on October 4th, 5th and 6th at the Show Barns in South Saint Paul. There will be a class for a pen of three of steers or heifers; one pen class for wether lambs and two pen classes for barrows. There will also be a class for singles in each of the above, at which the exhibitor can show two out of the pen. Each will have fourteen places, with prizes from $2.00 to $15.00 and each exhibitor can enter one pen of three head of cattle (steers or heifers, or both) of any weight; three head of wether lambs, 75 to 95 lbs., and two pens of barrows, one from 190 to 235lbs., and one from 235 lbs. to 275 lbs.

All exhibitors must indicate their intention of entering animals by September 15th so that the Stockyards Company can arrange pens. The stock must arrive not later than October 4th and will be judged on October 5th by packer buyers and University judges. On Saturday, Octorber 6th, these cattle will be sold at auction prices to the packers.

The sires of beef bulls, boars and rams must also arrive not later than October 4th as they too will be judged on Friday and auctioned the the highest bidder on Saturday, October 6th immediately following the sale of the market clases.

Entries in the market classes are limited to actual farmers in the So. St. Paul trade territory. Sires will be selected from breeders in the same territory. The following week a meat cutting demonstration will be held in St. Paul and Minneapolis for the housewives, which will be supervised by the National Livestock & Meat Board.

All communications should be addressed to C. F. Jenness, Live stock Improvement Division, Saint Paul Union Stockyards Company South St. Paul, Minn.

Frazier-Lemke Bill To Speed Recovery

Synopsis of Testimony Developed in the Hearings On The Northwest Bancorporation

Emperor States Position as to Farme.

According to J. C. Thomson, th "New Financial Empire" was forme because it was felt that form of organization both would and could bes serve the territory in which the various banks which they accumulate were located. It would serve all o the districts including the agricultural districts. It seems that on Aug 8 and Aug. 9, 1929, which was shortly after the company was organized, a meeting of the rulers of the "New Finncial Empire" was held in the office of the company; and at this conference E. W. Decker as the ruling Potentate, outlined to the various subordinate officials who functioned under him in the chain banks, the theory under which the business of this chain banking institution wuold be conducted so far as the agricultural situation was concerned. A transcript of the meeting and of the statements made was introduced in evidence at the hearings and after being identified the following excerpts from Emperor Decker's statement in relation to their attitude towards certain residents of the farming district was read into the evidence. For the sake of brevity only a portion of his speech is quoted here. It is as follows:

> Mr. Kenniston made a remark here the other day that perhaps was a little extreme, and yet there was a good deal of truth in it. He said, "You know, Decker, a farmer hasn't any business to borrow any money of a commercial bank." But, today I would qualify that. If he is feeding stock and is going to turn it off in the fall, that is legitimate. But a farmer doesn't belong in a commercial bank to any great extent because his loans are not liquid—that is, to loan a farmer money in the hopes that he is going to get a crop, that is pretty risky. Or, to loan him money against an equity in his land is still more risky. * * * To keep on carrying farmers year in and year out, hoping that some day something is going to turn up, and they are poor farmers, is a detriment to the country, to the farmers and to the bank. If a farmer is no good. he might as well get out. It is a case of the survival of the fittest, and I do not propose to hold an umbrella over the banks up here and the farmers.

So far as the records shows the mandate of Emperor Decker as to the attitude of Banco towards farmers met with no opposition from the chain bankers in attendance, and it would seem that with these few words the agricultural situation, so far as Banco was concerned, was promptly and effectively disposed of.

Nine Men Invest $1,000; Take Control

In the course of Mr. Decker's testimony the minute book of the board of directors was introduced in evidence. It was marked Commission's Exhibit 15. This record shows that the record shows that the incorporators of this company were A. V. Lane, C. S. Peabbies and L. E. Gray, who were "dummy" incorporators in the state of Delaware. The record showed that the first meeting of the board of directors of the company was held on the 30th day of January, 1929; that Messers John C. Benson, Christopherson and Glen S. Stiles, who were partners or employees of the firm of Cobb, Hoke, Benson, Faegre & Krause, attorneys for the company, were all members of the board.

At this first meeting the minute book, Commission's Exhibit 15, on page 57, shows the following entry:

"Messers. John C. Benson, Glen S. Stiles and Paul Christopherson offered to pay this corporation the sum of $1,000 in full payment on behalf of the signers of the certificate of incorporation for the twenty shares of stock of the corporation subscribed for by them respectively, as shown by the certificate of incorporation, and requested that said twenty shares of stock be issued as follows: 12 shares to E. W. Decker, one share each to Messrs. Hanford MacNider, E. J. Weiser, Robert E. Mac Gregor, H. D. Thrall, D. R. West, W. A. Durst Theodore Wold and W. G. C. Bagley."

These gentlemen thereupon all became directors of the company. The twenty shares of stock that had a par value of $50 each. There were no other subscriptions to stock of the corporation prior to the exchange and sale prior to the exchange and sale of the stock in the amounts hereafter mentioned. The company therefore had a capitol of $1,000 and at this same meeting on January 30, 1929, Messrs. Benson, Stiles and Christopherson resigned. Messers. Decker, MacNider and Weiser were elected as directors and Mr. Decker as chairman of the meeting.

Anticipated Deluge of Money

These three directors then amended the by-laws to provide for a board of directors of not more than thirty-five in number, thereupon Messrs. R. E. MacGregor, H. D. Thrall, and D. R. West, W. A. Durst, Theodore Wold and W. G. C. Bagley were elected directors, each of these gentlemen owing one $50 share of the company's stock. With this board of directors, owning $1,000 worth of stock among them, they elected the following officers: President, E. W. Decker; vice president and treasurer, Robert E. MacGregor; vice president, Hanford MacNider; vice president E. J. Weiser; vice president, H. D. Thrall; secretary, D. R. West. In apparent anticipation ofthe deluge of money to be derived from the sale of stock, they then passed a resolution to open a bank account with the Northwestern National Bank, and also to open a bank account with the First National Bank & Trust Company of Fargo, N. Dak. They also voted to open a bank account with the Minnesota Loan & Trust Company of Minneapolis Minnesota, and passed the following resolution.

"RESOLVED, that the dividends be declared and paid quarterly and that the dividend to be declared as of April 1, 1929, be 45c per share if the earnings of the company be sufficient therefore; that said dividends shall be payable to stockholders of record on March 20, 1929."

"RESOLVED, that the officers of this corporation be and they hereby are authorized and empowered to issue and sell not to exceed an aggregate of five million dollars par value of the capital stock of this corporation, and to sell the same at said par value, plus a sum equivalent to accrued and unpaid quarterly dividends at the rate of 45c per share, and to receive subscriptions to said subscribers in such amounts, proportional or not proportional, to said subscriptions as said board of directors or the executive committee of this corporation shall determine."

THE DAY OF RECKONING HAS ARRIVED

The citizens of Thief River Falls were given a severe jolt last week when the mayor, E. L. Tungseth and his engineer admitted that the statements made by the Progressive group during the campaign last fall was the truth, however ungracefully the admission was made.

Every statement and claim advanced by engineer W. W. Viebahn in his so-called survey of the city's power and light facilities last August has been disproved and the opposing views of Mr. Anderson, who was at that time chief engineer at the power plant have been proven to be correct.

We quote from the two statements made at that time:

Mr. Viebahn stated that the McIntosh-Seymour engine is capable of carrying a continuous load of 530 k.w. To this Mr. Anderson replied that, "The most that the engine has ever pulled is 520 k.w. It can pull its rated capacity only unded ideal conditions, when all its parts are in excellent working order, which it seldom is because of the incessant strain of continuous operation. Every engine should be shut down, anyway at between each 700 to 1000 working hours to have the valves ground.—It would probably be able to carry 600 k.w., during short peak periods as Mr. Viebahn maintains, if the crew had the opportunity to grind the valves and keep it in tip top shape."

We remind our readers that Mayor Tungseth in a public statement immediately stated sheeringly that if the engineers could not keep the valves ground "we will get someone who can." Mr. Anderson was dismissed and other engineers have been imported who were assumed to be possessed of "100 per cent efficiency," and after two months of their excellent cooperation, the engine is at this time unable to carry a continuous load of 380 k.w. without smoking and laboring .

WE CHALLENGE MR. VIEBAHN TO DISPROVE THIS STATEMENT.

A year ago Mr. Viebahn stated that he would not recommend adding another diesel to the plant until there is an increase of current consumption of about 25 percent. At this time he is trying to bolster his recommendation for a hookup with the highline by stating that there has been an increase in current consumption of 22½ per cent. That is a deliberate misstatement. Figures compiled by the C. and C. committee investigating the power proposition shows that the increase has been about 14 per cent. Most of this has been due to the fact that the filtration plant was in continuous operation for a whole month while the reservoir was being repaired. The balance of the increase is mostly due to the addition of the new auditorium. The increase in revenue has been negligible, if indeed there has been any at all.

If there has been an increase as Mr. Viebahn claims, then why does he not recommend using the highline during the hours of peak load? We call attention to the fact that he recommends the turning over to the highline of the entire load during the hours between 12 midnight and 8 a. m., and the shutting down of the plant between those hours. Yet the night load never exceeds 130 k. w. and can easily be carried by the old Bush-Sulzer engines alone. That in itself is a plum he wants to hand the power companies, for those hours are the hours of lightest load for them as it is for the local plant, and every kilowatt they can add to their load at that time is clear profit to them. If Mr. Viebahn would stop prevaricating long enough he would admit that the survey he made last summer was a comedy of errors and that the present equipment was, and is inadequate to handle the demands made on it and that he needs highline help on the peak load.

A year ago Mr. Viebahn recommended that new alternators be purchased for the old Bush-Sulzer engines, and stated that they retained one third of their life. He rated them at 320 k. w. Twenty kilowatts more than the manufacturers rated them new. Six weeks ago he told the council that it would be foolish to buy new alternators for these engines, since it will only be a matter of three or four years until the engines will be wore out and the city would have a couple of new alternators on its hands and no engines with which to pull them. Something which Mr. Anderson told him in his criticism of that survey.

Last fall, Mr. Tungseth, aided by his handmaiden engineer and the full and free cooperation of the Times thru its news and editorial columns, built up a Babels Tower of Deception which has collapsed about their ears like a house of cards. They are jointly responsible for the predicament that the city is in now. The figures were available to them as they were to the progressives. They should have known then, what they know now, and if they didn't know, they are not of a caliber to hold positions of trust in the community.

Fifteen thousand dollars have been lost to the city thru their activity. The five year contract which they propose to enter into with the power company will cost the city $6,000 for standby charge alone; not less than $24,800.00 for current,(figures based on an average of 115 k.w. during the hours between 12 midnight and 8 a.m., and no current purchased at any other hours). This added to the federal grant of $15,000.00 which was thrown away, amounts to $45,800.00, just $7,200.00 less than the purchase price of the 1,000 h.p., diesel which the last council proposed buying.

The claim was made by the progressives last fall that Mayor Tungseth and his collaborators were trying to put the city at the mercy of the power companies. Whether intentionally of not, the act has been accomplished. Even if immediate steps are taken to purchase another diesel unit, highline power must be used over the peak season this year. A new unit cannot be installed in time to take care of it, and the present equipment cannot handle the peak load this fall. Due to continuous operation and lack of care the efficiency of the McIntosh-Seymour engine has been dragged down to 60 per cent of its rating. The threat of a major breakdown is ever present.

A large share of the peak load will have to be taken care of by the highline so that at the end of five years the city will have paid the power company not only about $24,800 for the night load, but for additional power during peak periods and shutdowns amounts from $25,000.00 to $40,000.00 more.

A five year hook-up will mean that the city will pay to the power interests over that period, anywhere from $60,000,00 to $100,000.00. The records of the light department shows that we can produce current for ¾c per kilowatt at the switchboard. The minimum rate to be paid to the power company is 1½c per kilowatt at the switchboard, and standby charge additional. Over half of the money paid the power company will be a dead loss to the city.

....

The situation is serious and something will have to be done at once, but we hope that this time the citizens will not be stampeded by a campaign of beerparlor slander. Let us take action sanely and with our eyes open.

CALL OUT THE CORPORAL'S GUARD

On second thought, call out two of them, the first may be "permeated with reds." Awake, you good old 100 percenters! Arise, you patridiots! The communists are joining the National Guard. The St. Paul Daily News has discovered a nefarious plot to get control of the military by the Bolsheviks. Oh, the humiliation and the sacrilege! First Governor Olson uses the guards to maintain law and order instead of following the precedent established by capitalistic governors, truly of the red, white and blue.(Rednosed, whitelivered and bluefaced); that of shooting down strikers and strikers' wives and children. And now . . . . . Oho, the Provost guard! arrest the recruiting officers. What perfidy is this? What treason? Art thou accepting Russian Nihilists in service? Speaketh up Knaves.

What sayest thou? Are they American citizens, native born? . . . . . And, Oh Horrors! Hasten Jeanette! My smelling salts, they couldn't tell them from Republicans by their looks.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

"FACT NOT FICTION"

"Every tragic incident here recorded is fact, not fiction," said the writer of "The Road to Hell," published in this week's issue of The Union Signal. "People do not believe that the saloon ever was so bad as those who know claimed it was," continues Dr. Fox, and he adds:

> "When I was pastor in kansas City, an editor asked me to write an article about the saloon. 'Make it as strong as you like,' he said. I went over to one of the main business streets when school was dismissed and stood where I could watch school children going into the saloons, some of them for liquor for parents, and others for themselves. I wrote down what I saw, and when the editor read it he threw up his hands. 'I dare not publish that!' he exclaimed. 'Why, it's awful.' Yet there was not a single sentence that could not be verified by anyone who would take the trouble to investigate."

The leopard has not changed its spots, as you know who have read the accounts of the young people who are being drawn into the drinking-places in Chicago, New York, Detroit or San Francisco, or who have read the statements of the brewers concerning the winning of recruits. Is it a strange thing that the W. C. T. U. should continue to seek total abstinence as the free choice of the individual and the abolition of the traffic for the nations of the world?

Tactics Same as in 1919

The technique of labor repression in 1934 is much the same as it was in 1919. The respectable San Francisco hoodlums and hooligans who raided workers' halls, beat up scores of strike leaders, and smashed printing presses during and after the recent general strike, used methods identical with those in Seattle during the general sitrke of 1919.

Living Conditions oof Labor Down

Geneva.—Despite figures by the International Labor Office showing a decrease in world unemployment figures, the standard of living of the masses of people has grown worse, according to the International Federation of Trade Unions.

"The engagement of unemployed workers," the federation states, "does not mean an absolute and considerable increase in the purchasing power of the masses, but rather a redistribution of the existing purchasing power, and for the masses an actual lowering in their standerd of living."

LEMKE TELLS FARMERS TO INSIST ON RIGHTS IN MORATORIUM ACT

By William Lemke, Representative at-large, North Dakota

Foremost in the minds of the nation's farmers just now is the Frazier-Lemke farm moratorium bankruptcy amendment. Twenty-seven hundred Conciliation Commissioners will have been appointed by U. S. District Court Judges within the nevt few days. These conciliation commissioners under the terms of Section 75 of the bankruptcy amendment, are supposed to represent the farmers asking for conciliations. The creditors, of course, will have lawyers of their own to represent them and their interests.

The Frazier-Lemke Amendment has plenty of teeth to protect the debtor-farmer as well as the creditors. I wish to warn the farmers not to accept any conciliation that is not in line with subsection "S" of section 75 of the bankruptcy act. Subsection "S" gives to the creditors as security the present value of the farmer's property, less exceptions, and that is all they are entitled to. They have no right to attempt to have the farmer sign away his future earning capacity or the future efforts of his family. There must be no peonage in this nation of ours. In other words, under this amendment, farmers who are insolvent. or who owe more than the present value of their property, can scale all their debts, down secured or unsecured, to the property's present value. If they are unable to meet their obligations although not insolvent, they are entitled to an extension of time in which to pay their indebtedness.

I have received thousands of requests from farmers and businessment for copies of the farm moratorium bankruptcy amendment, also for legal advice. I am sorry that I cannot comply with these requests—there have been too many. At the suggestion of The Normanden Publishing Company of Fargo, N. D., I have prepared a 32 page phamphlet which contains an outline of the law and the full text of Section 75 of the Bankruptcy Act, including the Frazier-Lemke amendment, and other amendments, together with rules of procedure by the United States Supreme Court.

This pamphlet will give interested parties the required information. It may be obtained by sending 50 cents to the Normanden Publishing Company, Box 426, Fargo, N. D. Get your local farm organizations to get this pamphlet and study it together. I am endeavoring to arrange with the Normanden to distribute a number of these pamphlet free to parties who cannot otherwise get them, but naturally, this supply is limited.

Remember that the farm moratorium bankruptcy amendment is not a substitute for the Frazier-Lemke refinance bill. It is merely a stop-gap. It will keep one million farm families in their homes until we get the refinance bill. This is election year. If you will vote intelligently, we will get the refinance bill in the next session may I remind my friends, and especially the farmers, that you must protect and re-elect your friends who signed the petition to bring the Frazier-Lemke refinance bill out of the committee and unto the floor of the house of Representatives for passage. We were tricked out of a vote by the leaders of the majority. However, the 145 who signed the petition are on record as your friends.

It is equally imporant to defeat those who did not sign the petition. They may be mighty fine men and women, but they are not concerned enough about the welfare of this nation to support the legislation that the State Legislatures of 22 states demanded. Get every candidate for Congress on record on this bill and also on the cost of production bill before election, and vote for principles and not persons. Do not be carried away by the hand-shakers. This nations life is at stake. The farmers, the soldier and the laboring people must save it through an intelligent use of the ballot.

[illegible] should judge your sen[illegible] and representatives in Congress who are up for re-election by their record. Through the veterans', farmers' and labor organizations and the Congressional Record, you can ascertain how they voted upon every important question. If they voted for your best interests, re-elect them. If they voted for Wall Street, leave them at home Teach them that you are getting unto their game. Show them that you do the voting, not Wall Street. Let them know that this government belongs to you—to one hundred thirty million men, women and children, and that you are going to make this government once more responsive to your will, that you are through with politicians from now on, and hereafter will send statesmen to Congress men and women of unquestioned patriotism, steadfastness and devotion to the government "of the people, for the people, and by the people." Do not permit politicians to swerve you from this goal.

A short story of the attempts of colored American citizens to win some of the joys of liberty for themselves is given in a pamphlet report of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and available free from that organization, whose address is 69 Fifth Ave., New York, N. Y.

The pamphlet recounts the association's fight for a federal anti-lynching law, its legal assistance to negroes denied the full protection due citizens, its campaign against race discriminations in all forms and its general educational work.

In the Rostrum

To the Editor:

Regarding Mayor Tungseth's letter "To Our Citizens" in Thief River Falls Times of August 9, 1934, wherein the Mayor discusses the advisability of the city connecting up with the Inter State Power Company as a stand by power and to be used during the light load period. There is no question but what additional power is needed, but what has happened that the Mayor and his citizens ticket council have changed their minds? A year ago when the old city council tried to add an additional power unit the Mayor and his followers succeeded in getting the people of our city to believe that the present engines were adequate power for some time to come. The Mayor knew at that time that the power was inadquate and that in a very short time it would be necessary to connect up with the high line or purchase another power unit, if he did not know he certainly could have been informed. We all remember reading about a year ago how the old Busch-Sulzer engines were to be reconditioned and would then carry the light load so the large McIntosh-Seymour engine could be shut down so light repairs could be made. What has become of the old Busch-Sulzer engines, has the Mayor forgotten all about them? The proposition as presented by the Inter State Power Company may look favorable at first but when we sit down and figure out what the minimum cost of current and the stand by cost will amount to in the five year period and the loss of the $15,000 Federal grant to the city will find that the city is not getting such a bargain as the Mayor would have us believe. Mayor Tungseth does state in his letter that he is opposed to signing up a five year contract, but that is the only proposition that has been presented, so we can draw our own conclusions in regard to that.

It looks very much like some more deception to cover up mistakes that have been made during the last seven months. The firing of old engineers at the power plant has not helped matters any, the power plant is now in charge of persons whom the citizens know nothing about as to their efficiency and reliability. How any one can accuse the old employees of the power plant of lack of cooperation is beyond the comprehension of all right thinking people. The men whom the Mayor and his council discharged had worked faithfully for the city for many years, some of them had grown up with the power plant and under the supervision of Mr. Ole Legvold the power plant has made steady yearly gains. That alone is enough evidence that the employees have all been loyal and faithful to the best interests of the city. Every citizen who has lived in our city the last 20years can testify that the power plant has delivered almost 100 percent service even under the old direct current system. There was practically no interuption of service. Since Mr. Viebahn, Mayor Tungseth's high efficiency engineer has had charge of the power plant there has been more interruption of power during the last 6 months than there was in as many years before. It is up to all of us as citizens to see to that the city council does not sign a contract with the high line, the power plant is a too valuable property to take any chances of an outside and privately owned public utility undermining and destroying.

All we have to do is to look up the troubles and fights other cities have gone through which have let the high lines in on their switch boards under similiar conditions. The sum and substance of the whole thing is that our power plant is in danger of destruction and it is up to all citizens to exercise eternal vigilence over he city council, the power plant is the city's most valuable asset. The power plant should be taken out of the hands of he city council and put under the supervision of a power commission of three men elected for terms of wo, four and six years. Under that kind of a setup the men elected to serve on the power commission could find time to make a thorough study of the plant and its requirements without interference of politics. A power commission is absolutely necessary now because the present council has made a political football out of the power plant and the employees, the danger is now that any time that the political fortunes of the city council are charged that the city employees will be discharged and others with no interest in the city's welfare will be hired as has been the case under the present city council. Never before has the change of city administration been used to discharge the old employees at the power plant, no new employee can be depended upon to take good care of the plant under such conditions, not knowing that his tenure of employment it any more certain than subject to the whims of a city council.

In conclusion I wish to impress upon all citizens that the time for action is here if the city is to enjoy the benefits of the municipally owned power plant. Watch our step should be the slogan.

Very truly yours,
C. E. Hellquist,

Their Refuge

by Lawrence Hawthorne

Life has crowded many blessin's
Into years that we have known
Since the day my boyhood sweetheart
Said she'd be my very own!
Yes, we've had a heap o' sunshine,
Seasoned just a bit with tears—
But the best of all our blessin's
Were those swiftly passin' years
When our children still were with us
An' the house was filled with noise—
Ringin' with the jokes an' laughter
Of those happy girls an' boys!

Days like that are swift in goin';
Soon our children went away,
Leavin' home an' hearts more lonely
Than the lips can ever say.
But we get a lot o' comfort
From the feelin' that they know,
Out there in the world o' business
Where they're givin' blow for blow,
That we're workin' and we're savin'
So, whatever may befall,
This old home is still their refuge
An' we'll hear 'em when they call!

Start Judging Coach Models In Fair Contest

Judging of the miniature Napoleonic coaches submitted in the 1934 Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild competition, on which $51,000 in university scholarships are offered as awards, is now being conducted in the general Motors Building at A Century of Progress Exposition.

The models, the work of youths from 12 to 19 years of age, all of whom have been recommended by school authorities or recognized boys' activitly leaders, are reproductions of a master coach designed by Walter Leuschner, ofrmerly the head of a family-owned concern that began building carriages for European monarchs during the reign of Frederick Wilhelm III of Prussia.

The master model is a composite of the ornate vehicles used for the wedding and cornation of the Emperor Napoleon. Its successful reproducton requires the utmost skill in the various phases of craftsmanship, as shown by the fact that the replicas are judged from the standpoint of paintcraft, trimsraft, woodcraft and metalcraft, as well as fidelity to scale.

The builders of the 16 adjudged the best of those received from boys in the United States and the eight finest submitted by Canadian youths will receive university scolarships valued at from $500 to $5,000. There are six $5,000, six $2,000, six $1,000 and six $500 awards.

Announcement of the winners will be made at a banquet to be held at Stevens' Hotel in Chicago Wednesday August 22, the opening day of a four-day convention to which 24 youths and the Guild Alumni—the 16 boys who have won $5,000 scholarships in previous competitions—will be invited according to William S. McLean, secretary of the educational foundation.

with a cancellation clause would be acceptable to the company or not. He stated however, that he will confer with his superiors and let the council know later. Mr. Myhrom suggested that forfeit might be established to reimburse the power company in case the city terminated the contract short of the five years, this forfeit should be made on a graduated basis he suggested that the amount forfeited would be smaller as the end of the five years approached nearer. It was decided to lay the matter on the table until the next regular meeting orf the council, two weeks hence.

Grand Forks, Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls for the purpose of organizing these cities in a Red Lake River Water Preservation Commission. Reccomendations by a committee composed of E. L. Tungseth, L. Peterson, Rudolph Helm and Geo. Repeal Promises Were All Good, Results All Bad

The promises that won the overwhelming victory for repeal last year were such as merit the support of high-minded citizens: no saloon; decreased drinking and drunkenness; no bootleggers, real temperance, and last and best, the protection of youth from the degrading debauchery of drink. The results have been everything else but. What repeal has brought is exactly the opposite, and lots of it. The promises were all good. The results are all bad.

The Wheeling (W. Va.) News tells this story which can be duplicated in many cities and villages east, west, north and south.

Two Wheeling women, who say they vote for repeal of the national prohibition amendment in West Virginia were callers at the office of the Wheeling News in the past week. They were in a state of nervous excitement, bordering on hysteria.

"They came to tell of moral conditions which surround their homes in a rather prominent part of the city; to tell of the nightly revels in one of the drinking places immediately adjacent to their residents: to tell of the noise, the clamor, the foul language, the threats of shooting, the numerous brawls which make the night hideous in their vicinity: to tell of young men and yong girls who frequent these places; of the young girls who are carried out drunk, of the young men who make public exhibitions of themselves at all hours of the night time and for that matter, of theday time.

"Both of these women were emphatic in the assertion that they have had all of the return of the saloon that they want; that their votes hereafter would be for a dry State, and for decent living conditions.

"This is only one illustration of what is going on all over West Virginia. U. S. Urged to Speed Cattle Shipping

Fargo, N. D.—Urgent request to drouth authorities of the federal government that steps be taken immediately to expand outlets for cattle purchased in the drouth program as a measure to conserve feed for the remaining herds was forwarded to Washington by representatives of six northwest states at a conference at the North Dakota agricultural college here. Present shipping quotas which for North Dakota is 4,000 head daily and similar for other states were declared hopelessly inadequate to handle the situation. Conditions are so desperate, according to the message, they insist that other outlets for the drouth-purchased cattle be developed. Present feed supplies must not be depleted by feeding them to these cattle awaiting disposal. The drouth conference was called by Dr. J. H. Shepperd, president of the N. D. A. C. and director of the emergency livestock purchasing program for the state.

Nazi Betrayed By Hitlerists

NEW YORK (TIS) Hundreds of letters written by disappointed Nazis and breathing a spirit of unequalled hate, fury and vengeance against Hitler and the Goering-Goebbels clique around him, are pouring into the offices of the German emigree papers in Prague, Paris, Saarbruecken, Amsterdam and other centers, a survey of the European TIS correspondents reveals.

"Each and everyone of us is at times full of the spirit of revolt and unreasonable fury," writes the German daily "Deutsche Freiheit" in Saarbruecken. "but none is so burning with hate, so full of vengeance as these betrayed mercenary Nazi souls.' These professional soldiers and putschists, says the paper, actually believed that the time had come under Hitler where they could live free and in complete accordance with their medieval views. Now they find themselves betrayed by a man whom they adored like an exhalted deity. According to most of the letter writers, numerous executed Nazi leaders were actually unaware of the betrayal which over came them. They believed that they were the victims of an anti-Hitler plot and went to their doom with the cry "Heil Hitler."

Couriously enough, the ire of these letters is directed not so much against the executioner Goering but against Hitler and particularly against Dr. Goebbels who is described as the Judas of Nazism. Thanks to his radical utterances and his repeatedly stated willingness to cooperate with Roehm and his friends in their efforts to convince Hitler of the necessity of adopting another political course, they, (Roehm, Heines and their clique) considered Goebbels one of their own. Goebbels followed the same method which he had used against Gregor Stasser and which led to the latters downfall in 1932. He then as now professed allaince with the opposition but went over at the last moment and betrayed his former ally Strasser to Hitler.

The situation preceding the German bloodbath is described in these letters as follows:

The Nazi leaders had been officially invited to come to Munich for a discussion of party affairs. No putsch was planed as is best shown in the case of the storm troop leader Ernest who was arrested aboard a German steamer in Bremen. Ernest, who had just started a vacation trip aboad with his young wife, had requested official leave of absence. He had excused himself for not being able to attend the leaders' conference at Munich. Only a few days before the meeting, Ernst visited Hitler and asked his special permission for the intended trip which was granted with all signs of friendship. It is said that Ernst died convinced of an anti-Hitler plot and not knowing that he had been made the victim of unbelievable betrayal.

The same letters announce sweeping action against all those responsible for the mass murder of June 30. Goebbels is the first one to be put on the spot. Most interesting in this connection is the reliably reported fact that the well-known German militarist and terrorist leader, Captain Ehrhardt, has withdrawn all his followers from the Nazi storm troops. Ehrhardt was informed of the coming mass murder and wanted to take no chance whatsoever of loosing cutthroats. This group will undoubtedly play an important role in the further liquilation of the Nazi leadership. Ehrhardt is at the present reported abroad and waiting for the further disintegration of the regime.

The man with a definite object in view has got all over the fellow who has none.

with a cancellation clause would be acceptable to the company or not. He stated however, that he will confer with his superiors and let the council know later. Mr. Myhrom suggested that forfeit might be established to reimburse the power company in case the city terminated the contract short of the five years, this forfeit should be made on a graduated basis he suggested that the amount forfeited would be smaller as the end of the five years approached nearer. It was decided to lay the matter on the table until the next regular meeting orf the council, two weeks hence.

The mayor reported a meeting of the city goverments of Crookston, E. Grand Forks, Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls for the purpose of organizing these cities in a Red Lake River Water Preservation Commission. Reccomendations by a committee composed of E. L. Tungseth, L. Peterson, Rudolph Helm and Geo. Tiedeman proposed that the mayor and the chairman of the city council and one more member of the city government of each city be designated as the official representatives to act for the cities in matters pertaining to the water situation in the river. This recommendation was accepted by the council which elected Walt Jung to the third position from this city.

Two stoker salesmen were heard by the council, for the purpose of giving the members information in regard to mechanical furnace stoking. A representative of the people manufacturing Kol-Master presented his arguments for his machine and stressing its advantages. Another, representing the Iron Fireman people was heard next. He stressed the fact that the city will be able to purchase on the deferred payment plan from his company. Asked by President Myhrom is such a purchase would be legal, City Attorney Theo. Quale stated that the legality could be taken care of. It was pointed out that the bids would have to be called in order to make a legal purchase. The council agreed however that they can buy from anyone they choose, whether they were low bidders or not.

The city attorney reported that the commissioners appointed by the court to appraise the lots in the auditorium block have finished their work and filed their report with the clerk of court.

Repeal Promises Were All Good, Results All Bad

The promises that won the overwhelming victory for repeal last year were such as merit the support of high-minded citizens: no saloon; decreased drinking and drunkenness; no bootleggers, real temperance, and last and best, the protection of youth from the degrading debauchery of drink. The results have been everything else but. What repeal has brought is exactly the opposite, and lots of it. The promises were all good. The results are all bad.

The Wheeling (W. Va.) News tells this story which can be duplicated in many cities and villages east, west, north and south.

Two Wheeling women, who say they vote for repeal of the national prohibition amendment in West Virginia were callers at the office of the Wheeling News in the past week. They were in a state of nervous excitement, bordering on hysteria.

"They came to tell of moral conditions which surround their homes in a rather prominent part of the city; to tell of the nightly revels in one of the drinking places immediately adjacent to their residents: to tell of the noise, the clamor, the foul language, the threats of shooting, the numerous brawls which make the night hideous in their vicinity: to tell of young men and yong girls who frequent these places; of the young girls who are carried out drunk, of the young men who make public exhibitions of themselves at all hours of the night time and for that matter, of theday time.

"Both of these women were emphatic in the assertion that they have had all of the return of the saloon that they want; that their votes hereafter would be for a dry State, and for decent living conditions.

"This is only one illustration of what is going on all over West Virginia. The return of licensed places to sell beer has been made the excuse for violation of the prohibition amendment; has been made the excuse for absolute indifference towards the fundamental law of the state on the part of State officials, and has been made the excuse for a condition of Lawlessness unparalleled in the history of the State.

U. S. Urged to Speed Cattle Shipping

Fargo, N. D.—Urgent request to drouth authorities of the federal government that steps be taken immediately to expand outlets for cattle purchased in the drouth program as a measure to conserve feed for the remaining herds was forwarded to Washington by representatives of six northwest states at a conference at the North Dakota agricultural college here. Conditions are so desperate, according to the message, they insist that other outlets for the drouth-purchased cattle be developed. Present feed supplies must not be depleted by feeding them to these cattle awaiting disposal. The drouth conference was called by Dr. J. H. Shepperd, president of the N. D. A. Nazi Betrayed By Hitlerists

NEW YORK (TIS) Hundreds of letters written by disappointed Nazis and breathing a spirit of unequalled hate, fury and vengeance against Hitler and the Goering-Goebbels clique around him, are pouring into the offices of the German emigree papers in Prague, Paris, Saarbruecken, Amsterdam and other centers, a survey of the European TIS correspondents reveals.

"Each and everyone of us is at times full of the spirit of revolt and unreasonable fury," writes the German daily "Deutsche Freiheit" in Saarbruecken. "but none is so burning with hate, so full of vengeance as these betrayed mercenary Nazi souls." These professional soldiers and putschists, says the paper, actually believed that the time had come under Hitler where they could live free and in complete accordance with their medieval views. Now they find themselves betrayed by a man whom they adored like an exhalted deity. According to most of the letter writers, numerous executed Nazi leaders were actually unaware of the betrayal which over came them. They believed that they were the victims of an anti-Hitler plot and went to their doom with the cry "Heil Hitler."

Couriously enough, the ire of these letters is directed not so much against the executioner Goering but against Hitler and particularly against Dr. Goebbels who is described as the Judas of Nazism. Thanks to his radical utterances and his repeatedly stated willingness to cooperate with Roehm and his friends in their efforts to convince Hitler of the necessity of adopting another political course, they, (Roehm, Heines and their clique) considered Goebbels one of their own. Goebbels followed the same method which he had used against Gregor Stasser and which led to the latters downfall in 1932. He then as now professed allaince with the opposition but went over at the last moment and betrayed his former ally Strasser to Hitler.

The situation preceding the German bloodbath is described in these letters as follows:

The Nazi leaders had been officially invited to come to Munich for a discussion of party affairs. No putsch was planed as is best shown in the case of the storm troop leader Ernest who was arrested aboard a German steamer in Bremen. Ernest, who had just started a vacation trip aboad with his young wife, had requested official leave of absence. He had excused himself for not being able to attend the leaders' conference at Munich. Only a few days before the meeting, Ernst visited Hitler and asked his special permission for the intended trip which was granted with all signs of friendship. It is said that Ernst died convinced of an anti-Hitler plot and not knowing that he had been made the victim of unbelievable betrayal.

The same letters announce sweeping action against all those responsible for the mass murder of June 30. Goebbels is the first one to be put on the spot. Most interesting in this connection is the reliably reported fact that the well-known German militarist and terrorist leader, Captain Ehrhardt, has withdrawn all his followers from the Nazi storm troops. Ehrhardt was informed of the coming mass murder and wanted to take no chance whatsoever of loosing cutthroats. This group will undoubtedly play an important role in the further liquilation of the Nazi leadership. Ehrhardt is at the present reported abroad and waiting for the further disintegration of the regime.

The man with a definite object in view has got all over the fellow who has none.

WHITE COLLAR WORKERS WILL GET NRS AID

Teachers, Students and Other White Collar Workers Urged to Register.

With indications that the Federal Administration may undertake an employment program for white-collared workers, the National Reemployment office in this city has received during the past week numerous applications from persons with professional and commercial training.

Mr. H. J. Davidson, local manager states that of those registed in these two groups, 12 are in the active file and 53 are in the inactive file. He warns that, in the event that such a program for the white collared workers is realized, those who have not renewed their applications regularly will not be given active consideration

He states that many have also neglected to give adequate information regarding their training and pefrossional experience. If possible, Mr Davidson asks that they call at the office in person and complete their registrations.

Howard Davidson, statistician for the local National Reemployment Service, announced today that the project for teachers in the adult education program will be carried on this following year as it was in the past year. Eligible teachers registered at the NRS office will be called for those available jobs. If there are those not registered with the NRS office, they should do so immediately, as there will be numerous opportunities for placements in Pennington County and also in neighboring counties.

The Emergency Relief Administration is providing work opportunities for those students desiring college. Those interested should make an application at the NRS office in the near future, after which the application will be tranferred to the state ERS office, division of educaion.

Mr. Davidson states that six persons were recenty appointed to make a traffic survey of Pennington County Two persons are located one mile north of the city on State Highway No. 32; two persons are situated one mile west of the city on State Highway No. 1; and two more persons are located one mile south of St. Hilaire on State Highway No. 32.

Three persons from Pennington County have aso been appointed to the district recreational department, Davidson says, and many additional projects will be available in the near future.

Federal Land Bank Has 'Caught Up' With Requests

Loans are being closed by the Federal Land Bank of St. Paul now practicly as fast as they are being received, a survey made thisweek indicates. The appraisal division is on a "current" basis and has reduced its field force to 192 men, after having made a record of 293 appraisals per day for the month of July.

The loan committee has only 2 days' work ahead of it on new loans and is depending on the applications received daily to keep it busy. It was found necessary also to reduce the size of this committee to bring it down to the volume of business now before it.

Only 2 days' work is in the bin for the loan closing deparment, and other departments of the bank are in similar situation, all stages of the work from appraisals to the sending out of remittance statements being 'caught up" and in position to handle a larger volume than is being received.

F-L CLUB WILL SPONSOR SURVEY OF LIGHT DEPT.

Committee Selected to Make Investigation and Call Special Meeting

The local power situation came in for a great deal of discussion at the regular meeting of the Thief River Falls Farmer-Labor Club last Friday evening at the court rooms.

A resolution opposing any contract being entered into between the city and the Interstate Power Co., was adopted and a committee was selected to investigate the situation and report to the club at a special meeting to be called by the committee when it completes its work.

Members of the committee stated that they will make comparisons of power and light consumption from the records of the plant from the past several years and also of the past seven months. Comparisons of revenue derived from the plant and a summary of uses to which the net earnings of the plant has been put will be made.

If the city council insists on entering contract with the power company, the club will take action to unite all friends of the municipal power and light plant in a concerted fight to keep the highline out of the city.

Many of the members of the club have voiced approval of the establishment of a Water and Light Commission as suggested by C. E. Hellquist in a letter in the Forum last week. They suggest that such a commission should consist of three members elected for six year terms, one coming before the voters each two years.

The present council has thrown the department into politics by their action in dismissing able and experienced men who have worked for the city thru as high as eight and ten successive administrations they point out and the practice once started will be very likely continued, to the ultimate ruin of the municipal plant.

C & C Committee Turn Down Mayor's Request For Help in Power Fight

Deny Viebahn's Claim of 22.5 Percent Increase after Investigation

URGES VOTE OF PEOPLE ON HIGHLINE HOOK-UP

Would Establish Water & Light Commission to Covern Light Department

A denial of a twenty-two and a half percent increase in power consumption and a flat turndown on the city administration's request for moral backing from the Civic and Comerce association in the power and light squabble featured the report of a special committee submitted at the association's luncheon meeting this noon.

The committee was appointed two weeks ago, when W. E. Dahlquist and W. W. Viebahn urged the association pass a resolution endorsing a hook-up with the power company to augment the city's light and power plant. Members of the association reminded them that less than a year ago, Mr. Viebahn opposed the purchase of another diesel unit in a survey he made of the city's power facilities at the behest of the Mayor, E. L. Tungseth. In that survey he stated that the present equipment is ample to take care of the city's needs for several years to come. The Civic and Commerce association, acting on the basis of this survey and on the recommendation of W. E. Dahlquist and Mayor Tungseth passed a resolution opposing the purchase of another unit. This time the asociation refused to resolve without first investigating the proposition.

The committee resulted after C. D. Gustafson moved that "an unbiased committee be selected to investigate and make recommendations." The committee composed of the following resulted: E. M. Bennes, A. Anderson, H. L. Fowler, E. J. Barzen, Roy Lambert and W. H. Quist.

The report which states that the total increase is only some over 14 percent instead of 22½ percent as claimed by engineer Viebahn two weeks ago, points out that the city has netted around $25,000 per year from the proceeds of the plant, all of which has gone to lighten the tax burden. A recommendation that the question of hooking up with the highline or the purchase of an engine be submitted to the voters was also incorporated in the report. The committee urges that serious consideration be given to the idea of placing the water and light department in the hands of non-political commission and recommends that this question also be placed before the voters.

The report came in for a lively debate, during which time Alderman Walt Jung and Att'y. Theo. Quale objected to the recommendation for a vote of the people to settle he question. They maintained that the voters are not qualified to pass judgment on the question. On being placed to a vote the report was adopted with a large majority.

The report follows:

Your Committee beg leave to make the following Report;

1.—Two meeting with a majority of the members of the appointed Committee were held at the City Auditorium.

2.—WE RECOGNIZE that after some study of the Water & Light situation, that it appears to us to be a serious question, and requires prompt action.

3.—We find that present equipment is capable of handling the PEAK LOAD for some time to come, providing there is no serious break-down, BUT because of the fact that so large a percentage of the capacity of the entire plant is tied up in the McIntosh-Seymour Unit, it is impossible to shut said UNIT down long enough for periodic major over-hauls which is very necessary for the succesful operation of said UNIT.

4.—In the event of serious breakdown, the Citizens of the City and Industry depending on POWER would find themselves without adequate power.

HAY PROJECT TO AID THOUSANDS

Drouth Relief Board in Minnesota to Start its Program Immediately.

St. Paul—A $15,000,000 hay and straw program for the preservation of Minnesota's livestock herds and to provide work for thousands in fields, will be launched immediately, Gov. Floyd B. Olson, state relief administrator, announced. The program to be carried out by the drouth relief commission in charge of E. F. Mattson, provides for: The purchase of 750,000 tons of hay and straw in 11 counties of the upper Red River valley. Cutting and baling of 150,000 tons of hay on unoccupied land in St. Louis and Koochiching counties. Conservation and the cuting of and baling of corn fodder in the southern counties of the state. Planting of 500,000 acres for early spring pasturage in the acute drouth stricken areas. Relief to hail sufferers, for which the state has appropriated $150,000.

"More than 2,500,000 tons of fodder will be required this winter for the preservation of Minnesota's livestock herds," Governor Olson said in urging the importance of conserving every ton of forage in the state. For that reason, through the aid of the federal government, this program is being launched immediately. It will not only save the feed but it will provide work for thousands of men in the improvised hay fields. All the work will be provided from the relief rolls of the state. In the acute drouth stricken area, food will be provided to insure pasturage for the early spring. About 500,000 acres will be seeded in this ditsrict, according to the governor.

Burton L. Olson of Warren, district supervisor of the drouth relief commission, has been appointed field supervisor of this project. Mr. Mattson said that in carrying out this program, the farmers themselves will be given the task of selecting the fodder, investigating the hail damage, and making estimates of the cost of the hay and straw. The first payments for the hail sufferers will be made about Sept. 1, it was said.

St. Louis—Henry T. Rainey, beloved speaker of the house of representaives, died unexpectedly in De Paul hospital here. The picturesque, white-haired speaker, who had been suffered an attack of bronchiail pneumonia, would have been 74 years old Aug. 20. Mr. Rainey died quietly three hours after Mrs. Rainey, happy over the apparent marked improvement in the condition of her husband, had left the hospital after spending the afternoon with him. Three physicians, hurriedly summoned, and a hospital surpervisor were with the speaker when he died. Complications developed after the speaker had suffered an attack of bronchial pneumonia at his home in Carrollton two weeks ago and he was brought to the hospital here.

Second Canadian Brewer Threatened.

London, Ont.—The violent and mysterious death of a trusted employe of John S. Labatt, and kidnaping threats against Harry C. Hatch, wealthy Toronto brewer, gave dominion police two new sensational problems while they were attempting to roundup the kidnapers of Labatt. Gordon McKenzie, employed at Labatt's brewery, was found by a taxicab driver on a London street. His skull had been crushed, and he died in a hospital, without regaining consciousness. His employer, John S. Labatt, was released after a reputed $150,000 ransom was paid. His was the first kidnaping case in the history of Canada.

Boy Rides Bike Over Missouri In N.D.

Mandan, N. D.—One hundred years ago the Indian who could swim across the Missouri river here was a hero among his tribesmen. Today a Mandan boy laughs at the fears of the red men and the struggles of his white ancestors as they strove to conquer the mighty Missouri. He rode a bicycle across the river, depleted by the drouth from a surging current to a muddy, yellow stream.

Rochester's City Owned Plant Pays Big Profit at Low Rates

Back in March, 1892, when the use of electricity was not yet general, the City Council of Rochester advertised for bids for the construction of a power plant. When the council met for this purpose there was presented to each member an injunction forbidding, by court order, the letting of the contract, the expenditure of the money and the construction of the light and power plant, but public sentiment stood behind the council. The bids of the Western Electric Company of Chicago was accepted for the sum of $19,050 to build and equip a complete power plant.

Chas. A. Josiyn and John Ingleby, leaders in the movement for a city-owned and operated plant, were fined $75 each for contempt of court. The fines were paid and construction of the plant continued. It was completed in 1893 and from the first was the property of the city.

As the ciy grew, added power was required. The first engine in 1893 generated 160 h. p. This was gradually increased, until in 1931 a 6,000 k. w. turbine was installed and in 1932 the power plant was equipped with a 500 h. p. boiler.

The most serious setback was in 1914, when the plant was destroyed by fire, the loss being at least $150,000. At that time eager offers were received to buy the city plant. These were refused. The city borrowed money for a new plant from bankers and by the time the new plant was completed the loan had been paid out of the earnings.

Rochester, one of the very earliest towns to have a municipal power plant, also has the distinction of having the first municipal plant in Minnesota to burn natural gas. This was piped into Rochester from Texas in 1932. Since that time it has been used under the boilers of the municipal power plant and also by most of the larger privately owned industrial plants in Rochester.

Today Rochester owns and operates its own hydro-electric station and steam power plant and its own water system. It also generates steam at the light plant for use in heating many public and private buildings in the business section of the city.

From the sale of these utilities, the Public Utilities Board in the past year contributed $116,956.21 to the sewer, street, aalley and bridge funds of the city, and $41,559 to the general fund for the city tax budget. Furthermore, it gave employment to approximately 300 men in tree trimming work and water main extensions.

The City Hall of Rochester was paid for out of profits from the sale of electricity and at present Mayor Reiter is endeavoring to use money from the same Public Utility fund to build a new library, as it will be replaced before the library is completed, and save the people the $40,000 interest entailed by a bond issue.

At present the streets of Rochester are lit by the municipal power plant—without cost to the taxpayers—and are washed with city water—again without cost to the taxpayers. This is one reason why Rochester taxes are low for a city of its size.

And with all the benefits which have come to the city thru ownership of its own utilities, cannot be omitted that which first strikes attention—Rochester electric light rates are among the lowest in the country. The rate for electricity is so low that no less than one-quarter of all houses using electricity for lighting also use it for cooking.

It would be difficult to find a better example of the success of municipally owned and run public utilities than is afforded by Rochester.

The Fall and Rise In Frequency of Labor Disputes

By W. G. Calderwood

One of the prophesies made by the opponents of prohibition prior to its enactment was that it would cause labor disturbance, because labor would not work without beer. In the spring of 1920, shortly after prohibition became effective, a widely advertised parade was staged in New York to vitalize the slogan, "No Beer—No Work." This was an effort to stage a huge public demonstration to force a "beer" strike. It fell flat, showing that it was not a demand of labor, but of the exploiters of labor.

Exactly contrary to the phrophesy, labor troubles fell off sharply after and under prohibition. The World Almanac shows that there were 3,571 strikes and lockouts in 1919, the last year before prohibition. From that date there was a steady and rapid decrease during the prohibition period till 1928, when there were only 629, the lowest figure in many years. Then came the crash of 1929. But that brought no serious increase, the figures being 903 in 1929, 653 in 1930, 894 in 1931 and 808 in 1932.

Then came repeal, with the floodgates of beer and hard liquor wide open in nearly every industrial state. Then also came the terrifying increase in strikes, the number jumping from 808 to 4,227 for the year ending with July 1934, according to figures published in the United States News. This was an increase of nearly 417% the first wet year! It is not my purpose to claim or argue that the liquor trafic is responsible for these appalling figures.

But it is my purpose to remind us all that the opponents of prohibition did try to scare the voters, and particularly the industrial voters, by the widely publicized prediction that the adoption of prohibition would inflame the labor struggle with its class bitterness, social hatred, and financial loss that are inseparable from it; and also to recall that under prohibition, peace and plenty blessed labor to a degree never before experienced in the history of industry.

In contrast with that came the staggering record of one strike every thirty-three working minutes during the first year under repeal! Moreover, these struggles have been among the costliest, bitterest and most inhuman in the life of the nation.

Perhaps these facts prove nothing. Still they are facts—relevant and significant facts.

Reliet Projects Cost$13,432,000

Minnesota's $13,432,000 approved State Emergency Relief program is providing relief to more than half a million residents it was revealed in the monthly report of Governor Floyd B. Olson, state relief adminitsrator.

With work under way on more than 70 percent of the 2,006 projects, Governor Olson said that the SERA weekly payroll amounts to more than $260,000 throughout the state and that more than 20 per cent of the 2,563,931 inhabitants are on the relief rolls. Of these, 52,000 families are getting drouth relief he added.

Carrying out this program has established one of the most active business enterprises in Minnesota amounting to a monthly turnover of about $4,000,000 it was pointed out. With such business complicated as it is by federal, state and local regulations, it presents task which would give even the mythical Paul Bunyan the jitters. To direct this diversified business, Gov. Olson has divided the SERA into five main divisions, with a director for each and with a deputy administrator in charge. These are: L. P. Zimmerman, deputy administrator; Nathan Harris, director of the works division and state engineer; Benjamin E. Youngdahl, director of the social service division; R. W. Murchie, professor of sociology, University of Minnesota, director of rural rehabilitation: Casper T. Fredrickson, director of finance: and Oscar Behrens, director of transient relief.

NW. States get One-Fifth Loans Made by FCA

Almost one-fifth of the total number of land bank and of commissioner's loans made in the 48 states of the Union have been made within the four states of the 7th Farm Credit Administration district, it is shown by a statistical summary covering approximately the past 13 months.

Also almost one-fifth of the total volume of funds loaned within that period has been loaned in these four states, the percentage being 19.3 per cent of the total number and 18.1 per cent of the total volume.

Within this period, but carrying the figures down to and including August 2, the Federal Land Bank of St. Paul has closed loans and placed in farmers' hands for their own use and for refinancing their debts to others 81,600 loans for the total volume of $228,000,000 including the loans it has made on its own account and on behalf of the Land Bank Commissioner.

Fair Educational Program is Now Completed

After nearly a year's preparation the educational program for the $25,000,000 Minnesota Diamond Jubilee State Fair, September 1 to 8, is complete, announces Raymond A. Lee, Secretary.

Final approval was given at a special meeting of the board of managers. Staging of a 4-H poultry competition to be held in connection with the poultry show for the first time, revamping of the Varied Industries department to permit more comprehensive exhibits and the combining of the display of the state's resources by the Division of Forestry, Land and Minerals, Game and Fish, Drainage and Waters and Tourist bureau in the new $120,000 Conservation building are last minute additions to the program.

Closing of entries in the cattle, horse, sheep and swine departments assures a record number of animals in the livestock division. Officials are elated to find that despite the drouth conditions in some sections of the country leading breeders of Minnesota and the Northwest will have strong representation. Many nationally known herds will show for the first time.

More than 3,000 birds, the pick of the flocks that have made Minnesota one of the nation's leading poultry states, will be in competition in the poultry show. Classes have been included for chickens, ducks, geese, turkeys, pigeons and rabbits.

A survey of 30 counties that will have booth exhibits in the Agricultural building reveals that the display of farm crops will be up to the standard of other years.

Improvements in varieties of plums, apples, pears and berries developed at the State Fruit Breeding Farm will be one of the features in the Horticultural division.

Admission to the fair will be [illegible] cents and the policy adopted a year ago, of everybody paying, again will be in effect, says Mr. Lee.

RECALLS REACTIONARY STAND OF DEAFEATED CONGRESSMAN

CHICAGO—The defeat of H. V. McClintic, representative for twenty years from the 7th Oklahoma district, recalls to Mrs .Winnie Branstatter, wife of the late Otto Branstetter, who was executive secretary of the Socialist party, the followin incident:

After the war, Mrs. Branstetter was active in the campaign for the release of poiltical prisoners. A resident of McClintic's district, She visited him at Washington to ask his help in her campaign. The congressman pointed to a tarred broom hanging over his desk.

"That is the broom I used myself to tar some I.W.W. bastards," MacClintic told her. "And I'll use it again on your men when they get out."

DISCONTINUANCE OF POLICE SUGGESTED BY SOCIALISTS

NEW ORLEANS—Under the muzzles of the machine guns which were brought into New Orleans by the militia in the fight between Senator Huey Long and Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, the Socialists of this city last week held a mass meeting denaouncing both factions.

"The Kingfish and Walmsley have money to spend for bullets but nothing to spend for bread," one speaker pointed out.

The meeting adopted resolutions calling on the city and state to discontinue expenditures for troops and special police so that money could be used for relief of the unemployed.

HOW 'A GREAT FINANCIAL EMPIRE' WAS BUILT

Synopsis of Testimony Developed in the Hearings On The Northwest Bancorporation

Place Stock Value at $400 Per Share

While still possessed of their one thousand dollars in capital, and while the various directors were active officers of the bank herein mentioned they passed resolutions stating that.

"The stock of said Northwestern National Bank of Minneapolis is fairly and reasonably worth the sum of $400 per share; that the capital stock of the First National Bank o: Mason City, Iowa, is fairly and reasonably worth the sum of $300 p share, and that the capital stock o First National Bank and Trust Company of Fargo, N. D., is fairly a reasonably worth the sum of $31 per share.

"That the capital stock of the National Bank of LaCrosse is fairly a reasonably worth the sum of $27 per share."

And in each instance they authorized the issuance of their own stoc with a par value of $50 to be exchanged for the stocks of these bank on the basis of the valuation the placed thereon. At the same tim and at the same meeting, while thei capital still remained $1,000, they appointed the Northwestern National Bank of Minneapolis, Minnesota "with the title of Registrar and directed the Registrar to countersign certificates of stock of the company for not to exceed 1,500,000 shares of said stock of the par value o $50 each whenever they might be presented for that purpose * * * * Th certificate of this seventy-five million dollars of stock would, of course be presented by these men who had placed themselves in control of the company thru the investment of one thousand dollars between them.

A "Plan and a Deposit Agreement" was authorized to be sent to all stockholders of the banks mentioned in order to obtain the transfer of the stock from the various stockholders of the banks. The evidence thereof shows that by the investment of $1,000 these gentlemen put themselves in position to assume the control and the management of the affairs of these banks of which they were active officers, if they could get the stockholders to make an exchange of bank stock for the stock of the Northwest Bancorporation.

Mr. Decker was asked:

Q. "Were there any preorganization subscriptions to the capital stock of Northwest Bancorporation by anyone?"

A. "No, sir.

Q. "At the time of proposing to the stockholders of these various banks that you have designated that they exchange their stock for stock in Northwest Bancorporation, Northwest Bancorporation had no assets and no liabilities?

A. That is my recollection, that was the first step. Qualifying shares for directors, however, had been issued.

Q. But that was all, is that correct?

A. I don't recall that. I presume so." (This refers to the $1,000)

The records shows that on February 14, 1929, 600,000 shares of th stock with a par value of $50 we qualifed for sale, part of it to be exchanged for bank stocks, and part f cash.

Thomson 'Prime Mover' in Stock Sa.

According to E. W. Decker, the parties most active in carrying o the sales campaign of this stock we J. Cameron Thomson, H. D. Thr and D. R. West. Mr Decker also sa it was J. Cameron Thomson who wa "one of the prime movers" and th "original one who opposed th scheme."

From the above evidence one ca readily deduce the fact that thes gentlemen with their original investment of one thousand dollars intended to dominate and control the affairs of the "New Financial Empire they were proposing to build out such banks as they might gain control of, and such cash as might b subscribed for their stock.

The Northwestern National Ban of Minneapolis was to be the "key bank" of the group, and, as active officers of that institution the original promoters of Northwest Bancorporation encountered no difficulty i obtaining consent of the stockholders to exchange Northwestern Bank stock for stock of Northwest Bancorporation. With active officers o the other original banks also on the board of the new company, the exchange of stock of the other banks was, so far as the records show, easily accomplished.

The original banks of the group had deposits running into many millions of dollars and to obtain the cash necessary to make the New Empire a realty, the minute book of the company shows that "particular emphasis was to be given to customers of the various banks in the distribution of the stock."

Before the campaign ended this group had taken over control of upwards of 135 banks located in seven states, and having deposits aggregating about three hundred fifty million dollars. It is apparent that the more banks the group took in the more customers there were with deposits who were possible stockholders. A large supply of cash was therefor made available (viz., the deposits in the institutions) for prospective purchasers of the stock of Northwest Bancorporation which controlled these institutions, and, at least in the beginning, the stock of the holding company was in many instances acceptable at banks owned by the company, as collateral for loans which were to be used to purchase this stock.

Deduct From Wages For Employees' Stock Purchases

Particular emphasis was also laid upon the sale of stock to employees and subordinate officers, and a plan was worked out whereby the purchase price of the stock was deducted monthly from their wages. This campaign, according to the record before the department, took in all of the employees one hundred per cent. even to the janitors. With one hundred per cent of all employees as stockholders the amount that they paid in for stock made quite a saving n the cash outlay for wages.

It is apparent from the testimony hat many things contributed to the ase, with which the company obtained from the general public cash or other assets, in exchange for its stock. Among these contributing factors may be mentioned:

1. The general attitude of the ublic towards speculation.

2. The fact that the company was paying dividends and reporting earnings. (The manner of paying dividends is delt with hereafter.)

3. The fact that the company's tock during the year 1929 continued o advance in price in Chicago Stock Exchange and the Minneapolis St Paul Stock Exchange, thus giving to in the minds of the public a speculative value ("Marketing Operation" hich Mr. Watson, consel for the department, claimed were the cause of his advance are detailed herein).

4. The fact that the men who were leading it were in control of banking institutions which are the leading financial institutions in their respective territory, and gave as a consequence a tremendous number of contracts such as savings accounts in the banks that they owned who might purchase this stock.

5. The attitude of the press in giving publicity to the group banking plan, and to so-called news items, which left the impression in the minds of the public of tremendous possibilities for profit to those who might invest in the stock.

Violence Takes More Lives Than Early plagues

"We shudder at the great plagues that ravaged whole populations in the Middle Ages," says a bulletin issued by the Public Health Education Committee of the Minnesota State Medical Association issued today. "We thankfully cite the fact that epidemics and great loss of life from small pox, typhus, yellow fever and cholera are a thing of the past.

"Yet violent deaths from epidemic scourges of the past by thousands each year."

Life insurance figures for the first three months of 1934 are cited in the bulletin to show that, while every effort is being made and with some hope of ultimate success, to curb the reat modern disease killers such as ncer and heart disease, deaths by violence not only go unchecked but are increasing.

The automobile death rate is 20% igher so far this year than last, according to these figures, and it was % higher last year than the year efore. Among children, the fatality ate is 26% higher this year than st.

"Here we have a formidable peril to mankind caused by the man himelf. No germicide or vaccine will each it. None of the diseases except eart disease exceeds it in the toll f lives taken annually. Unlike heart isease. a large number of its victims re children."

In 1929 according to the figures here were 120,000 deaths from iolence including automobile accients, suicides and homicides, and nly 111,000 from cancer or Pneumonia and 106,000 from kidney disase. Deaths from heart disease numered 245,000.

In the same year, only 151 persons died of small pox, 19 of typhus and none at all of plague, yellow fever or cholera.

Deaths by violence cannot be prevented by medical science, this bulletin points out. The best the doctor can do is to patch up the injured who escape.

New Ideas in Road Beauty to Be Tried

A ten-mile roadside development project which should give Minnesota one of the finest examples of work in this part of the United States has been started on U. S. Highway 61 on the north shore of Lake Superior, according to an announcement by the state highway department. The task will require a year for completition While the highway department is planning the roadside activities, the work will be done by the Civilian Corps and the necessary materials will be provided by the National Parks service. Practically no expediture of state highway funds will be required, it was said by N. W. Elsberg, highway commissioner.

The North Shore project begins near Lutsen and extends about two miles north of Cascade. Here, in a naturally wild and beautiful setting, closely skirting the lake shore, new ideas in highway beautification and safety will be put into practice.

Steep side ditches and sharp, ugly cuts will be reduced to safe, gentle slopes covered with native ferns, wildflowers and other wild vegetation of the countryside. The highway, instead of geing a raw gash thru the woods, will be made to harmonize with the scenery so that the edge of the rightofway will blend imperceptibly with the wilderness.

Undesireable brush, dead wood and fallen trees will be cleared away along the roadsides. In some places carefully thinning of woods will be carried out to open up vistas along trout streams or out upon the lake. In other spots native trees and shrubbery will be planted. Guard rails of rustic construction are planned.

At Cascade, where the Cascade river flows into Lake Superior, a roadparking area large enough to accommodate forty automobiles will be construeted. A native stone concourse will overlook the lake, while on the other side of the highday, foo will lead back into the woods along the river banks.

Here the state owns 2,000 acres of land in the Superior national forest. A CCC camp is being built at Cascade to house the young men who will carry out the work. In addition to roadside activities they will construct a firebreak around the state land and build trails under the direction of the state conservation department. The CCC buildings are being so planned that eventually can be turned over to the conservation department for park and tourist use.

Minnesota Week At World's Fair Starts August 26

Visitors to the World's Fair next week will be treated to a tour of Minnesota, without ever leaving their seats in the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway exhibit with the showing of Minnesota motion pictures.

These films, designed to display the North Star State's vast panorama of natural resources, its vacational attractions, its agricultural opportunities and its wealth of industry, will be shown continously from 10:00 A.M. to 10:00 P.M. daily during the entire week. The pictures take the audience into every section of the state. Fishing and other sporting activities are stressed, with the program preceded by and invitation from Governor Olson to everyone to come and visit Minnesota.

In observance of Minnesota week, the Rock Island Line is cooperating with the Minnesota Tourist Bureau, whose director, George H. Bradley believes the state should be aggressively advertised the year arround.

"While the tourist business thruout the state has been better this year than last, it is no time to lessen our efforts to attract residents of other states to come to Minnesota to spend their leisure time," Mr. Bradley said. "Last minute vacationists—that is, those persons who can't make up their minds where to go until summer is almost spent—will find their delay a profitable one if they choose Minnesota. Here, in autumn, Nature really spreads herself."

Scenes from the Minnesota films take the audience on fishing trips to the border lakes, on a deer hunting expedition in the northwoods country, pheasant hunting in Southeastern Minnesota, and trout fishing in the cool spring waters of Whitewater State Park, near Winona.

Scenic spots of interest include the Mayo Clinic building at Rochester, Chippewa Indians in their native habitat near Bemidji, deer grazing by the roadside near Ely, beaver working industriously on their dams in northwestern Minnesota and the mountainous drives in the territory contiguous to Winona.

Some of Minnesota's 11,007 lakes are shown in review as the photographer passes over their rippling surfaces via motorboat. There is majestic Mille Lacs, whose 126,326 square acres spread over the land scape just 100 miles northeast of the Twin Cities; there is Gull lake and far famed Winnibigoshish, Kabetogama, and other fond spots where the fisherman may indulge in his favorite sport and catch his limit.

The films will be shown continuously beginning at 10 A.M. until 10 P. M. every day beginning August 26, untill September 1.

MUSSOLINI'S PAPER SEES U. S. GOING FASCIST

Milan, Italy—Premier Benito Mussolini's newspaper, Popolo D'Italia, stated last week in a three column editorial that indications are that the United States is going fascist. The editorial which is based on Secretary Wallace's book recently published, says, "Wallace talks of cooperation, but he means corporation, his solutions are corporative.

"His book is an indictment of the liberal economy which has had its time and closed its cycle. After reading the book one can say that America is going towards corporate economy. It is to the merit and glory of the fascist revolution that it has opened the great corporate highway upon which, little by little, will march all great peope of the word."

Synopsis of Testimony Developed in the Hearings On The Northwest Bancorporation

Place Stock Value at $400 Per Share

While still possessed of their one thousand dollars in capital, and while the various directors were active officers of the bank herein mentioned they passed resolutions stating that.

"The stock of said Northwestern National Bank of Minneapolis is fairly and reasonably worth the sum of $400 per share; that the capital stock of the First National Bank of Mason City, Iowa, is fairly and reasonably worth the sum of $300 per share, and that the capital stock of First National Bank and Trust Company of Fargo, N. D., is fairly and reasonably worth the sum of $31 per share.

"That the capital stock of the National Bank of LaCrosse is fairly and reasonably worth the sum of $27 per share."

And in each instance they authorized the issuance of their own stock with a par value of $50 to be exchanged for the stocks of these banks on the basis of the valuation then placed thereon. At the same time and at the same meeting, while their capital still remained $1,000, they appointed the Northwestern National Bank of Minneapolis, Minnesota "with the title of Registrar and directed the Registrar to countersign certificates of stock of the company for not to exceed 1,500,000 shares of said stock of the par value of $50 each whenever they might be presented for that purpose * * * * The certificate of this seventy-five million dollars of stock would, of course be presented by these men who had placed themselves in control of the company thru the investment of one thousand dollars between them.

A "Plan and a Deposit Agreement" was authorized to be sent to all stockholders of the banks mentioned in order to obtain the transfer of the stock from the various stockholders of the banks. The evidence thereof shows that by the investment of $1,000 these gentlemen put themselves in position to assume the control and the management of the affairs of these banks of which they were active officers, if they could get the stockholders to make an exchange of bank stock for the stock of the Northwest Bancorporation.

Mr. Decker was asked:

Q. "Were there any preorganization subscriptions to the capital stock of Northwest Bancorporation by anyone?"

A. "No, sir.

Q. "At the time of proposing to the stockholders of these various banks that you have designated that they exchange their stock for stock in Northwest Bancorporation, Northwest Bancorporation had no assets and no liabilities?

A. That is my recollection, that was the first step. Qualifying shares for directors, however, had been issued.

Q. But that was all, is that correct?

A. I don't recall that. I presume so." (This refers to the $1,000)

The records shows that on February 14, 1929, 600,000 shares of the stock with a par value of $50 were qualifed for sale, part of it to be exchanged for bank stocks, and part for cash.

Thomson 'Prime Mover' in Stock Sa

According to E. W. Decker, the parties most active in carrying out the sales campaign of this stock were J. Cameron Thomson, H. D. Thr and D. R. West. Mr Decker also said it was J. Cameron Thomson who was "one of the prime movers" and the "original one who opposed the scheme."

From the above evidence one can readily deduce the fact that these gentlemen with their original investment of one thousand dollars intended to dominate and control the affairs of the "New Financial Empire they were proposing to build out of such banks as they might gain control of, and such cash as might be subscribed for their stock.

The Northwestern National Bank of Minneapolis was to be the "key bank" of the group, and, as active officers of that institution the original promoters of Northwest Bancorporation encountered no difficulty in obtaining consent of the stockholders to exchange Northwestern Bank stock for stock of Northwest Bancorporation. With active officers of the other original banks also on the board of the new company, the exchange of stock of the other banks was, so far as the records show, easily accomplished.

The original banks of the group had deposits running into many millions of dollars and to obtain the cash necessary to make the New Empire a realty, the minute book of the company shows that "particular emphasis was to be given to customers of the various banks in the distribution of the stock."

Before the campaign ended this group had taken over control of upwards of 135 banks located in seven states, and having deposits aggregating about three hundred fifty million dollars. It is apparent that the more banks the group took in the more customers there were with deposits who were possible stockholders. A large supply of cash was therefor made available (viz., the deposits in the institutions) for prospective purchasers of the stock of Northwest Bancorporation which controlled these institutions, and, at least in the beginning, the stock of the holding company was in many instances acceptable at banks owned by the company, as collateral for loans which were to be used to purchase this stock.

Deduct From Wages For Employees' Stock Purchases

Particular emphasis was also laid upon the sale of stock to employees and subordinate officers, and a plan was worked out whereby the purchase price of the stock was deducted monthly from their wages. This campaign, according to the record before the department, took in all of the employees one hundred per cent, even to the janitors. With one hundred per cent of all employees as stockholders the amount that they paid in for stock made quite a saving in the cash outlay for wages.

It is apparent from the testimony that many things contributed to the ease, with which the company obtained from the general public cash or other assets, in exchange for its stock. Among these contributing factors may be mentioned:

1. The general attitude of the public towards speculation.

2. The fact that the company was paying dividends and reporting earnings. (The manner of paying dividends is delt with hereafter.)

3. The fact that the company's stock during the year 1929 continued to advance in price in Chicago Stock Exchange and the Minneapolis St Paul Stock Exchange, thus giving to it in the minds of the public a speculative value ("Marketing Operation" which Mr. Watson, consel for the department, claimed were the cause of this advance are detailed herein).

4. The fact that the men who were leading it were in control of banking institutions which are the leading financial institutions in their respective territory, and gave as a consequence a tremendous number of contracts such as savings accounts in the banks that they owned who might purchase this stock.

5. The attitude of the press in giving publicity to the group banking plan, and to so-called news items, which left the impression in the minds of the public of tremendous possibilities for profit to those who might invest in the stock.

Violence Takes More Lives Than Early plagues

"We shudder at the great plagues that ravaged whole populations in the Middle Ages," says a bulletin issued by the Public Health Education Committee of the Minnesota State Medical Association issued today. "We thankfully cite the fact that epidemics and great loss of life from small pox, typhus, yellow fever and cholera are a thing of the past.

"Yet violent deaths from epidemic scourges of the past by thousands each year."

Life insurance figures for the first three months of 1934 are cited in the bulletin to show that, while every effort is being made and with some hope of ultimate success, to curb the great modern disease killers such as cancer and heart disease, deaths by violence not only go unchecked but are increasing.

The automobile death rate is 20% higher so far this year than last, according to these figures, and it was [illegible]% higher last year than the year before. Among children, the fatality rate is 26% higher this year than last.

"Here we have a formidable peril to mankind caused by the man himself. No germicide or vaccine will reach it. None of the diseases except heart disease exceeds it in the toll of lives taken annually. Unlike heart disease, a large number of its victims are children."

In 1929 according to the figures there were 120,000 deaths from violence including automobile accidents, suicides and homicides, and only 111,000 from cancer or Pneumonia and 106,000 from kidney disease. Deaths from heart disease numbered 245,000.

In the same year, only 151 persons died of small pox, 19 of typhus and none at all of plague, yellow fever or cholera.

Deaths by violence cannot be prevented by medical science, this bulletin points out. The best the doctor can do is to patch up the injured who escape.

New Ideas in Road Beauty to Be Tried

A ten-mile roadside development project which should give Minnesota one of the finest examples of work in this part of the United States has been started on U. S. Highway 61 on the north shore of Lake Superior, according to an announcement by the state highway department. The task will require a year for completition While the highway department is planning the roadside activities, the work will be done by the Civilian Corps and the necessary materials will be provided by the National Parks service. Practically no expediture of state highway funds will be required, it was said by N. W. Elsberg, highway commissioner.

The North Shore project begins near Lutsen and extends about two miles north of Cascade. Here, in a naturally wild and beautiful setting, closely skirting the lake shore, new ideas in highway beautification and safety will be put into practice.

Steep side ditches and sharp, nolcuts will be reduced to safe, gentle slopes covered with native ferns, wildflowers and other wild vegetation of the countryside. The highway, instead of geing a raw gash thru the woods, will be made to harmonize with the scenery so that the edge of the rightofway will blend imperceptibly with the wilderness.

Undesireable brush, dead wood and fallen trees will be cleared away along the roadsides. In some places carefully thinning of woods will be carried out to open up vistas along trout streams or out upon the lake. In other spots native trees and shrubbery will be planted. Guard rails of rustic construction are planned.

At Cascade, where the Cascade river flows into Lake Superior, a road-parking area large enough to accommodate forty automobiles will be construeted. A native stone concourse will overlook the lake, while on the other side of the highday, foo will lead back into the woods along the river banks.

Here the state owns 2,000 acres of land in the Superior national forest. A CCC camp is being built at Cascade to house the young men who will carry out the work. In addition to roadside activities they will construct a firebreak around the state land and build trails under the direction of the state conservation department. The CCC buildings are being so planned that eventually ... can be turned over to the conservation department for park and tourist use.

Minnesota Week At World's Fair Starts August 26

Visitors to the World's Fair next week will be treated to a tour of Minnesota, without ever leaving their seats in the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway exhibit with the showing of Minnesota motion pictures.

These films, designed to display the North Star State's vast panorama of natural resources, its vacational attractions, its agricultural opportunities and its wealth of industry, will be shown continosly from 10:00 A.M. to 10:00 P.M. daily during the entire week. The pictures take the audience into every section of the state. Fishing and other sporting activities are stressed, with the program preceded by and invitation from Governor Olson to everyone to come and visit Minnesota.

In observance of Minnesota week, the Rock Island Line is [illegible]perating with the Minnesota Tourist Bureau, whose director, George H. Bradley believes the state should be aggressively advertised the year arround.

"While the tourist business thruout the state has been better this year than last, it is no time to lessen our efforts to attract residents of other states to come to Minnesota to spend their leisure time," Mr. Bradley said. "Last minute vacationists—that is, those persons who can't make up their minds where to go until summer is almost spent—will find their delay a profitable one if they choose Minnesota. Here, in autumn, Nature really spreads herself."

Scenes from the Minnesota films take the audience on fishing trips to the border lakes, on a deer hunting expedition in the northwoods country, pheasant hunting in Southeastern Minnesota, and trout fishing in the cool spring waters of Whitewater State Park, near Winona.

Scenic spots of interest include the Mayo Clinic building at Rochester, Chippewa Indians in their native habitat near Bemidji, deer grazing by the roadside near Ely, beaver working industriously on their dams in northwestern Minnesota and the mountainous drives in the territory contiguous to Winona.

Some of Minnesota's 11,007 lakes are shown in review as the photographer passes over their rippling surfaces via motorboat. There is majestic Mille Lacs, whose 126,326 square acres spread over the land scape just 100 miles northeast of the Twin Cities; there is Gull lake and far famed Winnibigoshish, Kabetogama, and other fond spots where the fisherman may indulge in his favorite sport and catch his limit.

The films will be shown continuously beginning at 10 A.M. until 10 P M. every day beginning August 26, untill September 1.

CENSORSHIP OF THE PRESS

Mr. George M. Cain, author of several books on journalism and newly appointed member of the Federal Communications Commission, gave an interesting interview over the radio on Tuesday evening. When asked what he thinks about the possibility of a censorship on communications, and particularly of the press in America, he replied that he considers it inconceivable. Freedom of the press is guaranteed in the first amendment to the constitution of the United States, he said. He stated that he could not conceive of the American people tolerating a censorship of the press.

Inasmuch as Mr. Cain is a journalist with many years experience, and certainly knows better, we must assume that the tripe he handed out over the radio in reply to this question was intended for public consumption and not to be taken seriously by those engaged in communication service whether that be with the press or with the radio.

Mr. Cain knows, as most everyone else now knows, that censorship of the press is not an abstract threat, but an actual present fact. The independent newspapers have vanished from the scene of American journalism just as they vanished from the scene in Europe many years ago. As Swinton said in his now famous response to the toast to "The Independent Press", "The Independent press no longer exists, unless it is the country weekly." He might truthfully have said, the very, very small and obscure country weekly. For the only outstanding example of an independent press in America today is the "Nation", published by Oswald Garrison Villard, a millionaire with opinions of his own and money enough to back them up. The rest of the press in the United States is well controlled in a greater or lesser degree by dispensors of patronage in some form or another, political support, economic backing by large advertisers, or actual ownership by big financial interests. And holding the meal-tisket is quite an effective method of censorship.

Those that are owned by the financial interests sing the song that the Masters of Finance and Industry want them to sing, as witness the subservience of the St. Paul and Minneapolis dailies to the wishes of the chain bank crowd and the Citizens Alliance. Political lines mean nothing to the financial crowd, and therefore the yowl of these dailies for a fusion to beat the farmer-labor party, and their action in any and all labor disputes. The fact that most of the rural weeklies in the state chant the same tunes would indicate that they too have heard their master's voice.

When the money powers want to establish a dictatorship in America, the newspapers will fall in line meekly or cease to exist. Just as they fell in line or ceased to exist when the money crowd wanted the country to enter the World War.

The papers sponsored and supported by farmers and workers are the only publicity channels which are not thoroughly censored, and while they are not "independent" and are far from unbiased, they owe their existence to the militant support of large groups of common people and must therefore reflect the desires of those groups. That desire is "the greatest good for the greatest number" except at such times as they lose sight of their own good as they did during the war. At such times their papers too must yield or respond.

No, the constitution is no guarantee of a free press. No more so than the same constitution was a guarantee against involutary sevitude during the war. When the financial crowd so decreed and the public sentiment had been built up to it, the constitution was set aside and would be again.

The only guarantee that the people has against a press censorship, is sane, rational thinking on the part of the masses and a militant support of their own press. An alert citizenship is a guarantee of true democracy under which no censorship of any kind can exist. There is no other guarantee devised yet.

THE LIVING DEAD
By Wm. C. Jenkins

Submitted by the WCTU

What ails those men I met today,
 And others, days before?
Whose bleary eyes, and drooling
 Mouths
Betray their hapless frame.
Their sodden minds, restraint
 Deplore;
While aimless speech mocks
 Self-respect,
And stifles normal sense of shame.
Their shuffling movements grieve
 The Lord;
For He did not intend them
 Thus,
To reel alonglife's winding
 Road,
Or sprawl in filth and
 Dust.
Are these the things the good
 God made,
To bear His image true,
 Divine;
The chosen glory of His
 Handiwork;
Beneath whose feet
 Creation lies?
Premier of earth, is Man's
 Estate;
Whose dominion sweeps both
 Sea and shore.
All nature yields to his
 Mandates—
Native sovereign of the world.
Yet, Alas! poor derelicts on the Human sea.
Hope's rainbow torn from manhood's
 Skies:
Haunting ghosts of remembered
 Days
Fuel the flames of Gehenna's
 Quenchless fires.
Heaven pity them! The living dead,
 Victims of cruel greed.
These Masters of the world were
 Snared,
To build a market for
 Demon rum—
Sewage from the brewing vats
 Of hell.
Dead to shame! You distil
 And brew,
To filch from men their fruit
 Of toil:
You rob their homes of
 Life and love.
To glut your tills with price of
 Blood and tears.
Has greed for dollars dulled
 Your ears
To labored groans of human
 Woe—
Rags of your remorseless lust?
If so dead, you scorn their
 Wail,
And smother every sense of Care:
Come hurricanes of wrath,
 And hail:
Consuming judgment, and relentless
 Doom.

The Liberal Digest

THE HORRIBLE RACKET OF THE WORLD WAR PROFITEERS

Just 20 years ago the sleeping giant War, sat up, stretched his mighty arms—and then, in a fury went on a four year rampage that came near to destroying the whole structure of civilization.

Awakened, by cheering crowds, noisy bands, rythmic tramp of a million feet. Frock coated embassadors, clicking heels, monarchs appearing on balconies to receive the cheers of their subjects. . . . Newspresses hummed . . . long troop trains steamed across continents. . . . fleets slid quietly to sea . . . .The world had gone to war and on the whole, people welcomed it, apparently.

There had been many years of peace, Life had become too stable Patriotism was at its peak—but had never been put to the test. The war at last was providing such a test, and in every country misguided humanity was making ready to meet it.

Few knew at the time, but in every warring nation there was one group that didn't feel especially stirred by the patriotism even if they did welcome it. That was the munition makers. To them the arrival of the war was only the begining of a great business boom. And business is business in the munition game. They are Internationalists so as the ledgers show profits they care little to whom the munitions are sold.

So it happened, during the long and tragic war, that many soldiers met a peculiarly strange and tragic death. They were struck down by weapons made by their own countrymen!

You have this on the word of the famous war correspondent and author, George Seldes, in his startling expose of the international munition makers. "Iron, Blood and Profits," recently published by Harper and Brothers.

In his book he makes statements about the world which are almost unbelievable—but which are true.

He shows that soldiers of almost every warring nation were struck down by munitions made by their own countrymen. Germans did business with French; English with Germans; French with Germans, and Germans with Russians in spite of blockades, the considerations of patriotism or any other consideration.

British warships were sunk in the Dardanelles by mines which had been made in England. Shells made in England. Shells made in English factories were fired into Austrian, New Zealand troops at Anzac Cove, and Cape Helles.

The German Thyssens, sold cannon shields to Holland which were resold to the Allies. They also sold horses to the Dutch, and the Dutch resold to the Allies for their cavalry. The British hand granades with which thousands of German soldiers were killed, were made with a fuse paetnted by the Krupps. After the war the Krupps sued the British munitions firm for $30,000,000 as royalty on the fuses which had been used to kill Germans—and what's more, they collected.

Germany needed aluminum for its Zeppelins, carbide and cyanamide. The Swiss imported bauxite and cyanamide in large quantities from France and French "patriots" sold them for higher than internal prices. Lyons merchants sold unusual quantities of silk to Switzerland and Zeppelins made of French materials dropped bombs over England, spied on Jellico's fleet at Jutland-Skagerrak flew over French cities and killed civilians. In May 1916, the British fleet was able to outfit itself with superior Zeiss firing detectors which it obtained from Germany via Holland

Verdun was attacked by the Germans and defeated by the French with the greatest losses to both sides in any battle of the war. On the French barbwire entanglements thousands of Germans were torn to death. On the spools of this wire appeared the following legend: 'Madeburger Draht und Kabelwerke.' It was imported via Switzerland during the war. Italy after entering the war supplied the Germans with sulphur; at exactly ten times the price for France.

Terrible as these disclosures are they do not relate the whole story. Mr. Seldes says. The French for some mysterious reason were opposed to the American bombarding the great iron and steel works in the Briey basin. These works were vital to the German cause. It was obvious to both sides that Germany must lose the war if the Briey basin production was interrupted. But no move was made against it, until Pershing and the Americans crushed it. French generals, members of the Chamber of Deputies and others, had long urged the destruction of the Briey basin by long range artillery or by airplanes. But it was not done. All requests encountered an invisable wall somewhere in the high paces of the government. The reason:—the great properties of the Briey basin were largely owned by French industrialists and they did not want their property destroyed.

Important French coal fields, only 15 kilameters from the front were never molested by Germans . . .they were owned by the same international industrialists.

And so the war ran on until 1918, and millions of young men were needlessly killed—while the munition makers got rich.

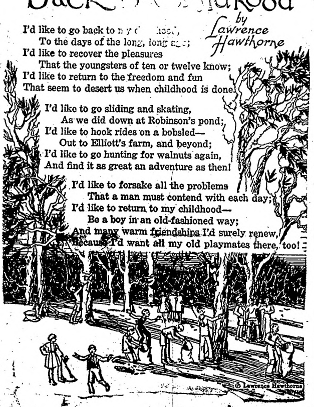
Back to Childhood
by Lawrence Hawthorne



I'd like to go back to my childhood,
 To the days of the long, long ago;
I'd like to recover the pleasures
 That the youngsters of ten or twelve know;
I'd like to return to the freedom and fun
That seem to desert us when childhood is done!

I'd like to go sliding and skating,
 As we did down at Robinson's pond;
I'd like to hook rides on a bobsled—
 Out to Elliott's farm, and beyond;
I'd like to go hunting for walnuts again,
And find it as great an adventure as then!

I'd like to forsake all the problems
 That a man must contend with each day;
I'd like to return to my childhood—
 Be a boy in an old-fashioned way;
And many warm friendships I'd surely renew,
Because I'd want all my old playmates there, too!

WHY SO MUCT MODESTY?
Union Advocate

The New York State Economic Council, a group of professors, retired preachers and press agents for the type of industrialists who finance so-called "Law and Order" societies, may rightfully lay claim to being the most modest organization of its kind in the world. Compared with the Citizens' Alliance, which has secrecy but absolutely no modesty, the New York Council is a shrinking violet.

Among the outstanding principles of the organization are the following: (1) all unemployed and farmers on relief shall be barred from voting, (2) picketing shall be limiting to a mere announcement of the dispute, (3)sympathetic or general shall be barred, (4) no social insurance of any kind, (5) union shops shall be illegal, and (6) taxes shall be imited.

Such lily-white modesty is refreshing in these days of unmitigated chiseling. The council should have added that it further believes (1) no one should be permitted to vote who disagrees with its platform, (2) no strikes should be permitted, (3) strikebreakers should have authority to call out the militia, (4) organizations like the Citizens' Alliance should have the right to issue injunctions against governors who declare martial law, (5) no taxes for those receiving over $2,000 a year, and (6) newspapers shoud have the power to appoint the chief of police whenever the city council cannot agree on a candidate of the job.

In this way the organization could boast of a 12-point program which would solve all the social, economic and political problems of these troublesome times. But it is not likely that it will make much of a showing in his busy old world. It is too modest.

BANCO HEADS NOT EXONERATED
Mid-West American

Because a Hennepin county grand jury for some reason failed to return a true bill against certain officials of the Northwestern Bancorporation for alleged fraudulent pactices, the Twin City dailies and some of their country cousins are chirping that the Banco heads have been "exonerated." This jubilation is a little premature.

We have nothing to say concerning the action of the Hennepin county grand jurors—although we know something about the powerful influence which the heads of the chain banking combine exercise and of certain mysterious ramifications. Also, we are not naive enough not to know that even grand juries are occasionally packed. But whatever the reason for the almost inexplicable failure of this inquisitorial body to return true bills, it does not in the leaast alter the easily established facts concerning the depredations of Edward Decker and his associates in the Bancorporation promotion.

Investigation by the State Securiies Commission has revealed that they paid dividends at a time when they were operating at a deficit; that they used capital surplus and the proceeds of stock sales for this purpose; that they deliberately manipulated the market by wash sales; that they formed a pool for their personal aggrandizement and used the stockholders' money to finance thir operations; that they knowingly issued false financial statements to fool investors—in short, that they conducted a gigantic confidence game that resulted in the robbing of some 11,000 Minnesota investors out of approximately $80,000,000.

The American now repeats, what it has stated on numerous other occasions, that their operations were marked by flagrant and unblushing frauds, and if Edward Decker or J. Cameron Thompson or any of their associates feel that they have been unfairly characterized by any of these accusations, we shall be very glad indeed to have them file libel proceedings, for we have in our possession ample evidence to prove each and every one of the foregoing assertions, to the ample satisfaction of any honest and unprejudiced set of twelve jurors—such as we belive we could find.

THE BLUSTERING GENERAL
New Ulm Review

Perhaps the most tragi-comic figure in the New Deal is General Hugh S. Johnson, director of the far-flung NRA. From coast to coast he has shaken his fists at critics, yet seldom has he uttered a word in praise The price, obviously has been a fast-waning popularity that actually threaten to undermine the NRA, deserving or not.

In Chicago recently the blustering administrator tore his hair in maniacal ravings against the Chicago Tribune in specific, and all newspapers in general. He dubbed editorial employees "intelectual prostitutes," denounced the press for criticizing NRA and fairy went mad in his condemnation that included almost everything, everywhere.

The time is long since reached when critics of NRA decided to let the good general rave to his content, because everyone realized that his nature was that of a bull—he struck when he saw red. Whether or not the American press is deserving of such lashings is another matter. We realize, of course, that there may be some grounds to his accusation of misinformation by metropolitan dailies, but none can agree with him in his demands for a quietus on criticism.

Is it fair for the press to criticize NRA? We do not feel in a position to judge whether good or bad traits predominate in this experimental setup, yet it seems apparent that a variance of opinion can alone bring about reform, if reform is needed. It is a time-honored belief that we cannot construct without first destroying the old. Surely it is the newspaper's place to mold and express opinion, providing it does so with an open minded attitude.

The pity of General Johnson's personal attitude is that it is doing the recovery movement no good. In his bull-headed manner he would evidently place himself in a dictatorial position over the nation, supressing criticism and political affiliations that NRA may prosper. We, too, insist on a fair deal for NRA, but the general has exceeded his authority when he seeks to supress criticism.

The civilized world is "almost certain" to commit suicide if it engages in war at this time, Pope Pius said in a recent interview to the press.

CENSORSHIP OF THE PRESS

Mr. George M. Cain, author of several books on journalism and newly appointed member of the Federal Communications Commission, gave an interesting interview over the radio on Tuesday evening. When asked what he thinks about the possibility of a censorship on communications, and particularly of the press in America, he replied that he considers it inconceivable. Freedom of the press is guaranteed in the first amendment to the constitution of the United States, he said. He stated that he could not conceive of the American people tolerating a censorship of the press.

Inasmuch as Mr. Cain is a journalist with many years experience, and certainly knows better, we must assume that the tripe he handed out over the radio in reply to this question was intended for public consumption and not to be taken seriously by those engaged in communication service whether that be with the press or with the radio.

Mr. Cain knows, as most everyone else now knows, that censorship of the press is not an abstract threat, but an actual present fact. The independent newspapers have vanished from the scene of American journalism just as they vanished from the scene in Europe many years ago. As Swinton said in his now famous response to the toast to "The Independent Press", "The Independent press no longer exists, unless it is the country weekly." He might truthfully have said, the very, very small and obscure country weekly. For the only outstanding example of an independent press in America today is the "Nation", published by Oswald Garrison Villard, a millionaire with opinions of his own and money enough to back them up. The rest of the press in the United States is well controlled in a greater or lesser degree by dispensors of patronage in some form or another, political support, economic backing by large advertisers, or actual ownership by big financial interests. And holding the meal-tisket is quite an effective method of censorship.

Those that are owned by the financial interests sing the song that the Masters of Finance and Industry want them to sing, as witness the subservience of the St. Paul and Minneapolis dailies to the wishes of the chain bank crowd and the Citizens Alliance. Political lines mean nothing to the financial crowd, and therefore the yowl of these dailies for a fusion to beat the farmer-labor party, and their action in any and all labor disputes. The fact that most of the rural weeklies in the state chant the same tunes would indicate that they too, have heard their master's voice.

When the money powers want to establish a dictatorship in America, the newspapers will fall in line meekly or cease to exist. Just as they fell in line or ceased to exist when the money crowd wanted the country to enter the World War.

The papers sponsored and supported by farmers and workers are the only publicity channels which are not thoroughly censored, and while they are not "independent" and are far from unbiased, they owe their existence to the militant support of large groups of common people and must therefore reflect the desires of those groups. That desire is "the greatest good for the greatest number" except at such times as they lose sight of their own good as they did during the war. At such times their papers too must yield or respond.

No, the constitution is no guarantee of a free press. No more so than the same constitution was a guarantee against involutary sevitude during the war. When the financial crowd so decreed and the public sentiment had been built up to it, the constitution was set aside and would be again.

The only guarantee that the people has against a press censorship, is sane, rational thinking on the part of the masses and a militant support of their own press. An alert citizenship is a guarantee of true democracy under which no censorship of any kind can exist. There is no other guarantee devised yet.

THE LIVING DEAD
By Wm. C. Jenkins

Submitted by the WCTU

What ails those men I met today,
And others, days before?
Whose bleary eyes, and drooling
Mouths
Betray their hapless frame.
Their sodden minds, restraint
Deplore;
While aimless speech mocks
Self-respect,
And stifles normal sense of shame.
Their shuffling movements grieve
The Lord;
For He did not intend them
Thus,
To reel alonglife's winding
Road,
Or sprawl in filth and
Dust.
Are these the things the good
God made,
To bear His image true,
Divine;
The chosen glory of His
Handiwork;
Beneath whose feet
Creation lies?
Premier of earth, is Man's
Estate;
Whose dominion sweeps both
Sea and shore.
All nature yields to his
Mandates—
Native sovereign of the world.
Yet, Alas! poor derelicts on the
Human sea.
Hope's rainbow torn from manhood's
Skies:
Haunting ghosts of remembered
Days
Fuel the flames of Gehenna's
Quenchless fires.
Heaven pity them! The living dead,
Victims of cruel greed.
These Masters of the world were
Snared,
To build a market for
Demon rum—
Sewage from the brewing vats
Of hell.
Dead to shame! You distil
And brew,
To filch from men their fruit
Of toil:
You rob their homes of
Life and love.
To glut your tills with price of
Blood and tears.
Has greed for dollars dulled
Your ears
To labored groans of human
Woe—
Rags of your remorseless lust?
If so dead, you scorn their
Wail,
And smother every sense of Care:
Come hurricanes of wrath,
And hail:
Consuming judgment, and relentless
Doom.

—o—

Just 20 years ago the sleeping giant War, sat up, stretched his mighty arms—and then, in a fury went on a four year rampage that came near to destroying the whole structure of civilization.

Awakened, by cheering crowds, noisy bands, rythmic tramp of a million feet. Frock coated embassadors, clicking heels, monarchs appearing on balconies to receive the cheers of their subjects. . . . Newspresses hummed . . . long troop trains steamed across continents. . . . fleets slid quietly to sea . . . The world had gone to war and on the whole, people welcomed it, apparently.

There had been many years of peace, Life had become too stable Patriotism was at its peak—but had never been put to the test. The war at last was providing such a test, and in every country misguided humanity was making ready to meet it.

Few knew at the time, but in every warring nation there was one group that didn't feel especially stirred by the patriotism even if they did welcome it. That was the munition makers. To them the arrival of the war was only the begining of a great business boom. And business is business in the munition game. They are Internationalists so as the ledgers show profits they care little to whom the munitions are sold.

So it happened, during the long and tragic war, that many soldiers met a peculiarly strange and tragic death. They were struck down by weapons made by their own countrymen!

You have this on the word of the famous war correspondent and author, George Seldes, in his startling expose of the international munition makers. "Iron, Blood and Profits," recently published by Harper and Brothers.

In his book he makes statements about the world which are almost unbelievable—but which are true.

He shows that soldiers of almost every warring nation were struck down by munitions made by their own countrymen. Germans did business with French; English with Germans; French with Germans, and Germans with Russians in spite of blockades, the considerations of patriotism or any other consideration.

British warships were sunk in the Dardanelles by mines which had been made in England. Shells made in England. Shells made in English factories were fired into Austrian, New Zealand troops at Anzac Cove, and Cape Helles.

The German Thyssens, sold cannon shields to Holland which were resold to the Allies. They also sold horses to the Dutch, and the Dutch resold to the Allies for their cavalry. The British hand grandes with which thousands of German soldiers were killed, were made with a fuse paetnted by the Krupps. After the war the Krupps sued the British munitions firm for $30,000,000 as royalty on the fuses which had been used to kill Germans—and what's more, they collected.

Germany needed aluminum for its Zeppelins, carbide and cyanamide. The Swiss imported bauxite and cyanamide in large quantities from France and French "patriots" sold them for higher than internal prices. Lyons merchants sold unusual quantities of silk to Switzerland and Zeppelins made of French materials dropped bombs over England, spied on Jellico's fleet at Jutland-Skagerrak flew over French cities and killed civilians. In May 1916, the British fleet was able to outfit itself with superior Zeiss firing detectors which it obtained from Germany via Holland.

Verdun was attacked by the Germans and defeated by the French with the greatest losses to both sides in any battle of the war. On the French barbwire entanglements thousands of Germans were torn to death. On the spools of this wire appeared the following legend: 'Madeburger Draht und Kabelwerke.' It was imported via Switzerland during the war. Italy after entering the war suppl ed the Germans with sulphur; at exactly ten times the price for France.

Terrible as these disclosures are they do not relate the whole story. Mr. Seldes says. The French for some mysterious reason were opposed to the American bombarding the great iron and steel works in the Briey basin. These works were vital to the German cause. It was obvious to both sides that Germany must lose the war if the Briey basin production was interrupted. But no move was made against it, until Pershing and the Americans crushed it. French generals, members of the Chamber of Deputies and others, had long urged the destruction of the Briey basin by long range artillery or by airplanes. But it was not done. All requests encountered an invisable wall somewhere in the high paces of the government. The reason:—the great properties of the Briey basin were largely owned by French industrialists and they did not want their property destroyed.

Important French coal fields, only 15 kilameters from the front were never molested by Germans . . . they were owned by the same international industrialists.

And so the war ran on until 1918, and millions of young men were needlessly killed—while the munition makers got rich.

Tots to Enter School Need Health Check-up

The A B C's of Health call for a medical examination for five and six year olds who will enter school this fall. This is emphasized in a bulletin issued by the Minnesota Public Health Association.

"Boys and girls with physical defects are not in a position to take full advantage of the educational opportunities the school offers them," says the bulletin. "The child who cannot see properly, hear well, who must breathe through obstructed nostrils or has other defects is unfairly handicaped in school room competition with his healthy class- who have to repeat grades are retarded because of physical defects or illness. This is expensive for the taxpayer and discouraging to the pupil.

"Protection against small pox and diphtheria should be given every child who is to enter school, if he has not already been vaccinated or immunized. The tuberculin test, which tells whether or not a child has been exposed to tuberculosis, is also a valuable addition to the medical examination.

"Health examination of the preschool child is also of great educational value in starting the all-important life long habit of periodic medical examination."

Promotion of regular medical examinations for children and adults is a phase of the general health educational campaign carried on in Minnesota through Chrismas Seal funds.

Preparations for Unemployment Rise Under Way

Berlin, Aug. 13,—Mass dismissals resulting from the increasing want of raw materials, have until now only been avoided by the use of the most drastic threats and official pressure, trport several workers correspondents. This is, however, only temporary and cannot head off the coming large increase in unemployment for which the government is evidently preparing.

Offcial preparations already provide for the automatic transfer of all dismissed young workers to the labor service camps where they receive food, lodging and 25 Pfennig daily. The confinement to camps shall also serve to forestall the concentration of unemployed elements in the larger cities. Official circles rightly fear that they may easily become the centers of public discontent and revolutionary plans.

Reports show at the same time that the dues paid by the workers to the Nazi coordinated trade unions and other labor organizations, are steadily falling. This has been especially noticable during the last two months as shown by a circular letter of the Union of Public Employees sent to all local offices thruout Germany. This letter orders strict control and energetic measures against all supposedly in arrears with their dues payments. A [illegible] investigation of all locals has [illegible] been ordered graft and corruption cases since the ed, undoubtly in view of the many conquest of power by the Nazis.

Tots to Enter School Need Health Check-up

The A B C's of Health call for a medical examination for five and six year olds who will enter school this fall. This is emphasized in a bulletin issued by the Minnesota Public Health Association.

"Boys and girls with physical defects are not in a position to take full advantage of the educational opportunities the school offers them," says the bulletin. "The child who cannot see properly, hear well, who must breathe through obstructed nostrils or has other defects is unfairly handicaped in school room competition with his healthy class- who have to repeat grades are retarded because of physical defects or illness. This is expensive for the taxpayer and discouraging to the pupil.

"Protection against small pox and diphtheria should be given every child who is to enter school, if he has not already been vaccinated or immunized. The tuberculin test, which tells whether or not a child has been exposed to tuberculosis is also a valuable addition to the medical examination.

"Health examination of the preschool child is also of great educational value in starting the all-important life long habit of periodic medical examination."

Promotion of regular medical examinations for children and adults is a phase of the general health educational campaign carried on in Minnesota through Chrismas Seal funds.

Preparations for Unemployment Rise Under Way

Berlin, Aug. 13,—Mass dismissals resulting from the increasing want of raw materials, have until now only been avoided by the use of the most drastic threats and official pressure, trport several workers correspondents. This is, however, only temporary and cannot head off the coming large increase in unemployment for which the government is evidently preparing.

Offcial preparations already provide for the automatic transfer of all dismissed young workers to the labor service camps where they receive food, lodging and 25 Pfennig daily. The confinement to camps shall also serve to forestall the concentration of unemployed elements in the larger cities. Official circles rightly fear that they may easily become the centers of public discontent and revolutionary plans.

Reports show at the same time that the dues paid by the workers to the Nazi coordinated trade unions and other labor organizations, are steadily falling. This has been especially noticable during the last two months as shown by a circular letter of the Union of Public Employees sent to all local offices thruout Germany. This letter orders strict control and energetic measures against all supposedly in arrears with their dues payments. A [illegible] investigation of all locals has [illegible] been or[illegible] graft and corruption cases since the [illegible]ed, undoubtly in view of the many conquest of power by the Nazis.

6.—We find that the NET earnings of the Plant exclusive of street lighting has been about $25,000.00 per annum and that the Sum of about $120,000.00 has been transfered to the Current Expense Fund of the City, thereby reducing materially the amount that the City otherwise would have had to raise by direct taxation.

I—Provide for stand-by Power by TEMPORARY Arrangement with the Inter-state Power Company.

C & C Committee Turn Down Power Request

increase of 14.7% over the same period last year, while the current produced by the Water Power for the same period in 1934 materially decreased. Undependable water power at this time adds to the seriousness of the situation.

6.—We find that the NET earnings of the Plant exclusive of street lighting has been about $25,000.00 per annum and that the Sum of about $120,000.00 has been transfered to the Current Expense Fund of the City, thereby reducing materially the amount that the City otherwise would have had to raise by direct taxation.

7.—That something should be done to insure against serious interruption of service.

8.—Two suggestive remedies have come to your Committee:

I—Provide for stand-by Power by TEMPORARY Arrangement with the Inter-state Power Company.

II—The purchasing of an additional Engine.

9.—We have given serious thought to the IDEA of placing the water & Light Department under a Commission, thereby taking the said Water and Light Plant cut of City Politics.

10.—WE RECOMMEND that the Civic & Commerce Ass'n. take no definite stand on the suggested remedies as either one will correct the present situation—

FURTHER that the Civic & Commerce Ass'n. Recommend to the City Council that they submit the following propositions as a referendum to the VOTERS of the city at a special election.

1—Shall the City of Thief River Falls issue bonds in the Sum of ....Dollars for the purchasing of...HP engine?

2—Shall the City of Thief River Falls enter into Contract with the Inter-State Power Company for stand-by power?

3—Shall the Municipal Water & Light Department be placed under the management of a Commission?

Respectfully submitted.
